A group of bicyclists takes a breather along an avenue of autumn leaves - Prairie du Chien Road just north of Interstate 80. The bicyclists were among 12 who biked to Solon Saturday for a luncheon at the Methodist Church for people on their way to the Hawkeye football game. The ride was sponsored by Bicyclists of Iowa City.

America almost forgot pro football on season's last, big day

Lasorda had just yanked his ace pitcher, Valenzuela, who had retired 10 men in a row, for a pinchhitter with the score 2-2 in the eighth — a strategy that backfired. The Dodgers needed this final game to go into a suddendeath playoff against the Atlanta Braves, creamed by San Diego a few hundred miles down the Pacific Coast.

Evans vs. Cutler: Clear differences

By CURT SEIFERT Press-Citizen Reporter

Donald E. Johnson didn't hestitate when asked if Cooper Evans will carry Johnson County in the Nov. 2 congressional elections.

"No," the county Republican Party co-chairman said, "I'm not claiming that at all. But I think he'll run extremely well."

And Johnson said he's not sure how much of an effect on voters Sunday evening's televised debate between Iowa's incumbent Republican U.S. 3rd District representative, of Grundy Center, and Democratic challenger Lynn Cutler of Waterloo will have on voters.

In an interview after the debate, Johnson said he wasn't sure if the evening's activities had converted any Cutler (or Evans) supporters. Rather, he said, it probably helped undecided voters get off the fence.

Undecided voters could well become the key to victory in the 3rd District. Both Johnson and county Democratic Party Chairman Jeffrey Cox agreed Sunday that the Evans-Cutler race is too close to

Arrest at parade varies the routine at Homecoming

Hawks simply too physical for the Wildcats

There are some good things about playing Northwestern in football at this point in history. For one thing, it's good for your record. For another, it might be good for the team's confidence. Winning often begets winning. For sure, some young players who may not play another time during the season will get into the game. But a game against Northwestern, it seems, is one in which it is dangerous to draw many conclusions. About the only definite statements that could be made about the Hawkeyes' 45-7 win over the Wildcats at Homecoming Saturday are that Iowa won, Iowa won easily, Iowa got to use a lot of players, Iowa was inconsistent, Iowa will not have another game like it this season.

There were good things and bad about the contest, from the Iowa standpoint, although surely 90 percent of them ranged toward the good side. Iowa was sometimes sloppy on offense, but it did not look like a football team that was overconfident, or had its mind somewhere else. I thought it came out in a frame of mind to do business, and that's not always easy against Northwestern, a team that has now lost 38 consecutive Big Ten football games.

Although Iowa's offensive execution was not always crisp and precise, it accumulated 23 first downs and 463 yards total offense. That is not shabby, regardless of the opposition. I liked the fact that, for the second game in a row, Iowa did not lose a fumble. Nine penalties is too much, but a lot of those came late

In the case of the Brewers-Orioles showdown in Baltimore, the outcome of the long season hinged on this single, final game. For Harvey Kuenn, that kindly, hobbled old Detroiter who had taken over the Milwaukee reins during the season, it must have felt as if he were lyingbelow the guillotine.

His Brewers had taken a commanding lead in the American League East, but proceeded to blow five of six games in the final two series with the second place Orioles. The two teams were tied heading into the last day of the

Across the way, retiring Weaver was dying hard.

The thousands who jammed Memorial Stadium refused to let the occasion end on a sour note. They stood and cheered, and summoned Weaver out of the dugout and onto the field for a final trib-in the game when fists started flying on both sides and when Iowa had so many new faces in the game you couldn't keep up with the changes.

Overall, Iowa's offense was pretty good, but it's got to be about 100 percent better at Indiana and about 173 percent better against Michigan in two weeks.

Defensively, Iowa again was very tough. I figured Northwestern wouldn't be able to run against the Hawks, and it wasn't. Had it not been for the 54-yard gain by Steve Tasker on the reverse that caught Iowa with its defense down, the Wildcats would have netted exactly zero yards rushing. Guys like Mark Bortz and George Little and Paul Hufford and Dave Browne and Clay Uhlenhake are simply too physical for the Wildcats.

I think Iowa's defensive end play has come along very well. Dave Strobel seems to have found a home at that spot and Tony Wancket has been a pleasant surprise. Michael Hooks and Straun Joseph lend good depth and a freshman named George Millett got to play quite a bit Saturday.

But the ends and part of the secondary were hookered Saturday on that reverse, and they'll certainly have to watch that night following Saturday's football game, police records showed. There were 13 complaints about loud parties or noise the night before the game.

Court records show there were seven persons charged in Iowa City with disorderly conduct over the weekend. Ten persons were charged with public intoxication, eight with consuming alstuff with Duane Gunn and Anthony Carter coming up on successive Saturdays. And there are times when an opposing quarterback finds far too much running room on a scramble.

The first and only "cinch" game of the season is now out of the way. The rest of the schedule is nothin' but trouble. Nothing that has happened so far has made me change my mind about this team or about its potential. I picked it to go 6-5, and I haven't moved from that. To do so, it must now win four of its remaining seven. That looks difficult, but not impossible.

I would have said that Nebraska and Michigan were the two games Iowa couldn't win. I now remove Michigan from that list. I now think Iowa could win any of its remaining seven games. But I also think it could lose any of the seven.

Indiana is a key game, and a tough game. If you think lowa might win four (or more) of its remaining seven games, then Indiana surely is one of the four you'd be counting. But Indiana is loaded with veterans, coach Lee Corso says this might be his best Indiana team, it's homecoming at Bloomington, and the Hoosiers got 22 first downs at Michigan and trailed only 17-10 well into the final quarter.

So don't think Indiana will be anything than very tough. And besides, they're looking at Iowa as a game they have to win.

I think Indiana should be favored and will be favored, but I think it's too close to call.

If you've been paying premiums on a whole life or other permanent insurance policy, you've probably built up a sizeable equity called cash value. This can be a valuable financial asset. But unlike other assets such as certificates of deposit, your insurance cash value earns you no return. Now Home Savings has a plan that can help you put that money to work earning high interest while you actually increase protection for your beneficiary.

Borrow low...invest high!

Your insurance policy gives you the right to borrow your equity or cash value at very low rates — usually 5 or 6%. If you then invest that money in Home Savings' "Idle Assets" Certificate — a special, high-yielding, insured 30-month certificate you'll earn hundreds of dollars in extra money. It's money you wouldn't have otherwise. And what's more, Home Savings will take care of all the arrangements with your insurance company.

The Home Savings advantage: increased beneficiary protection

Only Home Savings' Idle Assets Certificate can offer you the benefit of earning high interest on your cash value without reducing insurance coverage. Although borrowing against your cash value reduces the coverage of your original policy by the amount borrowed, Home Savings' Idle Assets Certificate provides group term life insurance coverage to make up the difference.

Coverage is equal to the amount you deposit in Idle Assets (up to. $10,000) and extends over the 30month term of your certificate. This coverage, combined with your original policy and your Idle Assets Certificate, means your beneficiary has more protection than before.

applies to account holders under age 60. Persons 60 and over will earn 3/4% higher interest on their Idle Assets Certificate and are provided accidental death and dismemberment insurance up to a maximum of $50,000.

It's simple and convenient

All you have to do is bring in your insurance policies to any Home Savings office. Our people have been specially trained to help you with this program. We will calculate the approximate cash value of your policy, and if you have a cash value of $1,000 or more, we'll work with your insurance company to arrange the loan. Then you'll start earning high interest on those previously idle funds while still enjoying full insurance coverage...all with very little effort.

Do yourself a favor...bring your policy into any Home Savings office today, and enjoy the benefits of putting your idle assets to work.

Earl Weaver, retiring as manager of the Baltimore Orioles, "I don't know if boredom will set in. Retirement is only a word I've heard. I don't know what it holds."

Weaver never heard the words 'You're fired'

By GREG BOECK Gannett News Service

BALTIMORE — For the Orioles, a rare breed of bird that annually nests at or near the top of the American League East, it was a loss, and an end to a season. For Earl Weaver, the manager who's never heard the words "You're fired," it was a goodbye to a career.

You"ll see him again. Tuesday, in fact. He'll join Jim Palmer and ABC-TV in the telecast of the AL playoffs. But as darkness fell on Memorial Stadium Sunday night, he hung up No. 4 in his spartan office for the last time.

He went out as he came in fighting, clawing, scrambling for anything he could get. Earl, the master of the 25-man roster, sent up four pinch-hitters in the last inning of his career. Then, finally, clutching his lineup card, inhaling one last Raleigh, it was

He'd taken his Orioles to the brink of a title one last time, but he didn't bow out a loser, just a victim of a Milwaukee team this Oriole club really had no business chasing in the first place. This was supposed to be Milwaukee's moment now. They'd survived the ultimate test in the ultimate game of this irregular season. But even in defeat, the moment belonged to the Earl of Baltimore.

It was over, but not a soul was leaving the stadium. Instead, 51,000 strong stood and chanted "Wee-Ver! Wee-Ver!" Even as the Brewers celebrated in the infield a title Weaver almost stole from them with a finish only he could orchestrate, another part of the stadium struck up, "We want Earl! We want Earl! We want Earl!"

And for the last time, No. 4 emerged from the dugout. He took off his cap. He kissed goodbyes. He waved. He hugged the Oriole Bird. And they chanted. "Wee-Ver! Wee-Ver! Wee-Ver!"

Later, the Orioles joined their manager on the field, even Jim Palmer, in civvies. Harvey Kuenn, the Brewer manager, came over, too. "It's a shame he's retiring," he would say later. "He's a credit to base-

But now retirement beckons, and he's ready. "Right now," said Earl, "I can tell you that I don't think I could go down to spring training, put on a uniform and work 14-15 hours a day that you need to. So for a year or two, I'll just sit back and relax. Relaxation is a word I've heard but never lived through."

A Robin shoots down Orioles

By KEN RAPPOPORT AP Sportswriter

It took a Robin to finally bring down the Orioles.

"I knew this club would come back, and it did," said Milwaukee Manager Harvey Kuenn after Robin Yount's slugging helped the Brewers beat Baltimore 10-2 on the final day of the regular season Sunday, giving them their first American League East title. "They were relaxed for every game here."

The Orioles were doing all the winning before Sunday. They had taken the first three games of the big series and pulled even in the race, threatening to take the division championship in dramatic fashion for departing Manager Earl Weaver.

However, the Brewers got a quick 3-0 lead Sunday — thanks in part to two solo home runs by Yount — and virtually took charge from the beginning. Yount also blasted a triple in his big day.

"This has been a club of character right along," Yount said. "We were loose throughout this series. We approached every game with the same attitude, with a positive feeling. Today was no different."

It was the only game of any real importance in the AL Sunday. Elsewhere, it was California 7, Texas 6; Oakland 6, Kansas City 3; Boston 5, New York 3 in 11 innings; Toronto 5, Seattle 2; Detroit 9, Cleveland 1, and Chicago 6, Minnesota 1.

Both of Yount's homers came against Baltimore ace Jim Palmer. The first one, in the first inning, was on an outside fastball which Yount hit to the opposite field.

"That's the sign of a good hitter," said Palmer.

Catcher Rick Dempsey then suggested pitching Yount in, Palmer said.

"So the next time, he hits it over the left-field wall."

Cecil Cooper and Ted Simmons also hit home runs to boost the Brewers' major leagueleading total to 216, and Don Sutton, the National League expatriate, pitched eight gutsy innings, scattering eight hits.

"I knew all along this club would win, with or without me," Sutton said. "This is the best collection of talent I ever played with. I'm glad to go along for the

Salem calls Gopher collapse 'a nightmare'

By The Associated Press

Minnesota coach Joe Salem described his team's fourth-quarter collapse as "one of those nightmares you'll have," after the 19thranked Gophers suffered their first loss of the year.

Minnesota's hard-earned 24-20 ead disappeared suddenly only 11 seconds after it appeared on the scoreboard. Fifteen minutes and 22 points later, the Illini walked off the field with their fourth victory of the season.

Illinois quarterback Tony Eason started the dramatic comeback by slinging an 80-yard touchdown pass to split end Mike Martin on the first play of the fatal quarter. After that, the Illini scored virtually at will for a 42-24 win, silencing the 63,684 fans at the Minneapolis Me-

Elsewhere in the Big Ten, a crowd of 104,385 at Ann Arbor booed Michigan as the Wolverines used an uninspiring land-based attack to beat Indiana, 24-10; Michigan State was alternately cheered and booed by 77,119 fans in East 11th-ranked Notre Dame, 11-3; and the Ohio State Buckeyes were 89,491 after losing to Florida State 34-17, their second straight home

Also, rookie Purdue coach Leon Burtnett criticized officials after Wisconsin scored twice in the final two minutes at West Lafayette, Ind., to defeat the Boilermakers, 35-31; and Iowa coach Hayden Fry lashed out at his own team after the Hawkeyes whipped Northwestern 45-7, at Iowa City.

The Gophers had overcome seven fumbles and an interception to take the lead. It only took one play to erase all that work. Illinois received the kickoff after a Gopher field goal. The first play was a short pass over the middle to Martin, who never stopped.

Eason, the head pilot of "Air Illinois," said, "I saw nobody there and I said, 'Oh my God.' When you get the ball to Mike Martin you don't know if it's a five-yard gain or an 80-yard gain."

The Illini weren't through, however. Two minutes later Ken Gillen sacked Minnesota quarterback Mike Hohensee in the end zone for a safety. Three minutes after that Kirby Wilson ran a Minnesota punt 46 yards for a touchdown. Add two field goals by Mike Bass and that was that.

The Illinois victory overshadowed the performace of Hohensee, who became the Gophers' alltime leading passer with 3,613 yards.

Michigan's win over Indiana was probably another black mark against the good name of dull and boring football, but it was just exactly what the doctor ordered for Wolverines' coach Bo Schembechler.

hands and concentrate a little bit more on catching the ball."

Gill feels he is becoming a better football player everyday. As a result, the tailback position remains a strong point of the Hawkeye offense, even when Phillips leaves the game to take a breather.

But with Gill pushing him hard for the starting job, chances are that Phillips doesn't get tired as fast as he did a year ago.

"Right," Phillips said with a

JOE SALEM A crowd of 63,684 fans watched his Gophers lose to the Illini.

"There wasn't a lot of excitment out there," Schembechler said after Saturday's triumph snapped two-game Michigan losing streak. "The nice thing about it, though, is that we won."

The Wolverines, virtually with-Lansing as the Spartans fell to out a passing attack after All-American wide receiver Anthony Carter sustained a rib injury and roundly booed by a record crowd of left the game in the first quarter, played grind-it-out football. Michigan ran the ball for all but 57 of its 334 net yards.

Indiana, on the other hand, found the forward pass to be a valuable weapon and threw the ball 39 times for 229 yards and its only touchdown — an 8-yard toss from quarterback Babe Laufenberg to flanker Duane Gunn.

It had been 12 years since Notre Dame won a football game without scoring a touchdown, but placekicker Mike Johnston made it look almost easy with three field goals against Michigan State.

The Fighting Irish defense did the rest for No. 11 Notre Dame, limiting the Spartans to just 140 yards — 121 of them in the air.

Florida State coach Bobby Bowden suspects the Seminoles caught Ohio State looking ahead and it cost the Buckeyes a rare second straight home football loss. "How could you be fired up about Florida State?" asked Bowden. "I read in the paper an Ohio State player's quote that they were concerned about the Big Ten race. That was good for us."

Now, after a second consecutive Ohio Stadium defeat for the first time since 1971, coach Earle Bruce says he must work on the Buckeyes' mental outlook. Burtnett, still looking for his first victory at Purdue, blasted officials after his team blew a 31-23 lead in the final seconds.

"I know I'll get reprimanded, but I don't care. This game was poorly officiated."

Burtnett alleged that officials, using a hand-held watch after the scoreboard clock went haywire, miscalculated and called a critical delay-of-game penalty his Boilermakers didn't deserve.

Torre: 'The cream came to the top'

ByMIKE EMBRY AP Sportswriter

And so, on the final day of the regular season, the Atlanta Braves found victory in defeat. They won the National League West because the Los Angeles Dodgers lost it.

Perhaps that's not entirely fair to the Braves, who began the season like-they would never lose, winning a record 13 straight games. But then they faltered in midseason, only to win the West backing in on the coattails of the Dodger defeat to San Francisco.

The Braves lost 5-1 Sunday to the San Diego Padres and had to loser. wait about 45 minutes for the outcome of the Dodgers' game at San Francisco to know if they would win the division outright or be forced into a one-game playoff tonight at Los Angeles.

That was settled when Joe Morgan smashed a three-run homer in the seventh inning off Terry Forster to lift the Giants to a 5-3 victory.

The Braves were in - their first division title since 1969.

"The cream came to the top and we're it," said Braves Manager Joe Torre, his uniform soaked with champagne from the locker room victory celebration.

Atlanta opens a best-of-five series Wednesday afternoon against the Cardinals, the NL East champions, in St. Louis. The Cardinals ended their season with a 5-4 victory over the Chicago Cubs in 14 innings.

Houston defeated Cincinnati 3-0.

Although the Braves didn't close the season on a winning note, they didn't complain.

"I don't care how we did it, it's done," said Braves' slugger Dale Murphy. "We've just taken the longest and toughest step." The Braves took a one-run lead on Terry Harper's leadoff homer in the top of the fifth off San Diego left-hander Tim Lollar, 16-9, who had retired the previous 10 batters and had not given up a hit.

The Padres, however, scored title in spine-tingling fashion, five runs in the bottom of the inning, highlighted by Alan Wiggins' bases-loaded triple.

Rick Camp, 11-13, was the

Giants 5, Dodgers 3

Morgan knew the Giants wouldn't hear the end of it from hometown fans if they hadn't beat the archrival Dodgers.

"All that people would have been talking about, if we hadn't won this game, was how we folded and lost the last three games to the Dodgers," said Morgan, 39.

Reliever Greg Minton, 10-4, was the winning pitcher. Tom Niedenfuer, 3-4, was the loser after leaving with runners on second and third before giving way to Terry Forster in the seventh.

Fernando Valenzuela, failing in his third and last opportunity for his 20th season victory, pitched the first six innings for the Dodgers, allowing only two hits and striking out nine. But he was In other games, Philadelphia removed in the top of the seventh beat New York 4-1, Montreal for a pinch hitter. Ron Cey hit his trimmed Pittsburgh 6-1 and 24th homer, a two-run shot in the

Phil Haddy, assistant sports information director at Iowa, who earlier in this college football season promised to shave his mustache to change the Hawkeyes' luck if Iowa lost to Iowa State. The Hawks did lose and Haddy did shave: "I cut my hair last year and Iowa went to the Rose Bowl. After we were 0-2 this year, I knew it was time to shave. Look, it worked. We're 2-2."
