Dauer day for Phils: Birds win, 5-4

PHILADELPHIA, PA. (AP) -Rich Dauer led the charge of the light-hitting brigade Saturday, and Baltimore moved to within one game of winning its third World Series.

Dauer had been earning his pay with his glove, not his bat, but in Game Four he came alive on offense. He had two singles and a double, scored once and drove in three runs as the Orioles beat Philadelphia, 5-4.

That gave Baltimore a threegames-to-one lead in the best-of-seven series heading into Game Five today. The Orioles will send lefthander Scott McGregor, the loser of Game One, against rookie right-hander Charles Hudson of Philadelphia, the loser of Game Two.

One more victory is needed for Baltimore to celebrate, and Dauer noted that the Orioles this year have done some of their most important winning on the road.

"We haven't clinched anything at home yet," said Dauer, who hit .235 during the season and had only one hit in 26 postseason at-bats before breaking loose Saturday. "We clinched the division in Milwaukee and the pennant in Chicago. Win or lose, tomorrow we'll come back ready to play."

There was another guy on the field who was ready to play Saturday. That was Pete Rose, the Phillies' first baseman, who was benched and embarrassed Friday in Game Three. He was the heart of the Philadelphia attack Saturday, and though it wasn't enough, he wasn't ready to concede

Rosey Outlook

"All we've got to do is win three in a row," Rose said. "We've got to stop thinking about it and start doing it."

The Orioles won the Series in 1966 and 1970, but they remember all too well that they led Pittsburgh threegames-to-one in 1979 before losing in seven games.

That has happened only four other times in Series history, with Boston in 1903, Pittsburgh in 1925, the New York Yankees in 1958 and Detroit in 1968 all coming back from 1-3 deficits.

"I can hear the echo of some of the veterans saying we were here before and lost," said winning pitcher Storm

Davis. "I think we're going to bear down tomorrow."

The Orioles can make a bit of history themselves, since only three teams have lost the first game and then swept the next four. They were Boston in 1915, St. Louis in 1942 and the New York Mets in 1969.

20 Hits The two teams erupted for 10 hits apiece Saturday, the most by either club in the Series. And Dauer led the

His only previous postseason hit had been in Baltimore's victory in Game Two. He was lumped in a trio with Rick Dempsey and Todd Cruz, the 6-7-8 hitters in the Orioles' lineup, who had been dubbed the Three Stooges by teammate Ken Singleton for their inability to do anything right at the plate.

"I don't consider myself a hero," Dauer said. "We won as a 25-man team. The fact that our 3-4-5 hitters haven't been hitting has given us a chance to do something."

Orioles Manager Joe Altobelli particularly was pleased with his bullpen, which went 20 postseason Philadelphia scored with two out in the ninth, when pinch hitter Ozzie Virgil singled home pinch runner Bob Dernier.

Sammy Stewart limited the Phillies to one hit over 21/3 innings, and Tippy Martinez finished up with

Splashy win for Iowa; ISU skins Buffaloes

'Poor' Hawks overcome early Purdue scare, 31-14

DE-E-E-E-E-FENSE! Seemingly the entire Iowa squad swarms over outmanned Purdue tailback Mel Gray in Iowa City Saturday

By RON MALY

IOWA CITY, IA. - Just when it appeared Purdue might drown Iowa's Big Ten title hopes Saturday in the sea that masqueraded as plastic grass in Kinnick Stadium, the 14th-ranked Hawkeyes got their act together and remained afloat. "Did you ever see the day Iowa could win and be so bad?" Coach Hayden Fry asked newsmen after his Hawkeyes rallied from 7-0 and 14-7 deficits to win, 31-14, in the rain and set the stage for a showdown next Saturday with Michigan at Ann Arbor in a game that will be televised by

No, it wasn't a pretty victory for an Iowa squad that moved its overall record to 5-1 and its Big Ten log to 3-1. But things like freshman Robert Smith's 55-yard punt return for a touchdown and a strong defensive effort in the final 30 minutes brightened an otherwise so-so afternoon.

Thank goodness for artificial turf. The fake grass gets plenty of criticism around the nation, but this game would have been the Mud Bowl had it been contested on natural turf.

It rained hard during the morning and throughout part of the game. Iowa officials said they couldn't recall a more miserable afternoon for a game here since 1972, when Iowa tied Michigan State, 6-6, after which Duffy Daughterty, the Spartans' frustrated coach, cried in front of Big Ten Commissioner Wayne Duke and said he planned to resign.

Neither Fry nor Purdue Coach Leon Burtnett made any such rash decision following Saturday's

Gritty Cyclone victory, 22-10, boosts Criner's pride

ISU's victory spurs questions

AMES, IA. - There were several questions being asked often, or at least once in a while, Saturday as Iowa State ran its Big Eight victory string to two (count 'em, 2) games Saturday with a 22-10 victory over Colorado.

"Is the Danny Gantt who caught three of Dave Archer's passes for 28 yards and one touchdown the same

lowa State's Rodney Hutchins doesn't need help in this sack of Colorado quarterback Steve Vogel

By BOB DYER

Register Saff Writer AMES, IA. - Iowa State's 22-10 homecoming victory over Colorado here Saturday is continued evidence that two weeks in the life of a football team can make a world of difference. Prior to last week's 38-35 triumph over Kansas, rumors of a possible 1-10 season and winless Big Eight Conference campaign were circulating in these parts. Don't look now, but guess who is 3-3 overall and tied for the league lead at

"Three weeks ago (after a loss to New Mexico State), I was lower than a whale at the bottom of the ocean," Cyclone Coach Jim Criner admitted. "It would have been easy for us to fold. A lot of teams have. I'm very proud of the raw guts our football players have shown."

Raw guts, plus an improved running game to complement the already effective passing of quarterback David Archer, has the Cyclones on a mini-roll. An aggressive, quicker defense hasn't hurt, either.

"I can't do anything unless everyone else is doing well," Archer

The senior signal-caller completed 19 of 31 passes for 200 yards and two touchdowns, giving him five straight 200-yard-plus outings. Criner called Archer "the cornerstone of a football team that is trying to get its act together."

Jacobs' Best

Archer's first scoring strike, a 64-yarder, came courtesy of the nimble feet of Jason Jacobs.

The senior fullback hauled in a swing pass, slipped a couple of tackles, and tightroped down the sidelines to put the Cyclones in front, 7-0, with 7 minutes 39 seconds remaining in the first quarter.

Hawkeyes' big play gave offense a little rest

IOWA CITY, IA. - The old Rose Bowl crew wouldn't believe this bunch. The team that went to Pasadena two seasons back probably played field position in the shower.

Impeccable ball control, not to mention a defense that consumed miniature poodles at training table, was the name of that act. Imagine Gordy Bohannon, Ron Hallstrom and the rest of the Iowa offense spending a scant 26 minutes on the plastic grass - and still winning. Winning 31-14, no less.

That's what happened Saturday, though. Purdue and the Scott Campbell offensive express spent nearly 34 minutes on the field. Fortunately for the Hawkeyes, approximately 75 percent of that time was spent in fruitless pursuit of the goal

In the meantime, lowa's quarterback, Chuck Long, must have felt like a designated hitter; he spent so much time on the sideline watching Iowa's defense flex but rarely snap. These were the big-play Hawks. Go for the fence like Greg Luzinski then sit back

Look at the play-by-play if you don't believe it. In the first three quarters, while the Hawkeyes were designing the final score, they rang up eight plays that went for more than 20 yards. They would have had two more, too, but penalties for offsides and holding took away 53 additional passing yards. Here's the rundown:

LONG TO OWEN Gill for 33. Long to Dave Moritz for 31. Long to Moritz for 37. Long to Jonathan Hayes for 21. Robert Smith, 55-yard punt return. Long to Ronnie Harmon for 38. Long to Harmon for 29. Harmon around end for 24.

Not to get bogged down in statistics, but Purdue ran 92 plays to Iowa's 58. One for you, one for me that isn't. In the end, of course, quality beats the bejabbers out of quantity.

In the first half, the Hawkeyes looked like something out of the old American Football League. Though Long cast a disdainful eye on the sideline pass, he didn't heartily endorse the big-play theory. You just take what you can, Long theorized.

"Actually," he said, "we went into the game thinking ball-control, but they gave us some big gains early and never adjusted to it. They shut down the running game at first, but their defense couldn't cover the middle."

Hayden Fry, the chief architect of Saturday's victory, said the boys looked a tad sloppy. They were charged with 65 yards worth of penalties, so he had a point. Fact is, though, the '83 version doesn't have to be all starch and stiff collars. This team can afford to wear its shirt tail out every once in a while.

MAYBE, AGAINST Michigan next Saturday, the Hawkeyes will return to their spit-and-polish, ball-control ways. At the same time, Bo Schembechler will be wary. This is no wolf dressed in sheep's clothing.

"We didn't execute very well in the second half," Long said. To be sure, his 8-for-18 passing on the day wasn't the 23-for-33 he piled up against Northwestern the week before. And Saturday's 216-yard passing effort doesn't hurt the eyes the way that 420-yard work of art did the week before. Still, 27 yards per completion isn't exactly bottom shelf.

"We had some breakdowns," Purdue Coach Leon Burtnett said. "They were really throwing on our linebackers. When we get the films we'll see that our linebackers were there, but they weren't athlete enough to make the play."

At first, the group with the flat tire and the faulty alternator seemed to be the Iowa defense. Fry's defenders haven't been all that rigid this year especially when compared with the past two seasons. Coming into Saturday's game they ranked fifth overall in the Big Ten. Against the pass they were eighth.

And they came in without tackle Paul Hufford. His replacement, redshirt freshman Jeff Drost, filled in and took awhile to get acclimated. This might account, in part anyway, for the way Campbell sliced through the Hawkeyes in the first quarter. Burtnett even admitted the Boilermakers tried to take advantage of Hufford's absence.

Afterward, Drost smiled a shy little smile and spilled a confession of his

"YEAH," HE SAID. "In the first half they kind of ran right over me. I was probably a little too nervous at the start, but Coach explained some things to me at half — he told me to relax and play looser — and I played a little better. I finally got my act together and did what he's been teaching me to do."

Drost had been in for 25 plays against Iowa State, and maybe nine or 10 other plays before Saturday. In sum, he was green as a gourd. The last two seasons, members of the Iowa defensive line grew gray beards and were wondering about their Social Security checks.

A slight exaggeration maybe — all right, a huge exaggeration — but how else does one account for Iowa's vacillating now-you-see-it, now-youdon't defense? It was the same sleight of hand Saturday. Weak first half, solid second half. No, make that

One theory holds that Iowa's big-play attack takes a bit more out of the defenders — at least more than the steady, eat-up-the-clock strong last three quarters.

approach. It keeps them on the field more, remember?

"It's something to think about," said Larry Station, Iowa's prize sophomore linebacker. "Last year we thought the defense was the one who'd have to win the game for us. This year maybe we think we don't have to play that well because of the offense. Maybe we lose a little intensity because of it."

Maybe. But when the Hawkeyes fell behind, 7-0, then again, 14-7, any complacency was gone with the wind. It's a theory anyway.

The theory wasn't advanced on Fry. He was too busy talking about penalties and how unbelievable it is that an Iowa (of all people) can play that badly and still win.

Win by 17 points, too. See, he wanted to give some of the reserves more playing time and was disappointed because he couldn't. Iowa has more than a few seniors who won't be around next year, don't forget.

COLUMBIA, MO. - Although the final score certainly didn't indicate it, Nebraska's No. 1 national ranking was in serious jeopardy until Missouri made a fatal mistake here Saturday.

The underdog Tigers had a first down on Nebraska's one-yard line late in the third quarter, thanks to a pass-interference penalty, and a touchdown at that stage would have produced a 20-20 tie.

Instead, Missouri quarterback Marlon Adler fumbled the snap from center and tackle Mike Keeler alertly pounced on it for the Cornhuskers.

From there Nebraska methodically rumbled 97 yards in 17 plays for the clinching score before a sellout crowd of 72,348 and a national TV audience, making it look like just another routine 34-13 victory — the team's 17th in a row, longest current winning streak in college football.

"Had Missouri gone ahead and tied the score, it would have been anybody's game," said Coach Tom Osborne, whose Huskers now are 7-0 this season and still fairly secure as the nation's top-ranked team.

"I was pleased that we hung in there and didn't panic, because this was a real struggle all the way, just as we figured it would be."

Three Great Efforts

As usual, the Huskers got exceptional performances from their three brilliant senior offensive stars, all of whom are worthy Heisman Trophy candidates.

But perhaps the best of all was turned in by the one with the least chance of earning that honor, wingback Irving Fryar, who caught seven passes for 95 yards and two touchdowns.

Fryar woke up early Saturday morning with an attack of stomach flu. Nobody would have guessed he was ailing, not by the way he played, except he had to sit out the entire second quarter.

"I'm still sick," Fryar said in the dressing room. "I threw up at the motel, on the bus coming to the stadium, and then again on the field.

"But there comes a time when you just have to suck it up, and that's what I had to do. I just did the best I

It was Fryar who hauled in a 4-yard pass from Turner Gill for the touchdown that capped the decisive 97-yard march. He also caught a 38-yarder for Nebraska's first score.

Gill and I-back Mike Rozier also had games befitting Heisman Trophy candidates. Turner hit 14 of his 18 passes for 151 yards. Rozier churned out 159 yards in 24 carries and scored two touchdowns. One came on a 60-yard burst to give the Huskers a 20-10 lead in the second quarter, and the other from 10 yards out wrapped up the victory.

"These guys never have bad games," Osborne said in praising his three standouts. "They are good team players, too, and I think that's unusual when you have Heisman Trophy candidates like that on the same team."

Draws First Blood Missouri opened the scoring on a six-yard run by Adler in the first quarter and got its other points on a pair of field goals by Brad Burditt.

The Tigers closed the gap to 20-13 on Burditt's second one, a 30-yard kick with just 1 second remaining in the first half.

Missouri took the second-half kickoff and drove inside Nebraska's 10 before surrendering the ball when fullback Eric Drain missed a first down by inches at the 9.

Then came the advance that had Tiger partisans dreaming of an upset. In a fourth-and-1 situation at Missouri's 45, Coach Warren Powers decided to gamble rather than punt the ball away. Adler kept the ball and picked up a crucial 2 yards.

On the next play Craig White made an incredible catch of an Adler pass at the Husker eight, taking the ball away from cornerback Dave Burke for a 45-yard gain.

Burke then was guilty of pass interference in the end zone, giving Mizzou a first down at the 1 preceding Adler's fumble.

"I think our two nose guards, Mike Tranmer and Ken Graeber, forced that fumble," said the happy Keeler of his key recovery. "They just stuffed the center, and all of a sudden I saw the ball lying on the ground."

Lost Heart Powers, whose team suffered its third loss in six games, said what was plain for all to see.

"That fumble near the goal line seemed to take the heart right out of our team," said Powers.

"I have never seen Marlon do that before. He didn't mishandle any other snaps the whole game, but that was a tough mistake to make."

Adler put on a fine display otherwise against the rugged Huskers, accounting for 208 yards in total offense. He completed 12 of 17 passes for 17 yards and netted another 29 in 18 carries.

And then the most asked question of them all: "Is the Jason Jacobs out there banging out 69 yards in 15 tries the same Jason Jacobs who netted a mere 135 rushing yards in five previous games?"

Once again the answer is a resounding "Yes."

JACOBS IS A 6-foot 1-inch, 229-pound senior fullback who has been most prominent this season for 1. blocking; 2. catching passes. Indeed, the most spectacular thing he did against the Buffs was to capture a short flip from Archer and finish out a 64-yard journey for Iowa State's first touchdown.

It was the first of two scores for Jacobs, the second coming on a 1-yard smack. Does it surprise you that the second may have been the most satisfying to the author? Fullbacks are supposed to smash. Can you ever remember anyone raving about the great hands of a Bronko Nagurski?

"I was glad to be running more," admits Jacobs, a home economics major who has never taken a single class in cooking or sewing, and who also will choose a more serious major soon. "I want to be known as the back

Somehow, during a busy afternoon, his right hand had been stepped on or otherwise bruised and Jacobs winced a lot as people kept coming along, wanting to shake on his good game. Between winces, he explained an extra incentive.

"Colorado helped us a lot today," he said. "They said we couldn't run against their defense and that was their advantage. Coach put it to us as a challenge, so we made a special point to run, particularly in the first ARCHER KNOWS ABOUT stirring up deals. A couple of weeks ago, after a 24-17 loss to a New Mexico State team that came here as an underdog, Dave was quoted to the effect that the offensive line had been less than sparkling.

"A lot of things were involved, including me being caught coming off the field in an emotional state of mind," says Archer, the senior from Soda Springs, Idaho, who can wheel that ball, given a chance. "But now, I really feel good. Instead of an adverse reaction, I think it helped Oklahoma, guided by quarterback Danny Bradley, struck back.

Bradley's 73-yard swing pass to Derrick Shepard made it 20-10 and Spencer Tillman's 5-yard plunge and a two-point conversion pass from Bradley to Earl Johnson cut the gap to 20-18 with 2:50 left.

Oklahoma then successfully executed an onsides kick, recovering at midfield, and Bradley tossed two quick passes to get the Sooners within scoring range.

The drive stalled at the Oklahoma State 28, but Lashar, who had hit just one of three field goal attempts all year, drilled his 46-yarder to complete the comeback. The fourth-quarter heroics overshadowed a near-disastrous performance in which the Sooners lost six fumbles, had a pass intercepted and were whistled for 145 yards in penalties.

The Cowboys put 14 points on the board in the first half without earning a first down by rush or pass.

The Cowboys had their 14-3 halftime advantage with only two first downs and 28 yards total offense. They finished the game with five first downs, 81 yards rushing and 120 yards total offense.

LAS VEGAS, NEV. (AP) - Quarterback Raphel Cherry accounted for 313 yards and the Hawaii defense shut down high-powered Nevada-Las Vegas Saturday for a 23-0 victory. Cherry completed 12 of 27 passes for 256 yards and one touchdown and rushed for 57 yards on 15 carries as the Rainbows raised their season record to 2-2-1. The Rebels fell to 3-3.

McEnroe gains Aussie finals

SYDNEY, AUSTRALIA (AP) -John McEnroe, bidding to win the $255,000 Australian Indoor Tennis Championship for the fourth straight year, took only 61 minutes Saturday to beat fellow American Chip Hooper, 6-4, 6-1, in a semifinal match at the Sydney Entertainment Center. The top-seeded McEnroe, who negated Hooper's booming serve, will meet fifth-seeded Henri Leconte in today's final.

Leconte won his semifinal match over Australian Paul McNamee, who struggled through the final two sets of the match after bursting a blister on his heel. Leconte won 6-7, 6-4, 6-0. McEnroe, ranked the world's No. 1 player, was in superb form against the unseeded Hooper. The left-handed Wimbledon champion overcame Hooper's thunderous serves with almost contemptuous ease and mixed up his shots smartly against his inexperienced opponent. The first nine games went with service before McEnroe, impeccably behaved throughout, took charge, breaking Hooper in the 10th game.

McEnroe, who hasn't lost a set in the tournament in four years, won the first set in 36 minutes. The second set was even quicker - 25 minutes, as McEnroe broke Hooper in the second ally, is now 5-0-1. St. Ambrose is and sixth games. Hooper noted that a couple of close calls went against him. "The officials are so intimidated by him, you have to get some bad calls," Hooper said.

encounter, which was played before a sellout crowd of 66,105 that included representatives from five bowls the Cotton, Holiday, Peach, Liberty Pun and Citrus.

Beating Purdue has always been tougher for Iowa than selling fur coats in the Congo, so it should come as no great surprise that this one was a struggle for the Hawks. The Boilermakers had won 21 of the previous 22 games of the series, but Iowa has now claimed the last two played here.

3-Touchdown Underdog

Purdue came into the game a three-touchdown underdog, but got a 264-yard passing performance from Scott Campbell and had the ball for 7 minutes more than Iowa.

"I'm disappointed with the inconsistency of our offense," said Fry. "But it was a win. And we did something last year's Peach Bowl team didn't do - beat Purdue.

"I can't believe we could play that poor offensively in the second half and still win, 31-14. We really disintegrated. It looked like Purdue was going to blow us out of the tub, but then our young guys settled down."

Iowa owned a 24-14 lead at intermission, then applied a whitewash job to the Boilermakers, who have improved since a 52-6 loss to Notre Dame in their opener and now stand

1-4-1 for the season. The only touchdown of the final half came when Owen Gill's 1-yard smash with 1 minute 35 seconds left in the third quarter climaxed an 82-yard, 12-play drive.

But easily the most exciting scoring play of the game came with 2:46 left in the second period when Smith, the freshman from Dallas, Texas, with blazing speed, returned a punt 55 yards for a touchdown.

Smith appeared to be shot out of a cannon when he roared downfield. Believe it, it was a total mismatch when he was confronted by Purdue's defensive backs. The Boilermakers couldn't have caught him with radar.

"Before that run," said Smith, "] was starting to lose my confidence. I'd been second-guessing myself and was frustrated because I hadn't been doing as well as I should.

"But Coach Bill Brashier (assistant head coach and defensive coordinator) had faith in me. He mentioned that it was time for me to do it."

Smith said he "saw daylight" when the ball was kicked in line-drive fashion by Purdue's Walt Drapeza. "The Purdue ends weren't up as far as they were supposed to be," Smith added, "and I made up my mind to take the ball and run."

Smith said it was the first punt return he has ever had for a touchdown.

"When I was a sophomore in high school, the opposing teams began punting the ball away from me," he commented. " But I returned four

Record 51 Passes

Purdue had 26 first downs to Iowa's 18 and almost totaled as much yardage as the Hawkeyes. The Boilermakers wound up with 403 to Iowa's 428, mostly because Campbell attempted a stadium-record 51 passes and completed 28.

Some of the game's biggest moments came when it was raining the hardest. Football people have always said that rain is a great equalizer, and that was certainly the case Saturday. When the wet stuff was coming down in sheets, Purdue was giving Iowa fans heart failure.

Yellow and orange appeared to be the school colors of both teams. That was because so many spectators were dressed in raincoats. And when Campbell sneaked a yard for the game's first touchdown with 5:22 left in the first quarter, Iowa's fans were wondering if this was going to be a repeat of the Boilermaker Jinx.

that made it 7-0. But Iowa then went 90 yards in seven plays — the biggest of which were Chuck Long passes of 33 yards to Owen Gill and 31 to Dave Moritz — to tie it.

Gill, who comes at opposing lines like a bulldozer, ran 2 yards for the touchdown, and Tom Nichol kicked the first of four extra points to forge

But Purdue demonstrated that it didn't make the trip from West Lafayette, Ind., just so its players could watch the school's sensational marching band perform before the game and at halftime. The Boilermakers jumped in front, 14-7, on a 12-yard pass from Campbell to No. 2 tight end Marty Scott with :41 gone in the second period. Long, running out of the shotgun formation, provided the tying touchdown on a 5-yard run with 11:24 left in the half. The 80-yard drive had started with Long's 37-yard pass to Campbell had a streak of seven completions going before being intercepted by Mike Stoops at the Boilermaker 46. Even though Long was sacked for an 8-yard loss on thirdand-7, Nichol came in to kick a 45-yard field goal that sent Iowa in front, 17-14, with 6:27 left in the half.

Smith's punt return made it 24-14. But Purdue finished the half with a possession time of 19:10 to Iowa's 10:50. The Boilermakers had 242 yards to Iowa's 190. Indeed, Boilermaker fans had reason to start asking for a recount.

"I don't think the rain was an advantage for either team," said Burtnett. "Iowa is a good team. They're just too physical for us right

"Smith's punt return really put us into a different position. Before that, t was just a three-point lead for Iowa. When we got down by 10 points and our defense wasn't really sensational at that time, it just put us into a different position."

Hawks Hurting

Burtnett said Iowa's blitzing in the last half was important. "They just got ahead of us and that was the difference in how they were able to defense us," he commented.

Fry said he wasn't pleased with Iowa's running attack - "and, by that, I mean both the blocking and rushing. We've got a lot of work to fibs" about his injury situation.

Neither Hufford - defensive tackle Paul and tight end Mike - was able to play. Fry said John Alt had to fill in at tight end, Lon Olejniczak couldn't play and Eddie Polite underwent surgery last week.

"We did a pretty good juggling act," Fry admitted. Jeff Drost started at Paul. Hufford's spot and was the object of Purdue's rushing game early. "But I didn't want to listen to our coaches yelling at me," he said after the game, "so I adjusted. The coaches told me to relax."

Illinois and Michigan (both 4-0-0) lead the Big Ten. So the Hawkeyes' game Saturday at Ann Arbor has great significance.

"I've said all along that I don't think any team will go through unbeaten," said Fry. "I feel next Saturday's game will be a very good one, even though I don't like the idea of playing at Ann Arbor."

But two years ago, Iowa won at Ann Arbor, 9-7, and a half-dozen games later the Hawkeyes were playing in the Rose Bowl.

Fry said he's "had to tell a lot of Clemson's Flowers blossoms in win

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) - Tailback Kenny Flowers rushed for 112 yards and two second-half touchdowns, and Clemson deflected a fourth-down pass with a minute left to hold off Duke, 38-31, Saturday in Atlantic Coast Conference football.

Quarterback Ben Bennett rallied the Blue Devils from a 31-10 deficit early in the third period with three touchdown passes, including 14-yarder to tailback Mike Grayson to make it 38-31 with 5 minutes 5 seconds left.

After Duke forced Clemson (4-1-1) to punt for only the second time, Bennett drove the Blue Devils (0-6) to the Tiger 9-yard line. But Bennett's fourth-down pass was deflected at the line of scrimmage by defensive tackle James Robinson with 1:06 remaining.

Bennett completed 34 of 53 passes for 367 yards and a career-high four touchdowns. With the effort, Bennett moved into fifth place on the NCAA career passing yardage list with 8.160 yards.
