Unlikely hero for the Irish

SOUTH BEND, IND. - The way Notre Dame keeps coming up with unlikely scripts for unlikely heroes, Saturday's 16-14 victory over Miami of Florida makes a fellow wonder if Rock and Leahy might still be calling some of the shots in football.

If you need a for instance, take the case of Mike Johnston, a senior placekicker from Rochester, N. Y., who made a total of two field goals in his prep career, and only tried about three times that many.

Johnston also played linebacker, with such little distinction that no one bothered trying to recruit him. It wouldn't have made any difference if they had, for the choice of his college had already been made.

"My father is a 1958 graduate of Notre Dame and I think he enrolled me here the day I was born," says Johnston.

So Mike happily came to the college of his father's choice, went out for football as a walk-on and has spent about $25,000 the last three years, mostly for the privilege of kicking off.

Last spring, with Harry Oliver done with competition, Coach Gerry Faust ealled Johnston aside and said the lad would have a scholarship for his final season. And just how grateful did Mike become? You wouldn't believe

The Fighting Irish, ranked No. 10 in the Associated Press poll, are undefeated at 4-0 and three of those victories were produced by the soceer-style kicking of Johnson, who has vet to miss this season.

His three field goals furnished the deciding points in a 23-17 victory over Michigan; his three field goals did the same in an 11-3 victory over Michigan State, and his three field goals Saturday allowed a come-frombehind victory over Miami.

No. 3, a 32-yarder, came with a mere 11 seconds remaining.

'He's already earned every penny of his scholarship," said Faust.

"Are you thinking of asking for it to be retroactive?" someone asked.

Johnston grinned. "What's retroactive?" he quipped.

FOR THREE QUARTERS, this was a very dull game. It had rained Heavily during the night, off and on during the day, and the game just sort of slogged along, until what seemed to be the game-breaker appeared. Mark Richt, who would still be Register Staff Writer AMES, IA. - Sensational Harold Brown rushed for a career-high 242 yards and scored three touchdowns Saturday in Iowa State's 44-7 victory over Kent State, but just as much excitement was generated after the game when the coaches got mad at each other.

However, the 49,930 spectators who watched the game on a windy, 53-degree afternoon, missed all the fireworks in the interview rooms. After Brown — who didn't even start

- piled up the second-highest one-game rushing total in Iowa State history, only newsmen were able to hear the coaches exchange insults.

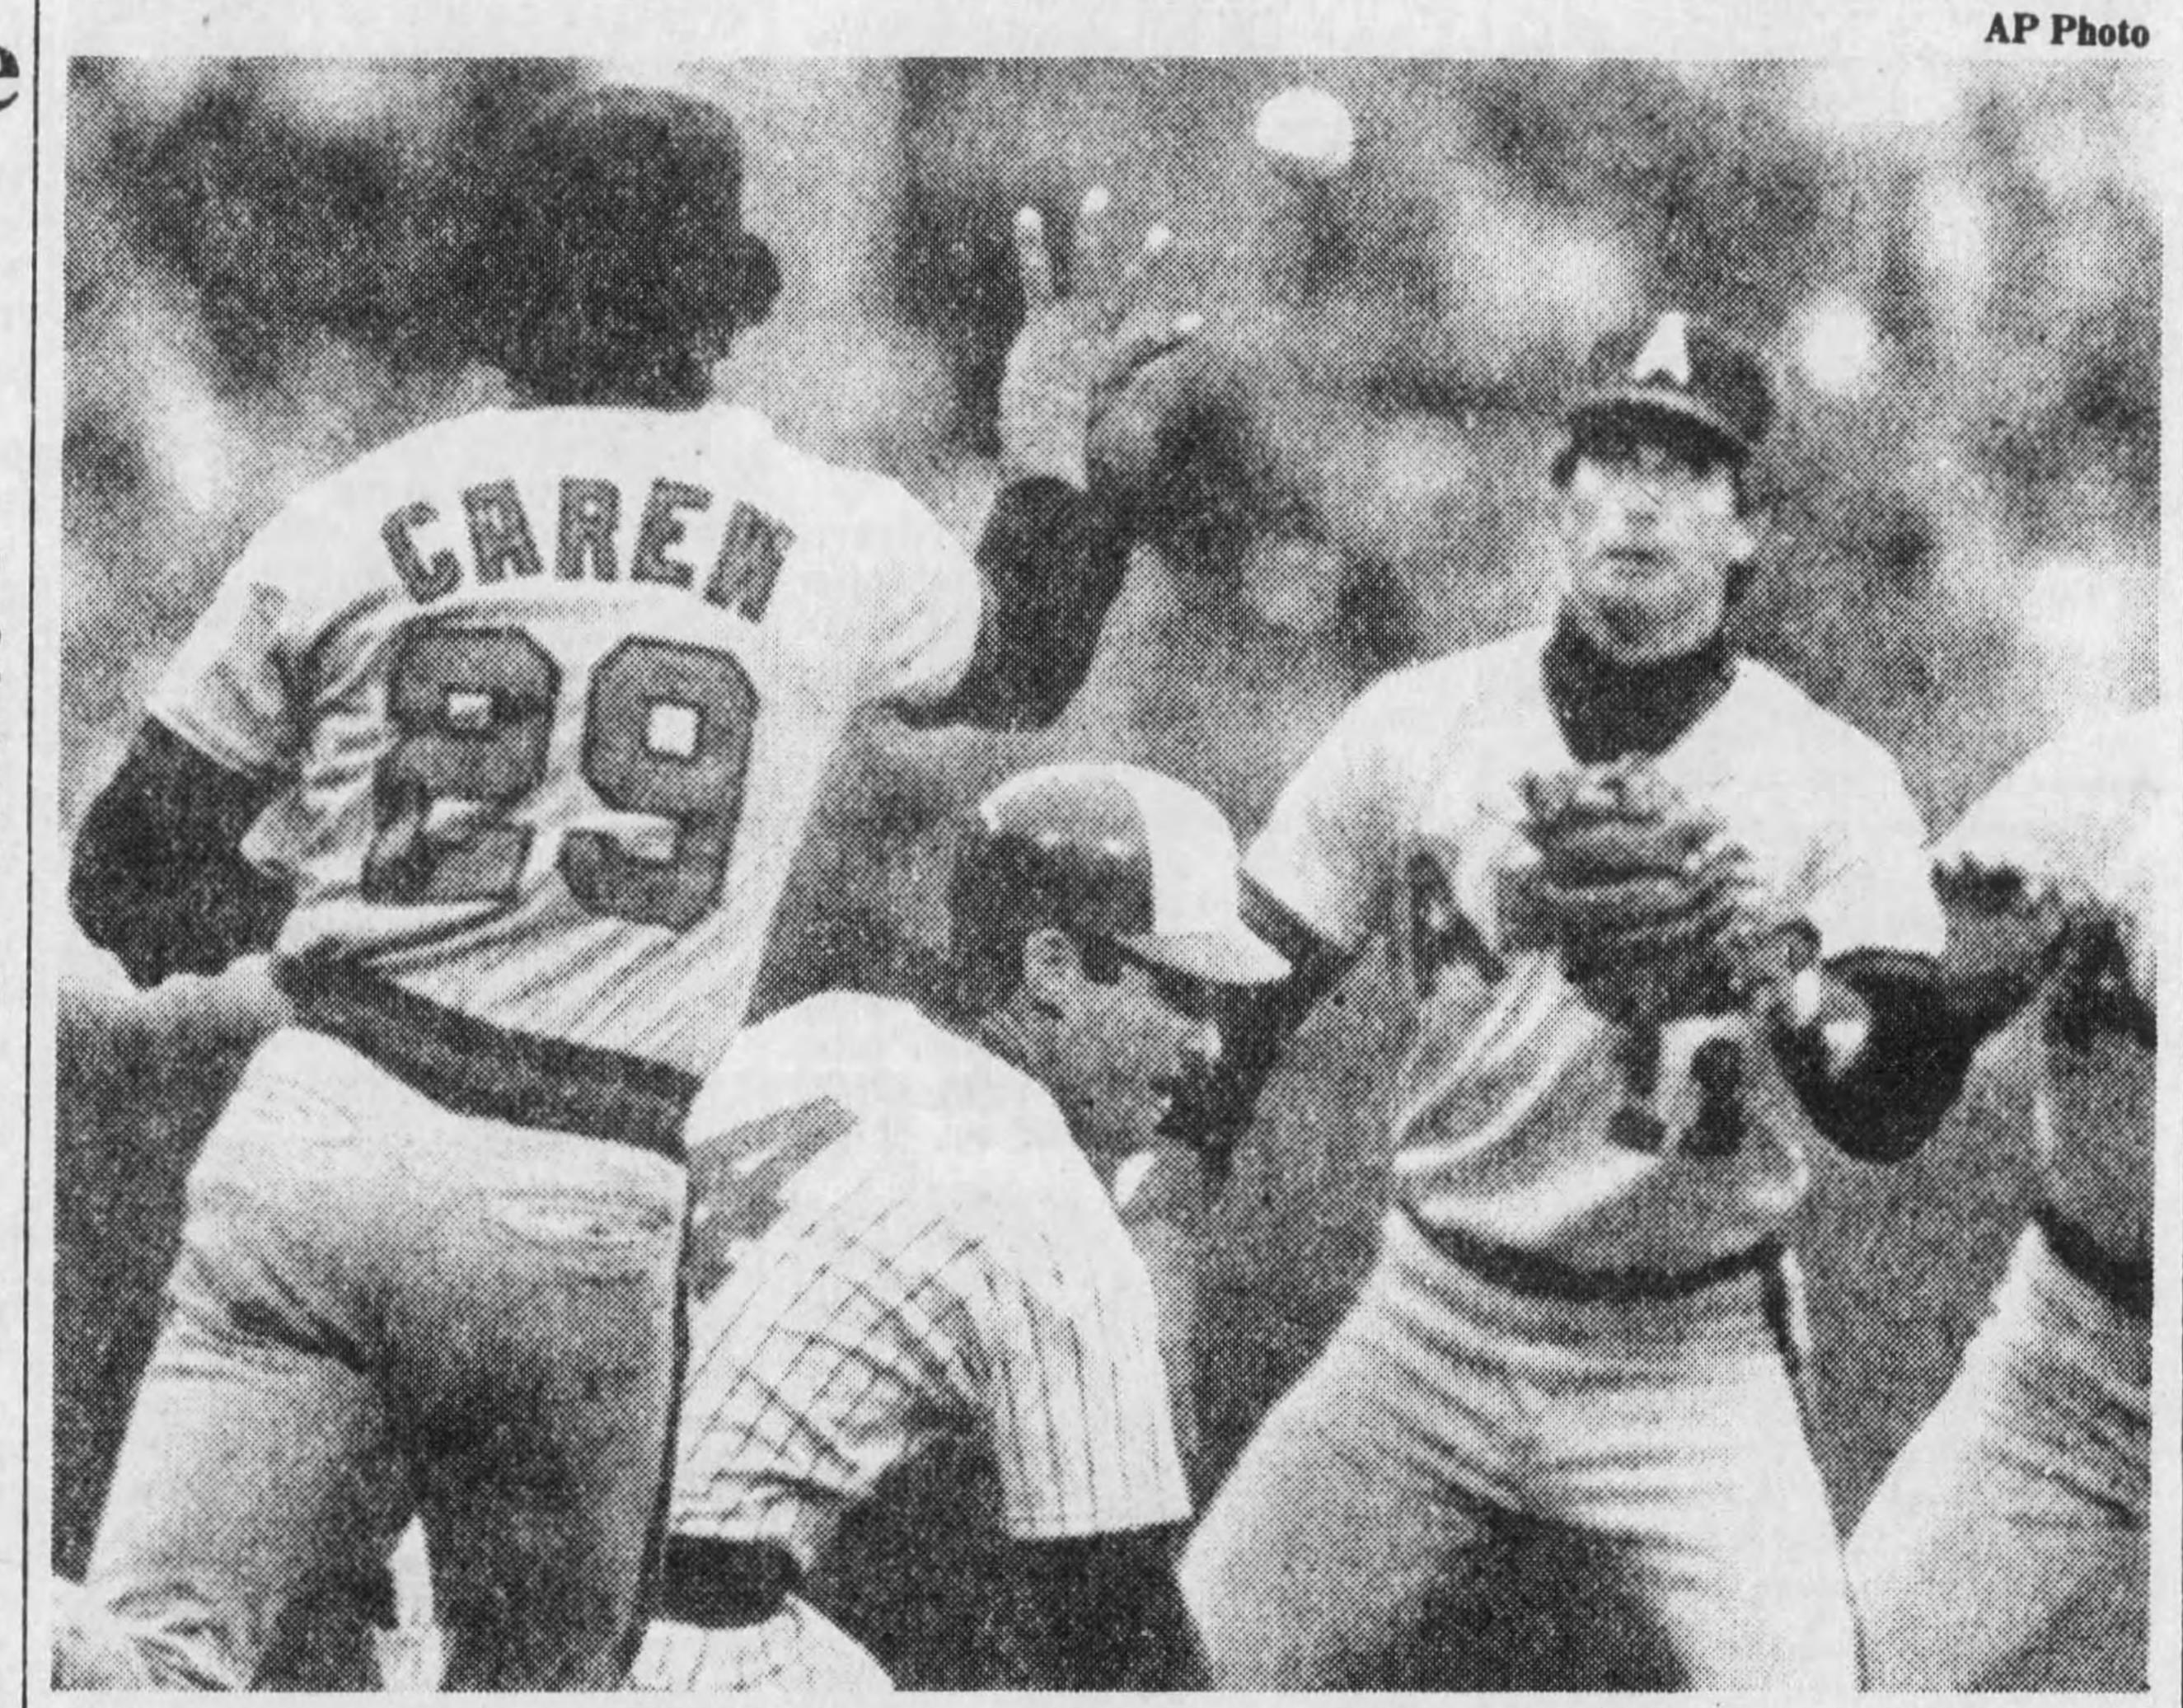

Kent State's Ed Chlebek, whose team is now 0-5, accused Iowa State's Donnie Duncan of running up the score - calling the Cyclones' performance in the final two minutes "totally bush."

Duncan, known for his low-key, easygoing manner, stepped out of character and shouted, "Frankly, don't give a damn," when informed of Chlebek's complaint.

Duncan's face reddened when he said, "Maybe it looked bush to Chlebek, but it looked more like damn poor defense to me" on a broken play with 48 seconds to go that enabled Iowa State freshman Al Watson to score on a 25-yard run.

"Watson is a fourth-team tailback who scored on a play we've never run before," said Duncan. "It came on a

Brewers roll, 9-5, deadlock series

No hits off Haas until 6th

MILWAUKEE, WIS. (AP) -Moose Haas allowed no hits for 53/3 innings and Milwaukee survived an eighth-inning grand slam home run by Don Baylor to tie the American League Championship Series at two games apiece with a 9-5 victory Saturday over the error-prone California Angels.

Mark Brouhard, a replacement for injured left fielder Ben Oglivie and starting his first game in Milwaukee's outfield since Sept. 5, drove in three runs — two with a homer in the eighth — and scored four times to break an American League Championship Series record and tie a major league playoff record.

Bench, bullpen produced stars

By MARC HANSEN

Register Staff Writer MILWAUKEE, WIS. - The rain was playing hide-and-seek all day, which must have been maddening for both Milwaukee and California. But for Moose Haas and Mark Brouhard, perhaps it was fitting.

The two players most responsible for Milwaukee's 9-5 victory over California - the two who did the most to even this best-of-five American League Championship Series at two games apiece - had been playing hide-and-seek all season.

The two had spent most of the last month watching the Brewers ebb and flow to the Eastern Division title, rather than taking an active part in it. Brouhard, a 26-year-old who summered in Vancouver as well as Milwaukee this year, hadn't played since mid-September, and wouldn't have knocked in four runs Saturday had Ben Oglivie not bounced his ribs against the left-field wall the day

Haas, who for all intents and purposes was exiled to the bullpen after Don Sutton's arrival at the end of August, likewise hadn't drawn a start since Sept. 13 when he pitched nine innings in an 11-inning, 4-3 loss to the Tigers.

For 5% innings Saturday, though, he had the longest no-hitter going (using minutes as a measure) in playoff history. Haas threw his first pitch at 1:39, and by the time o'clock rolled around he still hadn't given up a hit. There were two out in the sixth when Fred Lynn doubled down the right-field line for the Angels' first hit.

It was 4:15, and the reason it took California so long, other than Haas' splendid pitching, was the on-again, off-again rainfall that had League President Lee McPhail and his umpiring crew devoting more time to

However, the Hawkeyes twice had to stop the dangerous Hoosiers deep in Iowa territory to preserve their third straight triumph.

The game-savers were two alert defensive backs, freshman Devon Mitchell and junior Ron Hawley. Mitchell stopped Indiana tight end Scott McNabb at the Hawkeye two-yard line as time expired.

Earlier, Hawley intercepted one of busy Babe Laufenberg's passes also at the two - on a play that appeared to sew it up for the Hawks with not much more than a minute remaining.

Except the way Laufenberg was throwing and swift Duane Gunn was catching, you're never finished against the pass-minded Hoosiers.

is a valuable player, even in football. Quarterback Gary Yagelski, idelined last week because of strained cartilage in his rib cage, came out of the bullpen Saturday to lead Drake to a 31-12 victory over Western Illinois. Yagelski replaced starter Greg Ostrowski early in the second quarter with Drake trailing, 3-0. His first pass was intercepted, setting up a Western Illinois touchdown. From that point, however, it was vintage Yagelski. The senior signalcaller guided the Bulldogs to touchdowns on four of their next five possessions, scoring twice on runs of three and nine yards and tossing a 61-yard touchdown strike to Mike

Atlanta strategy fails, Cards win in 9th, 4-3

2-0 N.L. lead for St. Louis

ST. LOUIS, MO. (AP) - "I'm not sorry for what I did," said Atlanta Manager Joe Torre.

And with that simple statement, Torre explained a key strategy decision that backfired in the Braves' 4-3 loss to St. Louis in Saturday night's second game of the National League Championship Series.

With David Green, the game's winning run, on second base with one out and Ken Oberkfell coming up in the ninth inning, Torre strolled to the mound to talk with Gene Garber, ace of the Braves' bullpen.

The strategy seemed to call for an intentional walk, especially with Cardinal reliever Bruce Sutter on

A walk would have set up the potential inning-ending double play and forced Cardinal Manager Whitey Herzog to pinch-hit for Sutter, getting him out of the game if the contest went extra innings.

But Torre decided to pitch to Oberkfell, who was 6-for-10 lifetime against Garber before that at-bat.

He's 7-for-11 now after drilling a long single over the head of center fielder Brett Butler, delivering Green with the winning run in a victory that left St. Louis one triumph away from its first World Series appearance since 1968.

Why had Torre elected to pitch to Oberkfell?

"It was a question of Oberkfell or (probable pinch hitter Dane) lorg and Hernandez," the Braves' Manager

Sutter works his magic again

By BOB DYER Register Staff Writer

ST. LOUIS, MO. - For three days, the man St. Louis Cardinals radio announcer Jack Buck calls "Engine No. 42" had been in hibernation.

In the eighth inning Saturday night, Howard Bruce Sutter emerged from the bullpen for the first time in this National League Championship Series and, in typical fireman fashion, quickly dowsed an Atlanta Braves

It is hard to evaluate momentum in baseball, but when Sutter entered the game with runners on first and second, none out and St. Louis trailing, 3-2, his mere presence seemed to have an uplifting effect. Such is the hold the bearded reliever with the split-fingered fastball has on both teammates and the baseballcrazed fans of this city.

The red-clad Busch Memorial Stadium crowd of 53,408 roared "Bruce! Bruce!" as Sutter trotted into the fray, and when he escaped the eighth inning unscathed his effort put the crowd in a frenzy and set in motion a Cardinal rally.

St. Louis — unlike Atlanta — has not been a good come-from-behind club this year. Saturday night, however, the Cardinals tied the game with a run in the eighth and won it on Ken Oberkfell's one-out, run-scoring single in the ninth to take a commanding 2-0 lead in this best-of-five a whopping 156 yards, including a 52-yard bomb that gave Indiana an early 10-7 lead.

"Those guys are killers," said the happy Mitchell. "On the last play I knew they might be going to somebody other than Gunn. They had to figure we'd be covering him close down there.

"Laufenberg looked away from Gunn and saw his tight end open. But he didn't see me. I came up and hit him (McNabb) as hard as I could so he wouldn't fall into the end zone."

Laufenberg passed the Hoosiers downfield in the final minute, and with 46,412 homecoming fans screaming themselves hoarse, the drive reached Iowa's eight before Mitchell's decisive tackle.

"That was just a great win, as fine a team victory as I've ever been associated with," said Iowa Coach Hayden Fry.

"We have a bunch of guys who make a lot of mistakes, but they manage to overcome them with pure, outright hustle. If we hadn't been working our rumps off, Indiana would have run up 50 points."

Big Ten Leader

The Hawkeyes are now one of only three Big Ten teams still unbeaten in conference play. They're 2-0 and head home to face Michigan (3-0) in Iowa City next Saturday. Illinois tops the standings at 4-0.

The key scoring play for Iowa was a screen pass from Chuck Long to Norm Granger that covered 63 yards early in the second half, putting the Hawks ahead to stay, 21-17.

Tom Nichol added a 25-yard field goal on the first play of the final quarter, providing the necessary cushion that forced Indiana to go for a touchdown on those late forays.

"We just came up that short," said dejected Hoosier Coach Lee Corso, spreading his arms to show the distance by which Mitchell thwarted McNabb.

"I have to be proud of my team because we gave a good effort. Laufenberg had an outstanding game, considering he was playing on a bad ankle."

Laufenberg sprained the ankle a week ago at Michigan and it had bothered him in practice. He didn't drill with the Hoosier offense before the game, just limbering up his arm with some throws to Gunn.

What was Fry thinking about in those final frantic seconds when Indiana seemed on the verge of pulling it out?

"I was doing two things — praying and also hoping Coach Corso would foul it up. Those kids of his were on a as sad as I am happy the way we won it."

Another Hawkeye standout was freshman linebacker Larry Station, who was in on a game-high 15 tackles.

Big Play by Station

Station made another of the game's critical defensive plays when he threw Orlando Brown for an eight-yard loss on third-and-goal at Iowa's two late in the third period.

The Hoosiers then had to be content with Doug Smith's 25-yard field goal, which chopped the deficit to 21-20.

But there were enough of these important plays, crazy slips and slides, and missed opportunities on both sides to fill three games.

second play when Station and tackle Mark Bortz hit Hoosier tailback John Mineo so hard he fumbled the ball. Clay Uhlenhake made the first of his two recoveries at Indiana's 24.

Granger, who was the game's top rusher with 74 yards in 10 carries, led a quick advance to the Hoosier four in just three plays. But then Norm fumbled the ball back to Indiana at the one-foot line.

Fry. "At least the guys told me it wasn't. Norm was placing the ball down after being tackled, and the officials called it a fumble."

The Hawks then scored on their second possession when Eddie Phillips plowed over from the one en route to a 73-yard rushing day. Long's 21-yard pass to Mike Hufford was the big play in that advance.

The Hoosiers gave an indication of things to come on the first play after the next kickoff, Laufenberg and Gunn hooking up on a 37-yard pass. But they were stymied after getting to Iowa's 16 and Smith booted a field goal.

The first play of the second quarter produced Laufenberg's 52-yard strike to Gunn, who made a brilliant grab in full stride as he reached the goal line.

"I thought I had him covered that time," admitted Mitchell, "but he just ran right past me."

Meanwhile, Reggie Roby's booming punts had been prominent for the Hawks. His first two traveled 66 and 64 yards, but he finished with a 43.5 average on seven kicks — a mediocre mark for him.

72-Yard March

Midway in the second period Iowa marched 72 yards in 12 plays under Long's skillful direction, with Phillips scoring his second touchdown from the two, putting the Hawks back on top, 14-10.

The turf was slippery from a morning rain and both quarterbacks had trouble with their footing several

mes. Indiana muffed another scoring chance after reaching Iowa's one when Laufenberg faded to pass on fourth down and slipped to the turf for an eight-yard loss as he tried to plant his feet.

Tim Wilbur's 26-yard punt return got Indiana on the prowl again with a little more than a minute left in the half. And Laufenberg's 12-yard scoring pitch to John Boyd sent the Hoosiers off with a 17-14 lead at the intermission.

By that time Laufenberg had connected on 13 of 16 throws for 225 yards, and it was obvious the Hawks needed to put more heat on him or he might break the game open any minute.

Long Gets Hot

Long's play in the last half also was vital in the Hawkeye comeback. At one point he hit seven straight completions, winding up with 12 of 17 for 186 yards and no interceptions.

His 62-yard screen pass to Granger was Iowa's longest play of the season, which now finds the Hawks back above .500 at 3-2.

After the screen restored the lead for Iowa at 21-17 with the third of Nichol's conversions, the teams traded fumbles.

Brown, Indiana's top tailback, coughed one up to Uhlenhake at Indiana's 26. Brown, nursing a sore hip, did not start the game and was limited to only 13 yards in nine tries.

Iowa couldn't take advantage of this break because Gill, who played some of the time in relief of Granger at fullback, fumbled the ball right back to Indiana at the 22.

Blocked Punt

A little later Roby was back to punt at about his five, but Mark Weiler raced in to block it. The ball rolled out of bounds at the five.

But it was on this series that Station made his tackle on Brown for an eight-yard loss, forcing Smith's second field goal.

Iowa stormed right back for Nichol's matching three-pointer, which loomed so large down the stretch.

Long and Granger pulled off another successful screen, this one going for 15 yards, and Chuck then rifled a 32-yard pass to J.C. Love-Jordan down the left side to Indiana's 22.

Granger chalked up 12 more yards on a draw play. Two plunges by Phillips netted a one-yard loss.

Long's short pass to Granger only got the ball down to the seven as time ran out in the third quarter.

Nichol's field goal then set up all the scoreless tension that followed when the TV cameras finally zoomed in following the baseball game.

Saturday's victory was Iowa's third straight over Indiana and marked the first time in seven years that the Hoosiers failed to win their homecoming game.

Iowa totaled 395 yards, after collecting 894 in the two previous games, and that's quite an improvement for a team that could manage a combined net of only 292 in the first two starts against Nebraska and Iowa State.

"I don't mean to belittle Indiana," Fry said, "but we're so young that I'm just elated over winning a game like this."

It's just too bad all the TV viewers back in Iowa couldn't have enjoyed the whole works.

Late Hawkeye TV angers fans

By DEWEY KNUDSON

Irate Iowa Hawkeye fans took to their telephones Saturday to berate ABC television stations for broadcasting an American League playoff baseball game rather than the Iowa-Indiana football game.

"We've had a lot of four-letter words thrown at us," said Gregg Lagan, assignment editor at WOI-TV in Ames.

ABC was scheduled to carry the Milwaukee Brewers-California Angels baseball game first, then pick up the Hawkeyes at Indiana. But rain in Milwaukee forced the game there to start 1 hour 44 minutes late, and continued sprinkles halted the contest in the sixth inning.

Even though the Hawkeyes-Hoosiers kickoff was pushed back to accommodate the fourth American League championship game, television fans missed most of it in favor of the drawn-out baseball game.

At WOI, Lagan counted 206 phone calls by mid-afternoon. "We might get 20 or 30 calls on a (usual) Saturday afternoon, asking what games we are carrying," he said.

EVANSTON, ILL. (AP) — Northwestern broke a 38-game Big Ten losing streak as freshman quarterback Sandy Schwab ran for one touchdown and passed for another in a 31-21 upset over error-prone Minnesota.

Ricky Edwards rambled 147 yards in 28 carries and scored one touchdown for Northwestern, which raised its record to 1-3 in the conference and 2-4 overall.

Two weeks ago the Wildcats snapped a 34-game losing streak, a major college record. The last time they won a Big Ten game was Nov. 19, 1977, when they defeated Illinois, 21-7.

The Wildcats came back from a 21-3 deficit by scoring three touch-downs within a six-minute span midway through the game.

Quarterback Mike Hohensee, who entered the game as the Big Ten's leader in total offense, averaging 305 yards per game, completed just five of 13 passes for 50 yards and one touchdown. He was intercepted twice.

Minnesota, which entered the game leading the Big Ten in every major offensive category, used big defensive plays to set up scoring.

Wisconsin had lost 18 times and managed three ties in 60 years of playing in mammoth Ohio State Stadium.

Ohio State dropped its third straight home decision, losing that many in a row at home for the first time since 1967. Wisconsin, 2-1 in the Big Ten and 3-2 overall, relied on its defense in heavy rain to send the Buckeyes to their third defeat in five games. Ohio State is 1-1 in the Big Ten.

The Badgers drove 80 yards in their 14-play touchdown series, with tailback John Williams running the final yard.

Quarterback Randy Wright connected on three straight passes in the series and then hit two more before missing to break a school record with 15 consecutive completions over two games. Greg Bohlig had held the record with 12 straight over three games in 1974.

"This is probably my biggest win," said Coach Dave McClain amid the pandemonium in the Badgers' dressing room.

Ohio State Coach Earle Bruce blamed the Buckeyes' attack for the defeat.

"Our offense is inconsistent as the devil," he said. "I can hardly believe we would be shut out."

ANN ARBOR, MICH. (AP) — All-American wide receiver Anthony Carter set up two of Michigan's three first-half touchdowns and scored one himself in the third quarter as the Wolverines rolled to a 31-17 Big Ten football victory over winless Michigan State Saturday.

Carter's 14-yard touchdown grab gave him 31 for his career, breaking the Big Ten record formerly held by Indiana's Jade Butcher.

When Michigan State was unable to move on its first possession, punter Ralf Mojsiejenko boomed a 45-yard punt that Carter gathered in on his own 33, and he returned it to the Spartans' 17. Four plays later, Michigan quarterback Steve Smith ran it in from two yards out for a touchdown.

Michigan tailback Lawrence Ricks gave the Wolverines a 14-0 lead with a seven-yard touchdown run early in the second quarter.

connected on 28 of 40 passes for 358 yards. Campbell completed 21 of 46 passes, three for touchdowns, and totaled 265 yards.

Three of Purdue's touchdowns stemmed from Illinois fumbles and a fourth was set up in the final quarter on a pass interference infraction that gave the Boilermakers the ball on the one-yard line. From there, Rod Carter scored his second touchdown and Purdue took a 34-31 lead.

Minutes later, the Illini exploded for 68 yards in three plays with Eason unleashing a 50-yard touchdown pass to Mitch Brookins with 6 minutes 33 seconds left.

Campbell took Purdue to the Illinois 30 but his final pass attempt was caught out of the end zone by Derrick Taylor as time ran out.
