A last chance — lost

From the sidelines Saturday, Hawkeye kicker Tom Nichol watched his chance for a game-winning field goal trampled by an lowa fumble and Michigan's offense. Likewise, lowa's chances to play in Pasadena may have vanished in the Ann Arbor drizzle.

A No. 70 on Hawk's heartbreak scale

It is 48 hours now since Michigan defeated Iowa 16-13 on a nextto-last play of the game field goal. It still hurts.

Not the agonizing, excruciating pain of the moment when the knife was driven into Hawkeye hearts, but more like a dull toothache. It doesn't want to go away.

Man and boy, I've been watching Iowa football for something like 45 years and I've become an expert at reporting heartbreak. I could write a book not only about routs, but about games Iowa has lost in the final minutes in various ways you wouldn't believe unless you were there.

This might have been the toughest one to swallow in all those years, not only because of the manner in which it happened, but because of the magnitude and importance of the game.

This one was especially cruel because only minutes before the tragic denouement, the Hawkeyes seemed on their way to one of the greatest triumphs in school history. The only question seemed to be how far would Iowa get, and how far would it let the clock run down, before Tom Nichol was sent in to kick the clinching field goal.

Alas, came Owen Gill's fumble and some clutch plays by Michigan under pressure and the script turned into an O. Henry ending.

In final analysis, we must first give credit to "The Victors," much as it might pain us to do so. Michigan fought hard, played well, and made the big plays at the end. Michigan expects to win games like that. It's tradition. When they didn't win 10-9 in a similar situation against Iowa two years ago I almost fell out of the press box, and Michigan players, coaches and fans seemed in a state of shock.

It doesn't help ease Iowa's pain much, but again I go back to Illinois fans tearing down the goal posts after beating Iowa. Isn't that a change? This time, Michigan fans staged a wild celebration that lasted many minutes after the game had ended, and Bo Schembechler called it "a great, great victory." Not so long ago, Bo took victories over Iowa for granted.

Monday, October 24, 1983

BEIRUT, Lebanon — U.S. Marines reinforced security barriers, bulldozed smoldering rubble and awaited replacements today after a suicide terrorist bombing that killed 183 comrades, left an undetermined number dead under tons of concrete and wounded at least 75.

A second terrorist bombing seconds later killed 23 French soldiers, left 35 missing and wounded 15, the French Defense Ministry said. French President Francois Mitterrand made a surprise visit to Beirut and inspected the carnage but told reporters: "I have no declarations to make."

The Marines added sentries, set up more checkpoints and parked large trucks across all roads leading to their compound at Beirut's international airport, forcing all vehicles to halt for security shake-

Moslems, oil led U.S. to Lebanon, Ul experts say

By JOHN CAMPBELL Press-Citizen Reporter

The U.S. government's desire to prevent Lebanon from being dominated by Moslems who might sympathize with Soviet interests led to the U.S. Marines' involvement in Lebanon in 1982, University of Iowa political scientists said

In addition, said several professors familiar with Mideastern politics or energy economics, the Reagan administration has a long-term interest in ensuring stable oil prices and supply from that

That concern for a steady supply of oil to the U.S. shadows any decisions U.S. policymakers will make in response to Sunday's bomb attack on Marines stationed in Beirut.

But the UI Mideast-watchers agreed that it's unlikely President Reagan will approve a pullout of Marines, because he believes it would lead to more blood spilled by warring factions and a takeover by radical Moslems.

Said James Murray, UI professor of political science, "If the purpose (of the bombing) was to get us out, it will have the opposite effect. Now it's impossible for Reagan to publicly rethink our military commitment there."

WASHINGTON — The Marines will stay in Lebanon, President Reagan has told a nation mourning the deaths of young servicemen to an unseen enemy and a Congress souring on the peacekeeping mission that sent them there. Today, Reagan's spokesman said, "The president is firm, determined, resolute in the wake of the sad and tragic incident."

As the capital sought to cope with the aftermath of the terror attack on the Marines' barracks, these developments occurred:

• The Pentagon announced a new death toll from the truckbombing of the barracks at Beirut International Airport: 183 dead. In addition, 75 wounded have been taken to hospitals outside Lebanon, the Pentagon said.

 House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill said he would call together "all the chairmen of committees that have anything to do with defense" today. "We're going to have a complete review of why we're there and whether it is worthwhile to keep our boys there for diplomatic reasons."

 Abdallah Bouhabib, the Lebanese ambasador to the United States, extended his government's condolences and sorrow to the families of the victims, but said the multnational peacekeeping force is crucial to Mideastern stability — and even America's own interests.

· Gen. Paul X. Kelley, the Marine Corps commandant, left nearby Andrews Air Force Base for Beirut. The general said his purpose was "to pay my personal respects to our dead, to visit with some of those who have been seriously injured and, also, to visit with those that will remain."

The tragedy in Beirut Sunday takes its toll on one of the U.S. Marines helping in the rescue operations. The death toll from the suicide bombing of the Marine command center continues to · Larry Speakes, the president's spokesman, asked if Reagan regretted sending the Marines to Lebanon, said, "No, he thinks they're essential. He think the Middle East is far too important for the Marines to withdraw.

Even before he knew how high the death tolls would climb from a truck-bomber attack on sleeping leathernecks at the airport, Reagan decided he could not now abandon the Marines' year-old

While the Pentagon began a grim wartime ritual - the sending of death messengers to the homes of the dead Marines and sailors - Reagan dispatched Speakes to give the administration's response:

The Pentagon, officials said, is studying two possibilities: shuttling Marines to offshore vessels when they are not on duty to make fewer men vulnerable to attack at any one time, and expanding the perimeters of the territory protected by U.S. forces to give those within greater security.

Administration officials, speaking on the understanding they would not be quoted by name, told reporters that a Marine pullout is unlikely because it could lead to a bloodbath among warring Lebanese factions and a takeover by radicals.

"Once we are there, we just can't go home," one official said. The best option, said another, is to "stay the course and just try to improve security."

Should U.S. be in Lebanon? Some say 'yes'; others, 'no'

ROUSH

By KRISTIE BUNTON Press-Citizen Reporter

Iowa Citian Craig Johnson says the United States government "reaped what it sowed" when at least 183 U.S. Marines, sent to Lebanon as part of a multinational peacekeeping force, were killed this

"We shouldn't have even been there in the first place," Johnson of 528 S. Dubuque St., said today.

Johnson was among several local residents in downtown Iowa City asked for their comments today. Some, like Johnson, said they believed the U.S. should pull out of Beirut.

Others said Marines should be kept in Lebanon, in an effort to bring peace to the divided country.

And still others, hurrying along the streets braced against the damp, chilly morning, said they had no thoughts on what the U.S. role in the Mideast should be.

year-old University of Iowa student, also said U.S. forces should be sent home from Lebanon. "I was really surprised when I heard about it. I didn't really understand it," Fujimagari, of 630 S. Johnson St., said. "But then when I heard more, I thought (U.S. Marine presence in Beirut) was pretty unnecessary. I don't see any reason for us to stay after what's happened."

But Steve Roush, a 22-yearold UI student, said the Marines should not pull out of Lebanon hastily.

"We should be there to maintain order for the time being," said Roush, of 421 S. Capitol St. "And I wouldn't suggest any strong retalia-

A third UI student said she believed the U.S. government should maintain the peacekeeping force.

"When I first heard (about the killing of the Marines), I thought it was real bad," said Julie Yellen, 21, of 831 Jefferson St. "But when I listened to what President Reagan is saying about maintaining peace, I knew he was right. We have to keep up our peacekeeping efforts." Of those stopped on the streets today, only Reynolds Gray, an 85-year-old retired farmer, said he hadn't heard about the deaths. "That's bad business," he said. "I don't know whether it's too good sending them over there. I'm certainly concerned about their families," said Gray, of 313 College

But Iran today denied any connection with the bombing. Its official Islamic Republic News Agency, monitored in Nicosia, said the Americans were trying to link Iran to the attack in order lay the groundwork for deployment of U.S. troops in the Persian Gulf.

Three planeloads of U.S. Marines and equipment landed at the Rhine-main Air Base in West Germany today en route to Beirut, part of some 300 leathernecks destined to replace Marines killed and wounded by the terrorist bomb.

"I can confirm that three C-141Bs have landed. We don't know how many men they are carrying or what their units are yet," said Air Force spokesman Maj. Tony Batezel."The aircraft are transporting personnel and equipment necessary to restablish the batallion landing headquarters in Beirut."

He said the planes would continue on to Beirut later in the

The first of 13 planes carrying the Marine replacements left Cherry Point Marine Air Station near Camp Lejeune, N.C., on Sunday night.

Maj. Gen. Al Gray, commander of the 2nd Marine Division, said the men would arrive in Lebanon "within 24 hours."

"We're ready to go," Gray said, adding that morale was at a "fever-pitch high."

President Reagan told reporters in Washington his commitment to keeping the Marines in he was "more determined than ever" that the forces battling Lebanon's government "cannot take over that vital and strategic part of the Earth . . . "

He dispatched the Marine commandant, Gen. Paul X. Kelly, to Beirut to determine how American forces could be better protect-

The Marines who were killed or wounded had been in Lebanon since June and were due to be sent back to the United States before Thanksgiving. The unit that had been scheduled to relieve them was diverted to the Caribbean last week following the coup in Grenada.

U.S. Marines continued clawing through the rubble today in hopes of finding comrades still alive. The leathernecks, some clad only in bloodstained underwear, dug through the debris and combed the ground littered with shattered glass, singed clothing, helmets and cooking pots.

Others stood and sobbed, stunned by the sight of the massacre, the worst attack on the multinational peacekeeping force since it arrived in Lebanon 14 months ago and the heaviest loss of life for a U.S. military unit since the Vietnam war.

Medics and survivors laid out dead Marines in rows, their bare feet protruding from beneath blankets and other coverings.

Construction firms sent equipment to help remove the huge slabs of concrete that had crashed down on the sleeping troops. Beirut firemen kept a steady stream of water on the smoldering Marine headquarters ruins while Red Cross, Red Crescent and military ambulances hauled victims from the scene.

Jordan, describing the Marinecompound explosion, said "a truck filled with explosives crashed through the gate, drove into the lobby . . . and detonated,

In Congress, bombing sparks more questions on U.S. role in Lebanon

By W. DALE NELSON Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON - House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill, Jr., reacting to the slaughter of 183 Marines in Beirut, readied a "complete review" today of whether it is "worthwhile to keep our boys" in Lebanon for diplomatic pur-

"We agreed to keep the Marines there as a show of force and to negotiate a cease fire," O'Neill, D-Mass., declared. "Now we have to protect those Marines and we have to decide if they're going to be there for diplomatic rea-

The House speaker made his comments Sunday night at a party fundraising dinner in Belleville, Ill. He is one of many members of Congress who seemed eager to reopen the debate over the Reagan administration's policy of assigning peacekeeping troops in Beirut.

In addition to the review that the speaker promised to conduct on his own, Secretary of State George Shultz arranged to meet at midafternoon with House and Senate committees to discuss the bombing.

O'Neill, who helped work out legislation this fall to authorize an 18-month stay in Beirut for the Marines, stopped far short of calling for withdrawal. He said such action might set back hopes for peace.

Senate Republican Leader Howard Baker, who wrote Reagan before the bombing to urge a swift pullout of the Marines, said he would "wait and see what the circumstances are" before commenting further.

But Baker, R-Tenn., declared angrily that the bombing was "being debated as a domestic political issue" when it is a "matter of grave importance."

"I really believe my principal role right now is to try to keep this thing from turning into a political football," he told reporters without mentioning who might be misusing the issue.

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee arranged a mid-afternoon briefing from Secretary of State George Shultz on the terrorist bombing that left at least 75 injured in addition to the dead. The House Foreign Affairs Committee also scheduled a meeting with the secretary of state.

It it seemed clear that Democrats and Republicans alike were anxious to review the issue that appeared settled a few weeks ago.

"Unless the administration is willing to come before Congress this week to define the role of our Marines in Lebanon, they should be brought home," said Rep. Michael Barnes, D-

Is Iowa making progress? You betcha!

Much as this one hurt, I was in Ann Arbor when it was 51-6 and 55-0 and when writing about Iowa football was about as much fun as reporting an earthquake. This is better.

You can talk about the fumble, and you can talk about the winning field goal, but the play that probably turned the game around was the holding call on the Hawks when Gill gained two yards to make it second-and-two at the Michigan goal in the fourth quar-

As Father Henry Greiner said at

at the Michigan four and start over."

Wonder if holding would have been called on Michigan in the same situation?

Whatever, it was called and we can't do a thing about it. Michigan's defense was superb, as always. But Iowa's young and battered defense stood up and hit, too. Despite a lot of adversity, it gave up only a single touchdown. Chuck Long did not have an all-Big Ten type of day, but maybe more credit for that belongs to the Wolverine defenders than discredit to Long. I thought Paul Hufford was exceptional on defense, and some of the catches made by Dave Moritz should be framed and hung for posterity.

Unfortunately, this team seems mass at St. Mary's Church Sun- to have a habit of making a slow day, "Let's make it first and goal start on offense, and maybe Iowa lost the game in the first quarter, although Gill's fumble is recorded as the culprit. Ronnie Harmon made a poor kickoff return, and kickoff returns have not been an Iowa strength this season. That set up a conservative series not worth much in the rain against the wind, and then an 11-yard punt. Right away, Iowa was in a hole and down by three. It was similar to Iowa's opening offensive series against Penn State and Illinois and Purdue. Iowa made only a single first down in the first quarter, and at halftime an obviously upset Fry said, "We haven't fired a shot

It still has a chance for a 9-2 record, which would be the best in Hayden's time here. It still has a shot at a very good bowl game.

We are turning toward November, when the good teams get better, and the poor teams begin to fade. If Iowa can continue its improvement, and really put things together on both offense and defense, no telling how good it can be by December.

What it has this week against Indiana is a test of character.

Nichol's chance never came

Michigan kicker gets call instead

By NOLAN ZAVORAL Press-Citizen Sports Editor

ANN ARBOR, Mich. - Along the Iowa sideline, Tom Nichol waited for the chance that never came.

"I thought from where we were on the field, and with the score tied - yeah, I was prepared in my thinking to go in," the Iowa kicker said. "I was ready."

Iowa had a second and 12 at the Michigan 33, with just over a minute and a half left last Saturday in the chilling drizzle of Michigan Stadium.

One more field goal from Nichol - who earlier had set a Hawkeye record with a 56-yarder - and Iowa would doubtless have a win and a push toward Pasade-

"It would have been just a matter of getting the ball up...getting it straight...that was all," Nichol

Except he never got the chance. First came the fumble of Iowa running back Owen Gill. Then the galloping of Michigan's own running back, Rick Rogers (not related to Roy, Buck or Mr.).

In the end, the opportunity went to Nichol's counterpart on the Michigan team, a senior walk-on named Bob Bergeron. His 45-yard field goal, a dying duck of a soft liner, had just enough wing for a 16-13 win over Eight seconds showed on the clock in the nationally televised heart-stopper.

The old stadium rocked with the home crowd growl of "Blue! Blue! Blue!"

did a back flip that spoke volumes about how much this victory meant.

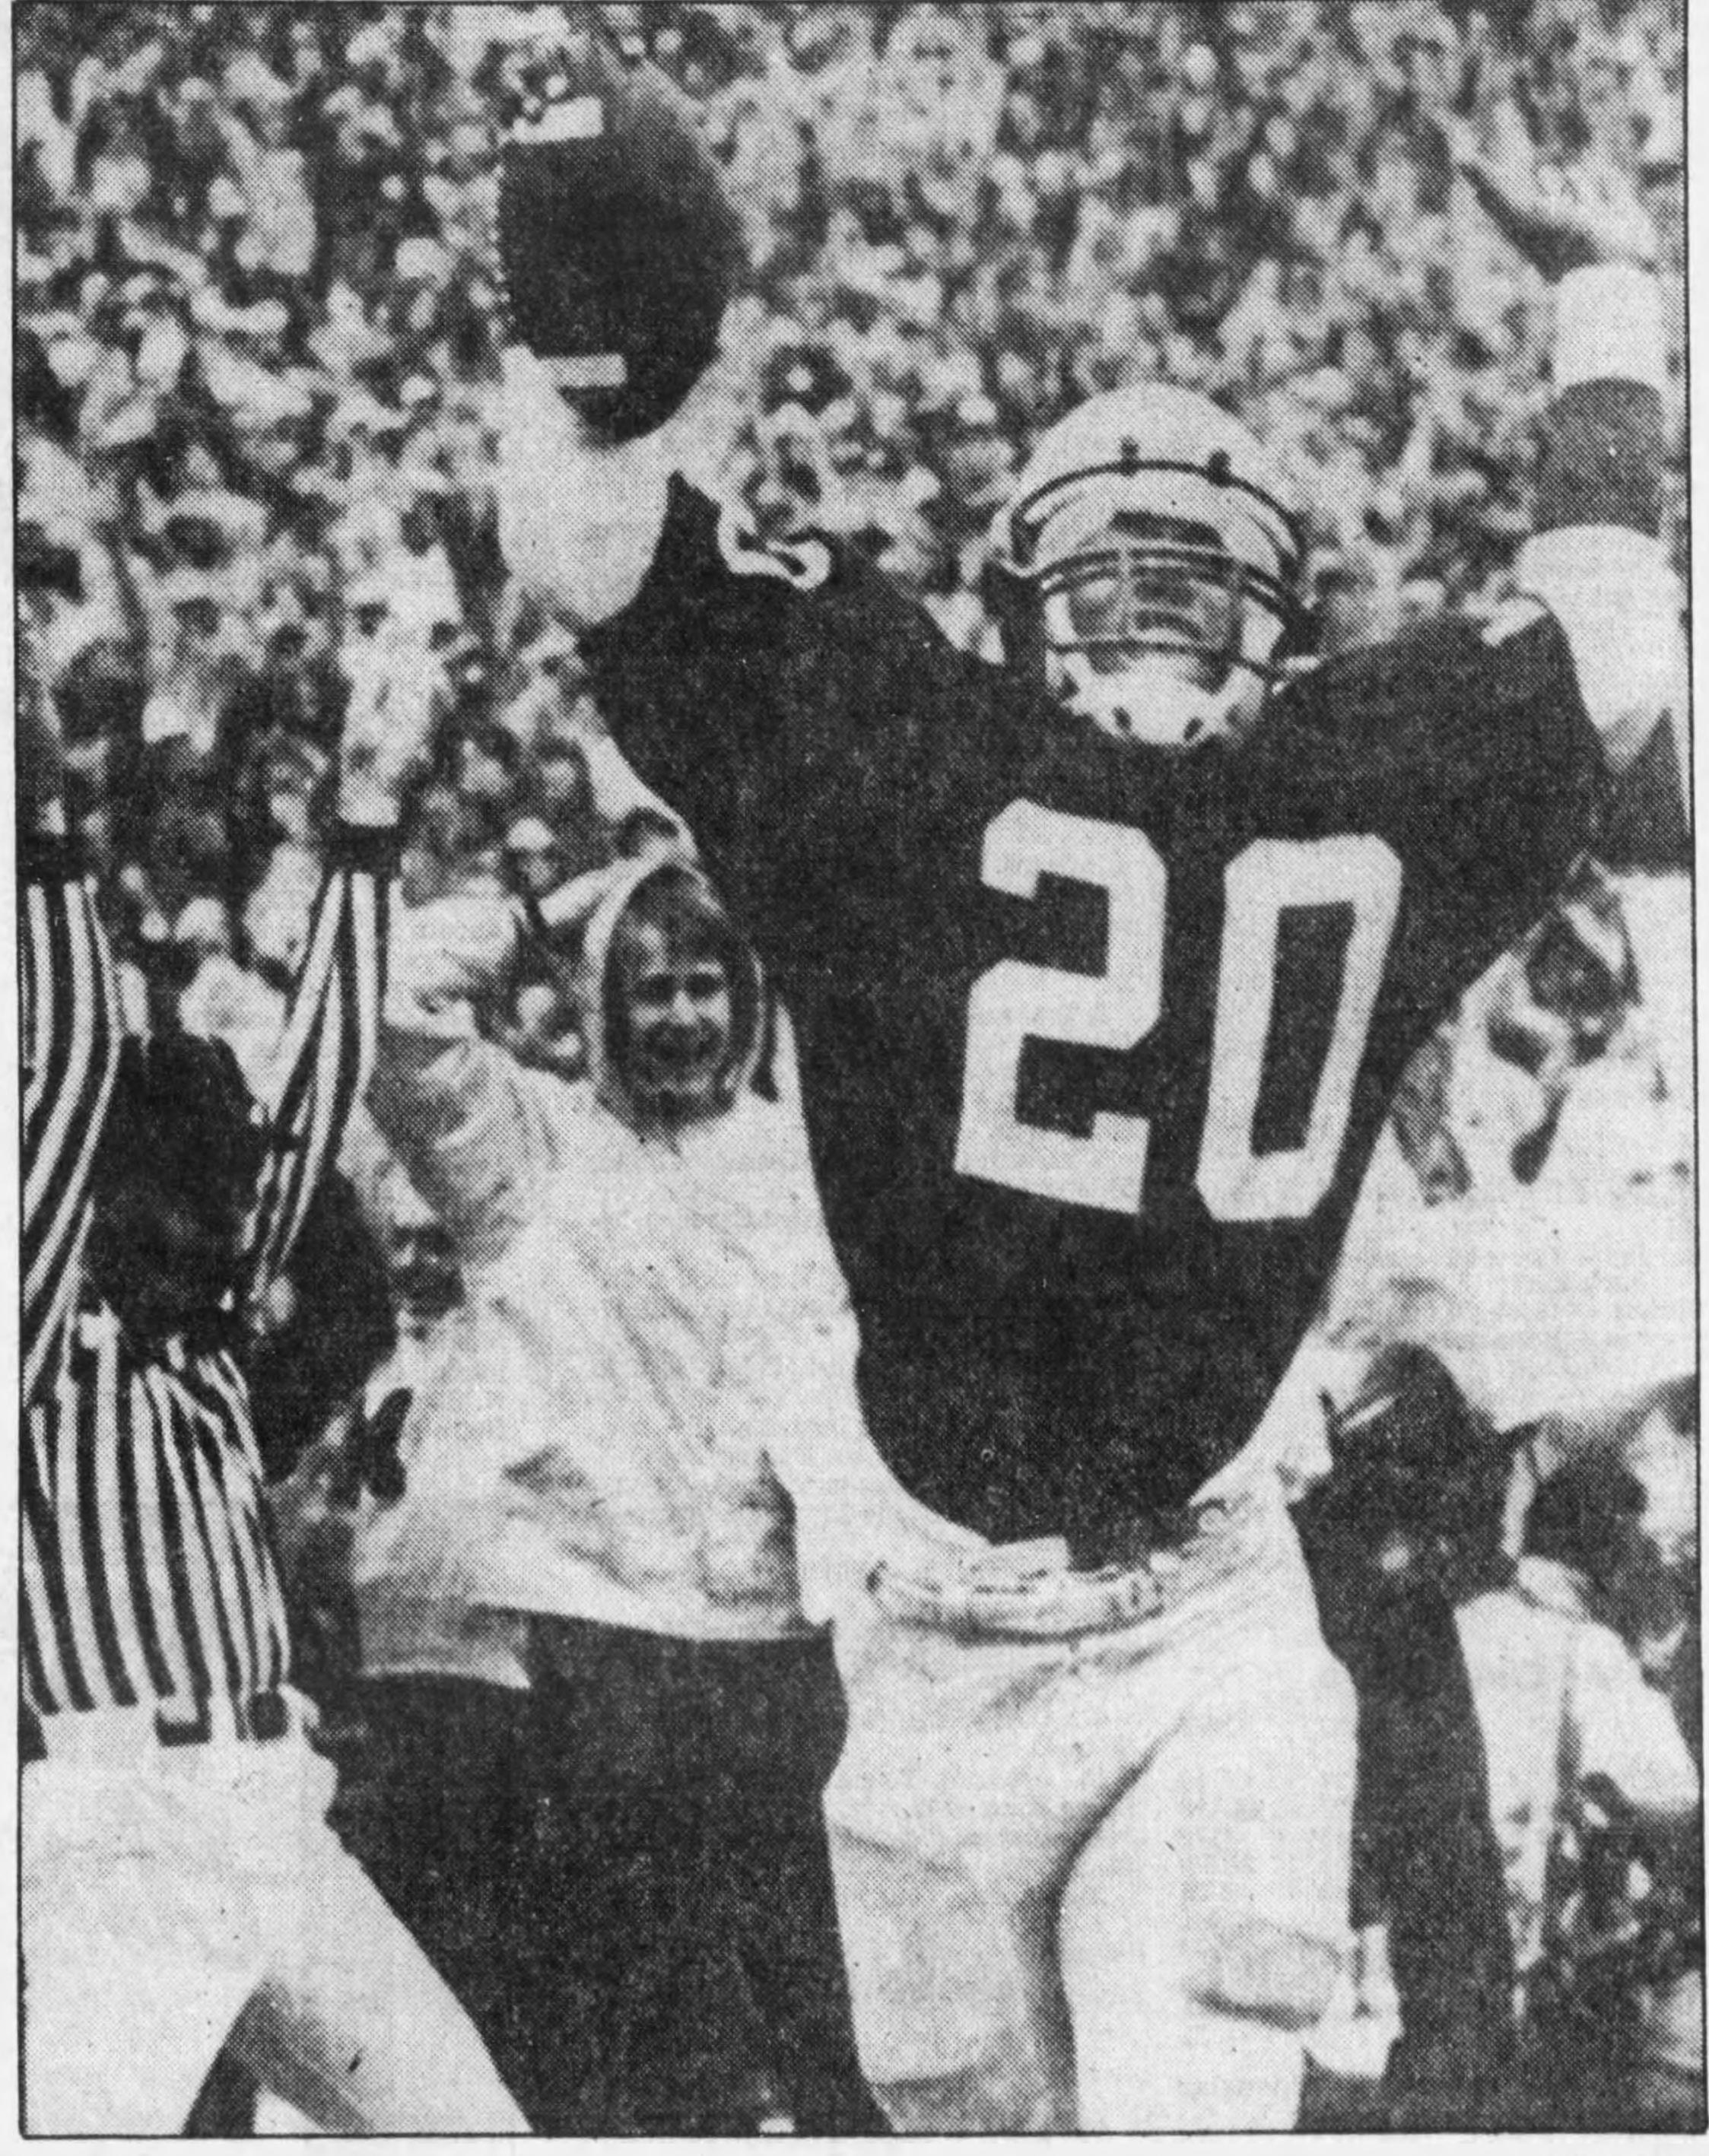

The Wolverines - No. 10 in the country in the most recent Associated Press poll, compared to Iowa's No. 12 - still have the bloom on their Rose Bowl hopes. And will for at least six more days, until the Michigan-Illinois showdown next Saturday in Champaign.

Michigan and Illinois, Iowabeaters both, share the conference lead with 5-0 records. An Illini victory would not only mean, in all probability, the third goal post flattening of the season in Champaign — but a march to Pasadena's Rose Bowl as well. For after Michigan, the Illini finish with limpers like Minnesota, Indiana and Northwestern.

Michigan, however, still has its usual regular-season finale with Ohio State, which might be just another game the way events are unfolding this season.

Iowa, meanwhile, 3-2 in the conference and host to Indiana next Saturday, is out of the Rose Bowl picture for now - and probably for the season. No Hawkeye player or coach would admit to it,

Fry 'couldn't believe' call against Moritz

ANN ARBOR, Mich. -Comments from lowa and Michigan players and coaches on the Wolverines' 16-13 win Saturday:

 lowa coach Hayden Fry on the holding call against split end Dave Moritz in the fourth quarter at the Michigan four that forced lowa to settle for a field goal: "We put the film on slo-mo last night and I couldn't believe it. The officials called a wide receiver for holding. I think they got mixed up on who it was on. . . . I'm just sick."

• Fry on lowa defensive tackle Paul Hufford, returning after missing a game with a knee injury: "He played the best game of his career. He put a lot of pressure on the runner and passer. He appeared to be our best defensive lineman Saturday. Maybe the rest did his knee some good."

* Fry on why lowa, with the second leading passing attack in the country, ran twice as often as It passed: "You don't beat Michigan with passing only. You need balance. We also had bad field position in the first half, and we didn't want to make any mistakes down there with the ball. And Michigan also had something to do with it. They blitzed and stunted 50 or 60 percent more than we thought they would. They double-covered a lot, and that influenced us to run."

• lowa tight end Lon Olejniczak, on the touchdown pass from reserve quarterback Tom Grogan off a fake field goal attempt: "Michigan wasn't yelling anything at the line. I think they thought we were going for it (the field goal). We sent out two receivers. (Fullback) Norm Granger was the other. The cornerback took him, and I was open. But there wasn't that much room for the ball, and Tommy really threaded the

• lowa quarterback Chuck Long on the Michigan defense, ranked No. 2 in the country: "They did a lot of blitzing and stunting, but not as much as Illinois. They wanted to stop the pass, and that opened up the run. We hurt them pretty good later in the game with the run."

 Michigan quarterback Steve Smith on the fans standing and waving their arms and cheering with such gusto that Michigan couldn't hear offensive signals and was assessed a delay of game penalty:"I have to admit it was nice they yelled like that. At least it showed they were into the game and supporting us. That never happened before. It surprised me."

Bo lights up after Bergeron's kick

ANN ARBOR, Mich. - Somebody had given Bo Schembechler a cigar and the Michigan football coach meant to smoke it, heart condition and all. But not right away. Not when there was something like the Iowa victory to relive with a lingering reporter.

"Great win, just a great win -I told the team that. I meant it," Schembechler said. He sat on a short blue bench near his open locker. His white pullover shirt was open to the top of his thermal underwear.

He wadded up the plastic wrapping from the cigar and cast it toward the center of the floor in the small, stark room the Wolverine coaches dress in.

Schembechler would not tumble when asked to assess Iowa's title chances in the Big Ten with two losses. Michigan and Illinois, playing Saturday in Champaign, lead the league by two games with 5-0 records.

"I don't know what their (Iowa's) chances are — I can't Schembechler "They're alive mathematically, that's all I know. If Illinois loses two quick ones, or we do . . . then Iowa might have a shot." The voice grew more halting. "But . . . I really can't say."

In the 16-13 win over Iowa, Michigan drove 43 yards for the deciding three points in the final two minutes. This in a drizzle and from a team not known for big plays on offense.

"It's a misconception that you've got to throw long to move down the field like that," Schembechler said. "People can defend against that. So you can do other things. Screens, intermediate

In fact, the key play in the drive was a screen pass that tailback Rick Rogers turned into a 24-yard gain.

Schembechler drew the cigar under his nose, taking several deep breaths.

"I hope everybody thinks we can't move down the field very fast with our offense," he said. "I hope they think we've got nothing to fall back on."

The Wolverines won the game on Bob Bergeron's 45-yard field goal with eight seconds left. Schembechler thought the distance was at the limits of Bergeron's range, and considered putting in another kicker.

But no. Schembechler liked Bergeron because the senior walk-on didn't panic in tight situations. Indeed, Bergeron was quoted after the game as saying he would rather kick under pressure — that he kicks better that way.

Schembechler sent in Bergeron with simple instructions.

"I told him two things: 'Field goal, kick it," Schembechler said. He cackled. "I mean, what can I tell him? 'Look, son, there's only 104,000 people or whatever it is watching, and millions watching on national television — but now don't get nervous

Atlanta Falcon placekicker Mick Luckhurst does his victory dance after kicking a fourth-quarter field goal to give Atlanta a 24-21 lead after being behind to the New York Jets 21-0. Luckhurst kicked another field goal to ensure the Falcons' 27-21 win.

the plays at the end." Bahr's game-winning kick was set up when Ted Watts intercepted a Danny White pass at the Raiders 12 and returned it 13 yards late in the game. Wilson then used short passes, including two 18-yard completions to wide receiver Dokie Williams, to move Los Angeles to the Dallas 8.

"It was good all the way," Bahr said of his winning three-pointer.

Falcons 27, Jets 21 Mick Luckhurst booted two field goals in the final 3:42 as Atlanta, down 21-0 late in the third period, exploded in the final 16 minutes to down New York.

Billy "White Shoes" Johnson caught a TD pass from Steve Bartkowski and sped 71 yards with a punt return for another score. The other Falcon TD came on a 25yard pass from Bartkowski to William Andrews.

Redskins 38, Lions 17

Rookie Reggie Evans, subbing for injured John Riggins, scored three touchdowns and Joe Washington rushed for 147 yards to lead Washington over Detroit. Evans scored on runs of 2, 2 and 1 yards.

Washington, who rushed 22 times, also scored on an 8-yard pass from Joe Theismann, who completed 15 of 23 passes for 247 yards and two scores. His other TD pass went 13 yards to Art Monk.

49ers 45, Rams 35

Quarterback Joe Montana tossed two fourth-quarter scoring passes and Dwaine Board recovered a Los Angeles fumble in the end zone for a touchdown as San Francisco rallied to defeat Los Angeles.

Board stripped the ball from the Rams' Vince Ferragamo, who threw for five touchdowns, then fell on the ball to give the 49ers the lead for the first time at 38-35.

NFL rushing leader Eric Dickerson rushed 25 times for 144 yards and caught two touchdown passes from Ferragamo.

sidetracked lowa cagers

By DAVE HYDE Press-Citizen Sportswriter

After a week of practice, first-Iowa basketball coach George Raveling said his Hawkeyes' enthusiasm is a "revelation"

"I'm extremely pleased with the progress we've made in this first week," Raveling said. "In fact, I'm somewhat surprised because when you weigh all the various elements - the new coach, new philosophy - and all the hullabaloo that's been made about Iowa basketball this year that it would be easy for everyone to get sidetracked."

Raveling said it was too early to say who has the lead for the two vacant starting positions on the team — point guard and forward. Forward Michael Payne and center Greg Stokes, preseason All-America choices, and guard Steve Carfino are the returning starters from last year's 21-10 team that made it to the regional finals in the NCAA tournament.

At this initial stage of the season, Raveling said the Hawkeye offense was "far ahead" of the defense, but that "that's typical at this point."

"I've never been arond a bunch of kids that get so enthused about practices. The whole thing has been a revelation to me," Ravel-

Nichol's chance never came

but Iowa coach Hayden Fry came as close as he's going to Sunday in his phone-in press conference

"Hell, we never set our sights on the Rose Bowl, anyway, before the season begins. Or a won-lost record. We just do the best we can week-to-week. At Iowa, there haven't been too many teams 5-2 (overall) at this stage many times in the last 25 years.

"There's still the opportunity to have a truly outstanding season," Fry said, meaning the Rose is not the only bowl in the country. "Sometimes I think the news media takes this bowl thing more serious than we do."

However, Fry did take seriously the idea that Iowa "should have won" the Michigan game. And could have "except in the last 54 seconds or so we didn't play good enough defense which we had up to then, or hold onto the football."

Gill, topping 100 yards in rushing for the third time this season (120 yards, 20 carries) made the crucial fumble at the Michigan 29 with the game tied at 13 with less than two minutes left.

In the arms of one tackler, Gill was hit by another, linebacker Carlton Rose. Rose's helmet knocked the ball loose, and yet another linebacker, Rodney Lyles, recovered.

Said Fry: "Not a guy on this team could have held onto it in a similar situation."

Iowa fullback Norm Granger tried to console Gill on the bench. "I know how he felt. He wanted to go back in and make up for it," Granger said. "I told him to keep his head up, not to worry. There was still a minute thirty left."

But they belonged to Michigan, headed upfield on the slash and dash of Rogers. Or, as Michigan quarterback Steve Smith put it, "the shuck and jive" style of

It took Michigan seven plays to eat up the 43 yards to the Iowa 28, where Bergeron, and not Nichol, became the man of the hour.

Smith got 24 of those yards by improvising on a screen pass. Instead of following his blockers down the left sideline, as diagrammed, he cut back across the field. ("We had to get the ball downfield in a hurry," Rogers

Hawks missed tackles before cornerback Keith Hunter didn't. (Hunter's interception put Iowa on the roll at midfield before Gill's fumble.) Rogers finished with a seven-yard run into linebacker Larry Station's arms.

The Hawkeyes expected the short stuff late, the draws and screens, Station said, but still couldn't stop them. "You're not dealing with a scrub team," he said of the Wolves. "It's not like they're a team that doesn't execute. They execute."

For the first time in 11 meetings with Bo Schembechlercoached Michigan teams, Iowa broke into double digits. The Hawks did it with two Nichol field goals (56 and 27 yards) sandwiched around a piece of derringdo: off a fake field goal attempt, backup quarterback Tom Grogan threw a three-yard scoring pass to tight end Lon Olejniczak.

"We did a great job the second half. I thought we'd win it," Fry said. "By eight seconds, Michigan was the better club."

touchdown sprint with an intercepted pass led Cincinnati to its come-from-behind victory over Cleveland. Riley, in his 15th NFL season, scored his fifth career TD to give the Bengals only their second victory in eight games.

Charles Alexander scored from 4 yards out to knot the game at 21-21 early in the fourth quarter before Riley pulled down his 60th career interception.

Dolphins 21, Colts 7 Rookie Dan Marino passed for two touchdowns and set up another with a 64-yard completion as Miami whipped Baltimore and moved into first place in the AFC Marino, who entered the game as the leading passer in the AFC, now has eight TD passes in his three starts and 11 for the season.

Vikings 20, Packers 17

A 32-yard field goal by Benny Ricardo 5:05 into overtime lifted Minnesota over Green Bay. The victory increased the Vikings' NFC Central lead to two games over the Packers.

Ted Brown rushed for 179 yards on 29 carries for Minnesota, while Packers quarterback Lynn Dickey connected on 23 of 42 passes for 327 yards and two touchdowns, including a 4-yarder to Mike Meade with two seconds left in regulation to send the game into overtime.

Chiefs 13, Oilers 10

Nick Lowery booted a 41-yard field goal with 7:19 left in overtime to boost Kansas City over Houston. The loss was the 15th straight for the Oilers.

Running back Earl Campbell suffered a pulled groin muscle on the second series of the game and was lost to the Oilers. He gained 54 yards on seven carries.

Patriots 31, Bills 0 Derrick Ramsey caught touchdown passes of 35 and 2 yards from Steve Grogan as New England blanked Buffalo. Tony Collins and Mark van Eeghen added scoring runs and Fred Steinfort kicked a 22-yard field goal.

The Bills, who scored 68 points in their last two games, were unable to dent a New England defense that entered the game 27th of 28 NFL teams.

Broncos 14, Chargers 6

Quarterback Steve DeBerg shrugged off three first-half fumbles to team up with Rick Upshaw on a 30-yard scoring pass play in the fourth quarter as Denver overtook San Diego. The Denver de- yards.

fense held the high-scoring Chargers to just two field goals, but San Diego was operating without quarterback Dan Fouts, leading rusher Chuck Muncie and wide receiver Wes Chandler.

Saints 24, Bucs 21

Safety Bobby Johnson returned his first NFL interception 70 yards for a touchdown to complete New Orleans' come-from-behind victory over winless Tampa Bay. The Bucs had held a 14-0 lead on James Wilder's 2-yard TD run and Jeremiah Castille's 69-yard interception return.

Steelers 27, Seahawks 21

Franco Harris, Cliff Stoudt and Frank Pollard scored first-half touchdowns, then Pittsburgh had to hold off a dramatic second-half Seattle comeback.

Pittsburgh led 24-0 at the half before substitute quarterback Dave Krieg led the Seahawks' second-half resurgence.

Bears 7, Eagles 6

Quarterback Vince Evans threw a first-period touchdown pass to Dennis McKinnon and the Chicago defense made it stand up as the Bears edged Philadelphia. The Eagles' scores came on Tony Franklin field goals of 24 and 38 because of that."" Now Schembechler was howling, joined in his gaiety by a couple of assistants sliding in to change.

Schembechler begged a lighter off one of them and bit off the end of his cigar and spat it away.

The subject turned to the matchup between two outstanding football players, Ohio State offensive guard Stefan Humphries and Iowa linebacker Larry Station.

* Nov. 5 and 6 - Register at Rec Building

Station, in true coaching fashion, said he would have to look at films to see how he fared against Humphries. He did allow that Humphries was the best lineman he'd faced all season.

Said Schembechler, "I have the greatest respect for Larry Station. And Humphries is the greatest offensive guard I had since I came here. We got yards all day from him — either from running over him, or him pulling. He wants to do something in medi-
