Student's death prompts murder probe

By LYLE MULLER
Press-Citizen Reporter

Authorities said today that a University of Iowa junior died of head injuries Sunday morning, and that they are investigating her death as a homicide.

The woman, Ellen Anne Egan, 21, of 713 Fourth Avenue Place in Coralville, died at 6:37 a.m. at University Hospital, about 1½ hours after her boyfriend called Johnson County Ambulance for help.

Coralville police said today they don't know whether Egan was murdered, but that they are suspicious because of her head wounds.

Coralville Chief Donald Ewalt said today, "We have to determine, were (the head wounds) inflicted by another person? Was it an accident? We don't know."

Johnson County Medical Examiner Dr. T.T. Bozek ruled that Egan's death was due to "blunt trauma" suffered when her head was hit, Ewalt said.

Coralville detective Barry Bedford, who is investigating the death, said, "It's our policy to investigate any unnatural death as a homicide until we determine it was otherwise."

Bedford said he's interviewed Egan's boyfriend, Benjamin Caldwell, 23. Egan and Caldwell were engaged to be married and lived together, Bedford said.

Caldwell told police that he and Egan had gone to a party in Iowa City Saturday night but that they became separated while there, Bedford said. Caldwell said he went home and to bed first, Bedford said.

"He found her (about 5 a.m.) when he woke up later to get a drink of water," Bedford said, "and for one reason or another tried to wake her up. And she was unresponsive."

Ambulance workers and Coralville police tried to revive Egan but were unsuccessful. She was taken to UI Hospital where she later died.

Bedford said he wouldn't comment further on information he compiled while interviewing Caldwell or other witnesses. He said he spent much of Sunday interviewing several people who had been with or had seen Egan the night

"We have several leads we're pursuing," Bedford said. "There's still a lot of general information we're trying to develop on her or any other leads. It would be premature to speculate (on how the leads will affect the investigation) at this point."

Bedford also met Sunday with Egan's family, which drove from

Moritz catches a place in Hawk history

Late in the game, Dave Moritz set off on a goal post route to the Indiana goal line. He never made it. When he saw his quarterback in trouble, Moritz double backed for the ball. Tom Grogan threw. Moritz took wing.

Like some horizontal bird, he swooped toward the middle of the field, making a fingertip catch just above the Kinnick Stadium carpet. A couple of Hoosiers descended upon him to no avail. Once in his clutches, the ball seldom leaves.

It was not the catch that set the Iowa record for career reception yardage; Moritz had set that earlier in the half, with another double back effort that saved starting quarterback Chuck Long's hide.

Nor was it the catch that gave Moritz the single-game team record for receiving yardage; that would come two minutes later, on an over-the-shoulder number good for a touchdown and a 41-3 Iowa lead. ("I thought I coulda been out of bounds there," Moritz said. "Did I look out-of-bounds to you?")

No, it was just one more terrific catch that helped advance Moritz as — arguably — the best receiver in Iowa football history.

Even if he will abstain in the voting.

"I don't want to sound really modest, but as long as we win, that's the important thing," Moritz (pronounced more-RITZ) said after the 49-3 Indiana massacre. "What'll be nice is if we can finish 9-2 and go to a major bowl again."

Halloween jack-o'-lanterns, 66 of them by evening's end, line the sidewalk at the home of J. Nicholas Russo, 828 N. Dodge St.

A party haunted by good memories

Each year, lawyer makes Halloween 'what it used to be' for scores of kids

By MARLENE J. PERRIN
Press-Citizen Reporter

Ghosts and goblins ran around the garden; witches ate hot dogs and candy, and a row of jack-o'-lanterns sprouted at the edge of the lawn.

It was Halloween party night at the home of J. Nicholas Russo, 828 N. Dodge St.

"Halloween, when I was a kid, was a very special holiday," said Russo, a 33-year-old Iowa City lawyer. "Some of my fondest memories are of Halloween."

"After the Tylenol scare, it seemed like Halloween wasn't what it used to be for kids. A party seemed like a way to open up Halloween to what it should be once again."

Russo began giving his Halloween parties three years ago. This year some 150 kids and their parents roasted hot dogs around a bonfire, ate popcorn and candy, retrieved pumpkins from the hill behind Russo's house, carved them and generally had a good time.

In the middle of the party Friday evening, an Iowa City police car arrived with sirens blaring and lights flashing. Policeman Ron Fort, a friend of Russo's, patiently talked with the flock of kids who ran to welcome him.

Russo was all over the place — welcoming everyone, urging everyone to eat and thoroughly enjoying his own party. "Isn't this fun?" he kept saying.

Russo bought 68 pumpkins for this year's party; all were carved but two. His mother, Ethel Russo, provided 100 to 150 hot dogs, and Russo bought 75 to 100 pounds of candy. "I had the whole counter plugged up at K-Mart," he said. The only candy left, he added, are "the less desirable types. I've got about 1,000 suckers."

Each year's party has been a little more organized than the last. Russo started out inviting children of clients and of other lawyers. Then the neighborhood children were included. "Now it's expanded; anyone who wants to come can come," said Russo. "We haven't run out of pumpkins yet."

This year the bonfire was fenced in. "He had an open fire last year," said his mother, who has helped with the party the last two years. "I was on edge the whole time. I was afraid one of those little toddlers might fall into the fire."

This year Russo even rented a portable toilet, which was set up in his driveway.

All in all, the party is everything Russo has wanted it to be. "It's fun," he said. "I love the party."

He'll be doing it again next year. "But I might have to apply for an SBA (Small Business Administration) loan for the next one," he joked.

U.S. forces accidentally shelled mental hospital on Grenada

Speakes says U.S. didn't know facility was there

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. forces that invaded Grenada accidentally shelled a mental hospital, a White House spokesman said today. A Canadian magazine reported that 47 patients were killed but the Pentagon said the casualty toll was "substantially less."

Spokesman Larry Speakes said, "We were not aware there was a civilian hospital there." He said President Reagan was informed about the shelling on Tuesday, the first day of the invasion.

Speakes said a Defense Department report on the incident had arrived at the White House a few hours earlier.

He said the hospital had been designated as a military area occupied by Grenadian forces. The Defense Department said the facility was part of the Fort Fredericks military complex and that the attack was staged because artillery was being fired from the area into the residence of Governor Gen. Paul Scoon, who the United States hopes will form an interim government.

The Canadian news magazine Maclean's said the attack, besides killing 47, left some of the patients free to wander about the island. The New York Post said 13 bodies had been taken from the

Death toll from quake in Turkey climbs to 980

By ISMAIL KOVACI
Associated Press Writer

ERZURUM, Turkey — A powerful earthquake that rolled through mountainous eastern Turkey killed at least 980 people and has left at least 25,000 homeless in freezing weather, officials said today.

The number of people seriously injured was put at 446.

Heavy rain that disrupted efforts to rescue victims turned to snow in mountain villages devastated by the Sunday quake.

"The need for immediate shelter is a life-or-death matter," a Red Cross statement said. "The affected area is on a high plateau and at this time of year someone who cannot find shelter after nightfall may freeze to death before morning."

The Turkish Red Crescent Society estimated it needs 5,000 tents, 30,000 heavy blankets and 5,000 heavy sleeping bags.

The quake destroyed at least 50 villages and left people dead under collapsed buildings in the townships of Horasan, Narman, Pasinler and Sarikamis in the eastern provinces of Erzurum and Kars. The martial law command in Erzurum said not a house was left standing in 44 villages.

Housing Ministry officials said the worst-hit was Horasan and its surrounding villages with a death toll of 756. They said 147 people in Narman also were killed. At least

Des Moines after hearing about the death. Egan's sister, Kathryn, is a sophomore at UI.

Egan was majoring in English at UI and, since July, worked part-time as a saleswoman at the Ambassador Inn & Supper Club at Highway 218 and Interstate 80. Ambassador manager Bruce Kinseth said his employees were stunned by Egan's death.

"She was a hell of a nice person," Kinseth said. "She was really outgoing and easy to work with."

Kinseth said Egan was to work Sunday morning at 6 a.m. and that a waitress went to pick Egan up Egan's home. But when the waitress arrived at the duplex where Egan lived, police turned her away, Kinseth said.

Egan's father called motel employees later in the day and told them about Egan's death, Kinseth said.

Detective Bedford said he was called in on the case at 6 a.m. Sunday and worked until 6 a.m. today on the case. He returned to work at 9 a.m. and said he'd probably work exclusively on Egan's case the rest of this week.

Chief Ewalt said he'd also help in the investigation. The state Division of Criminal Investigation has not been asked for help, Ewalt said.

Funeral arrangements for Ellen Egan are pending at the Caldwell-Brien-Robbins Funeral Home in Des Moines. She is a daughter of John and Kay Egan of Des Moines.

77 people were killed elsewhere.

People rushed out of their homes and many spent the night in the streets in the provincial capital of Erzurum as aftershocks rocked the city, the Anatolia news agency said. Schools closed.

Turkish President Kenan Evren and Premier Bulent Ulusu flew to the area. Leaders of political parties cut short their election campaigns elsewhere and traveled to Erzurum to visit the maimed and console relatives of the dead.

Officials in the capital city of Ankara said one planeload of Red Cross relief supplies had arrived from Switzerland and a second plane, with a 23-member medical team, was expected later today.

Saudi Arabia donated $10 million for earthquake relief and Japan gave $21,000, officials said. They said the United States asked for a list of needed supplies to contribute to relief work.

U.S. Embassy officials said none of the U.S. military bases in Turkey was affected by the quake and that American soliders were standing by to assist in rescue operations if the Turkish government requested it.

Sunday's quake that hit at 7.12 a.m. measured 7.1 on the Richter scale of motion, the U.S. Geological Survey in Golden, Colo. said.

Villagers of Koyunoren told reporters the death toll would have been higher had the quake struck a little earlier, catching most people in bed. They said most of the adults were awake, going to the fields, preparing breakfast or tending livestock. Many of the victims were children because they were in bed asleep, they said.

New trial ordered in case of ex-anchorwoman Craft

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — A federal judge ruled against former TV anchorwoman Christine Craft in her sex discrimination case today and granted a new trial on a $500,000 fraud verdict against her former employer.

U.S. District Judge Joseph E. Stevens Jr. said a new trial would be held Jan. 4 in Joplin, Mo., on the fraud issue in Ms. Craft's suit claiming she was demoted from her news anchor position at a Kansas City television station because she was not attractive or deferential enough to men.

Metromedia Inc., which owned KMBC-TV when Ms. Craft, 38, was demoted in August 1981, had filed a motion asking the judge for a reduction in the jury award or a new trial.

Stevens also denied Ms. Craft's request for a new trial on her claim that equal pay laws were violated by Metromedia because she was paid less than her male co-anchor. The jury had ruled against her on that issue but returned an advisory verdict in favor of her on the sex discrimination complaint.

Maclean's reported that Alice Celestia, a nurse at the Cuban-built facility, gave reporters a tour of the shattered Richmond Hill Mental Hospital.

Both the Maclean's and the Post reports said the nurse absolved the United States of all blame, saying there was no way the Americans could have known they were shelling a hospital.

Hospital officials said they expected to find more bodies buried beneath tons of debris at the 183-patient hospital, the newspaper said.

At the Pentagon, Maj. J.R.

Shields said in a statement, "Preliminary indications are that casualties there are substantially lower than being reported in various news accounts."

Time magazine Caribbean correspondent Bernard Diederich, who reached the island during the early stages of the invasion, also refers to the incident in the current issue of the magazine: "In the midst of the rubble appeared a woman in a long brown dress. She was barefoot."

"We called to ask her if she was safe. She turned, exposing her open dress front, and laughed. The insane asylum had also been hit, and the inmates, like this one, had wandered off into the city."

Grenadian coup leaders reported captured

Hudson Austin and was carrying Austin's identification papers was captured by U.S. paratroopers, the Pentagon said Sunday. Austin was chairman of the 16-member People's Revolutionary Council set up after the Oct. 19 killing of Prime Minister Maurice Bishop.

Austin had been reported on the run in various locations across the 133-square mile Caribbean island since the U.S.-led invasion last Tuesday.

Some reports said he had with one or more women hostages, and he reportedly made at least one abortive attempt to escape from the island on a yacht.

On Saturday, U.S. Marines in the suburbs of St. George's, the capital of Grenada, captured Bernard Coard, another architect of the bloody coup that ousted Bishop.

Coard, a Marxist economist and deputy prime minister, led a faction that believed Bishop's pro-Cuban regime was not radical enough.

In St. George's, there were no reports of further fighting Sunday and reporters were allowed to walk the streets without military escorts for the first time.

"There is no life-threatening situation at the present," said a report issued by U.S. representatives of the Agency for International Development.

Reporters saw smashed windows and empty store shelves as a result of looting after the invasion. The only restaurant open in the area was selling beer, but no food.

Patrols of soldiers and sailors from the 400-member, seven-nation Caribbean security force were serving as police.

"We see the real truth about Americans and we see how they're interested and we see the real truth when they arrived because they didn't want to see us get communistic," said Benedine Charlotte, carrying a two-week-old baby.

In an address to the nation late Saturday on state-run Spice Island Radio, the British-appointed governor general of the island, Sir Paul Scoon, urged stores and schools to open and government employees to report to work today.

In Barbados, high-ranking police said a contingent of U.S. Marines captured an undisclosed number of Cuban resisters Sunday on Carriacou, a 13-square mile island dependency of Grenada to the north. But there was no official word from military spokesmen.

The Pentagon on Sunday said the Cuban government's count of Cubans on Grenada — a total of 784 — may have been correct, despite previous military estimates ranging higher. Nearly 700 Cubans are being held as prisoners.

At the time of the invasion, U.S. military intelligence estimated there were about 600 Cubans on Grenada, most of them construction workers building a new airport. However, after U.S. Marines and Army rangers took Grenada amid fierce fighting, the Pentagon said there were up to 1,200 Cubans, many of them well-trained soldiers, on the island.

In Washington, U.S. intelligence sources said Sunday there was no clear evidence any of the 1,000 Americans on the island were in danger of being taken hostage.

Moritz catches a place in Hawk history

wide receiver who first went out for football as a junior at St. Rita High School in the tough Chicago Catholic League. Then as now, he did not have surpassing speed: a 4.7 in the 40 when, say, a 4.4 was the ideal.

Yet then as now he compensated with what Jim Angsten, a St. Rita assistant, called "great patterns and tremendous smartness."

"He might not have been a great student in high school," Angsten said. "But he was a great student on the football field. He just did not make any mistakes."

According to Indiana coach Sam Wyche, who played and coached in the pros before coming to Indiana this year, Moritz is at least three-fourths of the way to a professional football salary.

"Four things — four fixed things — the pros look for in wide receivers," Wyche said. "That's pure speed, agility — meaning body control — quickness and hands. Moritz has three of them. I don't know what his pure speed is."

Bruce Bufe, Indiana's freshman free safety who tried to cover Moritz occasionally, thought it didn't make all that much difference. Bufe's hands fluttered in front of him. "Maybe Moritz isn't fast," he said, "but he's got this" — hands fluttering more wildly — "quickness about him. A decisiveness he gets you with. Speed moves. Head fakes. Gets right into his pattern."

"I don't think he has to be that fast."

Duane Gunn, Indiana's elegant flanker whom Iowa held to four catches for 56 yards, called Moritz the best receiver he'd seen all season in the Big Ten — although Gunn had yet to see the Illinois and Ohio State receivers.

"He (Moritz) keeps direct eye contact with the (defensive) back," Gunn said. "He looks him off, as we say, during a pattern. That means he (Moritz) looks the back straight in the eye until he makes his move. He won't tip anything off by looking inside and then going inside, or looking outside and then going outside."

"I knew he was good, looking at him on film. But in person he's even better than I thought . . . He was good last season, too. Maybe one of the reasons he's better now is because Chuck Long has gotten so much better."

In the Iowa media room, Moritz sat at a desk on a small platform, surrounded by reporters. He wore desert boots and designer jeans and a long-sleeved yellow shirt-sweater. His dark hair was butch length. He answered questions slowly, with an averted gaze between shyness and modesty.

He said that Bill Snyder, who coaches Iowa's receivers, taught him to run routes right — "sharp ones, not rounded off ones that let the DBs get closer to you."

He said he hadn't thought much about the records he'd broken — "but maybe that'll all sink in tomorrow."

Then he said, "'Scuse me. I don't want to seem rude, but I've got to leave if I'm going to make 5 o'clock mass."

He slid back from the table, rose, stepped down from the platform and rocked away in his desert boots.

Toward the door. A post pattern from which there would be no double backing.

Gunn: It was 'obvious' Iowa ran up the score

By DAVE HYDE
and NOLAN ZAVORAL
Press-Citizen Sportswriters

Indiana coach Sam Wyche called his 60-member squad to midfield after the game was over Saturday at Kinnick Stadium. He motioned away curious reporters. "This is for us," he said.

Wyche (pronounced WHY-ch) had his team drop to one knee, and he recited a short prayer. Then he delivered a sermon on the game itself — a 49-3 loss to Iowa, Indiana's worst loss of the season.

Wyche, the first-year Indiana coach, spoke in hushed tones to his players. But afterward, in the visitors' media room, he spoke more harshly of what his team had experienced at the hands of 17th-ranked Iowa.

Reporters asked Wyche how he felt about Iowa calling timeout with seven seconds left in the game and Iowa at the Hoosier 10-yard line. After an incomplete, third-string quarterback Cornelius Robertson threw a 10-yard scoring pass to walk-on wide receiver Scott Helverson. That made it 48-3 before Tom Nichol's extra point with no time showing.

"I think it was a crummy deal — didn't you think so?" Wyche bantered with a reporter. "As a good ol' American citizen, didn't you think so?"

Wyche said he had called together his players at game's end "because I didn't want to forget what had happened, or where it had happened — anything about it. Everything. It ended...when?"

No answer came from reporters.

"At 4:10, that's when," Wyche said with pride. "I want them to remember that, too."

Indiana flanker Duane Gunn remained calm but definite in his criticism of Iowa for what he considered running up the score. "It was obvious what they were doing," he said. "It bothered me quite a bit, but we've got to forget that now and prepare for Ohio State (Indiana's opponent Saturday at Bloomington, Ind.)."

"Our guys were talking about what Iowa was doing a lot after the game," Gunn said. "They couldn't believe it. I just tried to keep calm and tell them to remember we play them next year.

"I told them not to say anything to the coaching staff or anybody. Just keep it in the back of their minds that they play Iowa next year."

The game will be Oct. 27 in Bloomington, Gunn, however, will not play in it. He is a senior.

After Saturday's victory, Hawkeye coach Hayden Fry said that Robertson — and not the coaching staff — had called the timeout. As for the two ensuing passes into the end zone in the final seven seconds, Fry said, "I have no qualms about it whatsoever. I wasn't trying to run up the score."

Paul Hufford, defense earn Fry's praise

By DAVE HYDE

As time ran out in the game — and as Iowa scored its seventh touchdown in the process — Indiana wide receiver Duane Gunn stood watching from the sidelines and did something which could serve only as a symbolic epithet on the afternoon. He yawned.

Gunn couldn't be blamed. There was a sense of boredom in defeat in a game which, after the first quarter, was played to the beat of a metronome. There was also a sense of weariness in watching Iowa win so methodically, so convincingly that it pushed the whole afternoon to the saturation point of visibility.

By then, one more tackle or pass or touchdown did little to the outcome and the toughest decision Iowa coach Hayden Fry had left was how to grade his players objectively from the films.

"We really dominated the game so much that we had to grade the films on technique rather than play because there was no other way," Fry said in his phone-in press conference Sunday. "Our guys really crushed Indiana up front."

But, Fry added: "If there was a lack of excitement, I don't think it was the Hawks' fault. I think it was Indiana's fault for not moving the ball."

Then, Fry went through a defensive roll call that was dense with superlatives. Tackle Paul Hufford, a junior, was labeled the "best defensive lineman at this stage of his career we've had here." Linebacker Kevin Spitzig was "the brightest spot," on defense for the game. Safety Mike Stoops was "the hardest hitter."

Fry praised the other defenders, heroes all. They had limited Indiana to a lone second-quarter field goal as the Hawkeyes drubbed Indiana 49-3 Saturday in Kinnick Stadium.

With the win, Iowa went to 6-2 on the year and 4-2 in the Big Ten. Indiana fell to 3-5 and 2-4.

The Hawkeyes are tied with Ohio State for third in the conference behind Illinois (the big winner Saturday) and Michigan. Fry admitted the Rose Bowl is not a possibility for Iowa, but said the Hawkeyes need to win just two of their final three games to go to a bowl game.

And if Saturday's victory is any indication, two wins against Wisconsin, Michigan State and Minnesota — the latter two being doormats in the Big Ten — should be no problem. Iowa's win over Indiana was so one-sided that there was no flipside to look at. The only place Indiana made a mark was in what it didn't do:

- It didn't stop Iowa the first three times the Hawkeyes touched the ball. Three first-quarter touchdowns gave Iowa a 21-0 lead. "That was the game right there," Fry said.

- It didn't cover Hawkeye receiver Dave Moritz despite using six defensive backs most of the game. Moritz, a senior, caught 11 passes to set a single-game record of 192 yards en route to breaking the career yardage mark of 1,642 by Al Bream, who played from 1966-1968. Moritz now has 1,775 yards in his career.

- It didn't score a touchdown.
- It didn't have any luck. When Iowa quarterback Chuck Long had a pass deflected it plopped into the arms of Hawkeye guard

John Carroll. When Indiana quarterback Steve Bradley had a pass deflected, it plopped into the arms of Hawkeye linebacker Larry Station who returned it 20 yards to Indiana's 8-yard line. Four plays later, Owen Gill went 2 yards into the end zone and Iowa led 35-3.

"It was almost uncanny," Indiana coach Sam Wyche said. "I don't think I've ever been around a team in years that has had such hot hands like that."

In fact, about the only thing that did stop Iowa were the referees and the clock. And not always the clock. Iowa called a timeout with seven seconds remaining in the game and Cornelius Robertson threw a 10-yard touchdown pass to Scott Helverson.

The referees were a different matter, though. Iowa was flagged

P.S. — The Hawks now have a winning season

How soon we forget the bad times

Well, Iowa has its third straight winning football season in hand with a 6-2 record and four games to go.

Or did anyone notice that? How soon we forget!

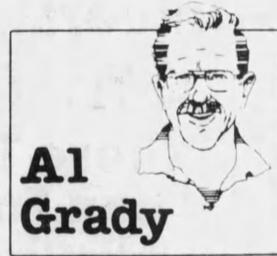

It was less than two years ago that we were still hoping for a winning season after 19 years without one. Now it's become automatic. Routine. We take it for granted. The question is: Which bowl game is Iowa going to?

Well, maybe we should stop and give thanks for the small things, before we become smug and arrogant and more and more demanding and difficult to satisfy each Saturday, and each season.

Don't get me wrong. I don't want to quit at 6-2. I want to see the Hawks go 9-2 and on to the best bowl that'll take 'em, but I can't help but think how high the mountain of a winning season seemed such a short time ago.

Saturday's win over Indiana was, you might say, a funny game. But not for Indiana, which lost by the biggest margin to Iowa since 60-0 in 1913.

Iowa bulldozed and passed for three touchdowns in the first 11 minutes and 11 seconds for a 21-0 lead that virtually decided the game right there. But from there until right down in the final four minutes, a penalty plagued and mistake prone Iowa team outscored Indiana only 14-3 for better than 45 minutes of the game. That's why I say it was "funny." It was sort of two or three games thrown into one.

That's why I got a kick out of it when Indiana coach Sam Wyche commented that "Iowa is a super team and...everything seemed to go right for them today."

Was he watching the same game I was watching. I wondered. Or does it depend on your viewpoint?

Iowa did a lot of very good things. There was some outstanding passing, and some very good running and some sensational pass catching. There was some good blocking and some good tackling and some good kicking. But there were a couple of fumbles lost and a field goal missed from easy range and 16 penalties for a near record 135 yards that kept Iowa backing up through much of the afternoon.

So I didn't think it was one of Iowa's sharpest games of the season, and I wondered what Wyche might have thought if he had seen the Hawks on one of their best days. Hopefully, the Hawks' best days are yet to come.

On the subject of whether Hayden Fry was guilty of "pouring it on," or "running up the score," you'd have to seek out a more objective jury member than this one.

It seems to me that coaches — at least at the college level — don't complain about that much anymore. I think everybody realizes that you have a bunch of guys on your squad who want to play when they get the opportunity. Those opportunities may not come very often. So you don't put a tackle in and tell him not to tackle, or a tight end and tell him to ease up on the blocking.

In that sense, it's tough to put in a Tom Grogan or a Cornelius Robertson and tell them to sit on the football. If that's all they're going to be asked to do, they might as well give up the game. Practice isn't that much fun. I think you tell 'em to go in and do what they do best — which is

Embarrassed, Jets defeat 49ers

Upsets order of the day in NFL play

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sportswriter

Pride was the motivator and the San Francisco 49ers were the victims.

Playing a virtually mistake-free game, the struggling New York Jets knocked off the high-powered 49ers 27-13 in one of three major National Football League upsets that caught division leaders Sunday. In the others, the St. Louis Cardinals outscored the Minnesota Vikings 41-31 and the Seattle Seahawks whipped the Los Angeles Raiders 34-21.

"Our motivation was embarrassment and the fact that we are much better than a 3 and 5 football team," said New York defensive lineman Marty Lyons. "We put pressure on the quarterback and our defensive backs did a great job covering their receivers."

Lyons' thoughts of "embarrassment" was a reference to last week's 27-21 loss to Atlanta after the Jets had built a 21-0 lead in the third quarter.

Richard Todd hit 20 of 28 passes for 201 yards to lead the offense and the Jets' defense shut down the San Francisco running game to key their triumph over the National Conference West Division leaders.

Cornerback Jerry Holmes ran back an interception 43 yards for a touchdown in the final minute to seal the victory for the Jets, now 4-5 after snapping a three-game losing streak.

Cardinals 41, Vikings 31

Neil Lomax fired two touchdown passes to Roy Green and one to Pat Tilley, and Otis Anderson ran for 136 yards and a touchdown, leading St. Louis' upset of Minnesota, the NFC's Central Division leaders.

The Cardinals, 3-5-1, the NFL's most error-prone team, stayed away from fumbles and interceptions until the final period. St.

Seven West swimmers qualify for state meet

DAVENPORT — They may not have won Saturday's district girls swimming and diving meet, but West High and coach Sue Chadima left Davenport West's pool with numerous honors.

The second-place West squad qualified seven swimmers and divers for the state meet this weekend. Sophomore Ann Colloton led the Women of Troy by winning the 100-yard breaststroke and the 200 individual medley. She also swam breaststroke on West's winning 200 medley relay.

But while West was proving itself in the water, coach Chadima was making a few splashes of her own. Chadima, who coaches both West and City High, was voted the District Coach of the Year. Last weekend she received similar honors at the Mississippi Valley Conference meet.

Chadima said West had many time drops at the district meet, which led to her being named Coach of the Year. "They look at

Hawks bowl over Hoosiers

for 135 yards worth of penalties, which was just 10 yards short of a stadium record.

"I think the refs might've wanted to help Indiana out a little," Hawkeye guard Joe Levelis said, smiling. "It was really getting silly after a while."

"The thing that upsets me," Fry said, "is that we got all those penalties and the other team is just as bad if not worse. All we're asking for is consistency. I talked to the commissioner last Monday and he was as upset about it as I was."

But even penalties didn't stop Iowa at times. On its first possession, Owen Gill ran 6 yards for a touchdown, but Iowa was flagged for clipping and the play was called back. On the next play Gill ran 16 yards for a touchdown.

And, after Long passed 20 yards to Moritz for a second touchdown and Long ran 11 yards for a third first-quarter touchdown, the game turned into a statistical showcase. Fry had set a goal of 250 yards rushing and 250 yards passing in the game. Iowa finished with 249 yards rushing and 409 passing.

"We needed to get the team's stats back up and players to get their stats back up," Fry said. "The all-star selections are coming out and they like those big statistics and so do the bowl people."

Gunn: Hawkeyes ran up the score

ing . . . I've got guys like Cornelius Robertson and Tom Grogan who work out every day in practice but never get to play in a game. Both of those quarterbacks would like to play pro football and the only way the scouts can see them is if they have a film clip to show their abilities."

Both Robertson and Grogan are fifth-year seniors.

Fry said he empathized with Wyche. "I've been in that spot where teams have had us in that position many times," Fry said. "If they feel real bad about us, that's fine with me. At the same time, they have to see our situation with two fifth-year quarterbacks."

"If you're gonna be a crybaby you might as well go to the house."

It was the second time this season that members of an opposing team have questioned Iowa's late-game intentions. First came Northwestern, which lost to Iowa three weeks ago at Kinnick, 61-21. In that game, Iowa led 48-14 in the fourth quarter — when Grogan launched an 86-yard touchdown pass to freshman receiver Robert Smith.

Wildcat coach Dennis Green would not charge Iowa with running up the score. He did say, however, "I've been around so long that nothing surprised me anymore."

However, these Northwestern players said the following:

Safety Dean Koester: "I wouldn't put it past Hayden Fry to run up the score on anyone. He has that reputation. The sad thing was we knew he was going to do it but we couldn't do anything about it."

Defensive tackle Bill Prince: "Hayden Fry has run up the score on us every year we've played them. I'm a senior and that's four years. I remember when I was a freshman that the seniors were saying they were going to put an end to it, but things didn't work out."

"I know if we were that good that we wouldn't be beating teams by scores like this. He (Fry) must get a kick out of doing this."

Fry said Sunday, "I have a sense of responsibility and loyalty to my players — and that's why we were throwing late in games like this one (Indiana) and Northwestern." Fry cited the pro aspirations of Grogan and Robertson and said, "You couldn't have given me any amount of money to keep Tom Grogan and Cornelius Robertson from throwing the ball."

Indiana fullback Jack Walsh is wrestled to the ground by Iowa defenders Tony Wancket (92), Larry Station (36), Kevin Spitzig (38) and another unidentified Hawkeye.

P.S. — The Hawks have a winning season

throw the ball — and if Indiana feels it is being humiliated or belittled, well I guess someday, somewhere, against another coach, they will have their chance for retribution.

One could not comment on the game without writing again about the sensational pass catching of Dave Moritz. The guy has glue for hands and a remarkable mind for concentration. I got to thinking the other day — and this was before Saturday's record-breaking performance — that if I had to vote for a most valuable player for the 1983 Hawkeyes, I think I'd have to vote for Moritz.

But there were a number of other standouts, too. I thought Eddie Phillips showed his best running form of the entire season, both for speed and strength. He may be getting healthy at the very best time, especially if Owen Gill is hobbled.

Iowa had a lot of defensive heroes, but I think Kevin Spitzig made a couple of hits that jarred my back teeth way up in the press box. Remember that one defensive play in the first quarter that Mike Stoops made? It seemed to me he flung himself about eight feet through the air for a hit that caused a Hoosier fumble and set up a touchdown. And Tony Wancket made some beautiful plays fighting off blocks to get to the quarterback, or some other ball-carrier, in the Indiana backfield.

With just one more home game to play, it now appears that Iowa is the next thing to a cinch to become the first Hawkeye team to win all its home games since the near national championship team of 1960.

The Hawkeyes also are within striking range of about every scoring, yardage and offensive record in the Iowa book.

But more important are the three games left.

Seemingly, this Saturday's game at Wisconsin is the toughest of the lot. The Hawks surely don't need to be told that the Badgers would seem to be much, much tougher than Indiana.

And Iowa fans hardly need to be told that Iowa has beaten the Badgers a rather incredible six straight seasons, a fact that makes Wisconsin fans and players and coaches see red. One of those broke Wisconsin hearts at Madison a short two years ago.

Thus, you can count on the Badgers and their zany backers to get the Red out this Saturday.

I certainly don't look for anything easy.

Wieting ninth at state run

AMES — Running in her first state cross country meet, Helene Wieting of City High was the first freshman to complete the two-mile George Veenker Memorial course Saturday, but in the boys race, Little Hawk John Ruth "ran out of gas."

Wieting finished ninth overall and recorded her fastest time of the season, eleven minutes, 50.9 seconds, a time drop of seven seconds from her previous best.

The Iowa City freshman was in seventh place throughout the entire race, but was nudged out by two runners in the final 20 yards. According to City High coach Bud Williams, the state meet was by far Wieting's best race of the year.

While Wieting turned in a peak performance, Ruth finished 49th. Ruth, who won the district meet, had been considered a contender for state honors, and actually led Saturday's race until the one mile mark.

The junior "ran out of gas," according to Williams, who said Ruth was never able to get back into the race. Ruth had been nursing a sore throat and chest cold prior to the state meet.

C.R. club to fete former Iowa coach Miller

The Cedar Rapids Sports Club will sponsor a noon luncheon at Stouffer's Inn on the top floor of the Five Seasons Center Dec. 1 to honor Ralph Miller, former University of Iowa basketball coach.

Miller now is the head basketball coach at Oregon State University and his team will be playing in Iowa City Dec. 2-3 in the second annual Amana-Hawkeye Classic.

With the theme of "It's Miller Time," the luncheon will begin at 11:45 a.m. Miller will be the featured speaker. Other guests will be Lanny Van Eman, former Iowa assistant basketball coach and now assistant to Miller at OSU; Bump Elliott, Iowa athletic director; and Henry Meyer, president of Amana Refrigeration. The program master of ceremonies will be Tait Cummins of WMT radio.

Tickets for the event cost $12 and may be obtained in Iowa City at the Airliner or at Eby's Sporting Goods.

West swimmers qualify for state

who's developing the teams," Chadima said.

If a Swimmer of the Meet had been selected, it would have undoubtedly been Colloton. In the 100 breaststroke, Colloton broke the district record with a time of one minute, 9.72 seconds. Also her time in the 200 individual medley (2:15.70) was over seven seconds faster than runner-up Kirsten Vanderhoef of City High. Both Iowa City girls, along with fourth-place finisher Amy Strauss, qualified for the state meet.

"Ann is one of the best swimmers to come out of the Midwest in a long time," Chadima said. "She works very hard, has a lot of natural talent and has a good feel for the water."

Another state qualifier is West's Jenny Otis, who won the 200 freestyle with a time of 2:06.90 and finished sixth in the 500 (5:44.05). According to Chadima, Otis tapered her workouts specifically for the district meet, resulting in a time drop of six seconds in both races.

Joining Otis at the state meet in the 500 will be teammate Shawn Carstensen, a third place finisher Saturday (5:40.51). Jenny Newell of City High took eighth with a time of 5:52.71 and also qualified for the state meet.

A key event for West in the state meet should be the 100 breaststroke. Colloton will lead that contingency, with Strauss and Carstensen adding the depth. Strauss finished third at the district meet with a time of 1:13.77, while Carstensen was fifth (1:15.61).

West's Missy DeWitt will also compete in the state meet, following a 1:07.79 clocking in the same event for fifth place.

West divers dominated that portion of the meet with the one-two punch of Ann Freed and Kristin Beechel. Freed's winning total was 351.75, as Beechel took second with 347.55. Both divers, along with Regina's Annette O'Connor, will represent Iowa City at the state meet.

Vanderhoef was one of few standouts for the eighth-place City High Hawkettes. She won the 100 backstroke with a time of 1:05.55 to qualify for the state meet.

The state meet will be held Nov. 4-5 at Fort Dodge High School.

Jets take advantage of 49er miscues

Louis' Neil O'Donoghue, who missed three field-goal tries in a 20-20 tie with the New York Giants the previous game, made good on attempts of 52 and 47 yards.

"The key to our success was our balance," said Cardinals coach Jim Hanifan. "We wanted to knock them off the ball, and I think we accomplished it."

Seahawks 34, Raiders 21

Linebacker Shelton Robinson ignited slow-starting Seattle with a 12-yard fumble return for a touchdown and the underdog Seahawks went on to beat Los Angeles for their second victory over the American Conference West leaders in three weeks.

Robinson made his big play with 9:18 remaining in the second quarter and the Seahawks trailing 7-0. Linebacker Keith Butler shook the ball loose from running back Marcus Allen of the Raiders, Robinson scooped it up and lumbered into the end zone.

"The play was a blitz," said Robinson. "The ball squirted out. Marcus went running for it and it squirted from him. I don't remember what happened after that. I picked it up and there was the goal line. It wasn't that far. All big plays seem to affect a team."

Steelers 17, Buccaneers 12

Frank Pollard ran 2 yards for a touchdown with 31 seconds left as the Steelers overcame seven turnovers and an NFL record 42 carries by Tampa Bay's James Wilder to beat the 0-9 Buccaneers. "All week long, we said we didn't want to be the first team to lose to them, that we couldn't make mistakes," said Pittsburgh quarterback Cliff Stoudt. "Then, we went out and made them."

Wilder gained 126 yards with his performance, wiping out the previous record of 41 attempts set by the Steelers' Franco Harris in a 1976 game against Cincinnati.

Browns 25, Oilers 19

Boyce Green sprinted 20 yards for a touchdown on the first play following an interception in overtime as the Browns sent the Oilers to their 16th straight defeat. The loss was the second straight in overtime for Houston, 0-9 this season.

On his game-winning run up the middle, Green eluded several Houston tacklers and kicked his way into the end zone.

"I just ran into the hole and was kind of stalemated," Green said. "I just hit it inside and when I saw the goal line, I just kept going."

The contest was the 14th overtime game of the 1983 season, the most overtime games played in one season since 1974, the year the NFL adopted the single 15-minute period for regular-season games.

Cowboys 38, Giants 20

Danny White threw for 304 yards and a career-high five touchdown passes, including two to wide receiver Tony Hill, and the Dallas defense forced six turnovers as the Cowboys improved upon the NFL's best record at 8-1 with their victory over the Giants.

Drew Pearson, who caught one of those scoring strikes, said he felt his quarterback had a "so-so

Riggins to return for tonight's Redskin game

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Running back John Riggins returns to the Washington Redskins' high-flying offense tonight against the battered San Diego Chargers, a team on the brink of disaster.

Coach Joe Gibbs said Riggins, out last week with a back injury, will replace Joe Washington as the starter in Washington's one-back offensive formation.

day, for Danny White."

"Danny hit the plays he had to hit, but overall I think he'd tell you he didn't have one of his best days," said Pearson.

Falcons 24, Patriots 13

Rookie linebacker John Rade returned a fumble 16 yards for a touchdown as Atlanta's defense forced four critical fumbles in the Falcons' victory over New England.

"I never even had an interception," Rade said of the score that came after rookie Mike Pitts stripped the ball away from New England quarterback Steve Grogan during a nine-yard sack. "I was fired up, and I was lucky. I just happened to be there when the ball was ripped out."

Colts 22, Eagles 21

Raul Allegre's fifth field goal of the game, a 30-yarder with 2:07 left, carried Baltimore over Philadelphia. The Eagles had taken a 21-19 lead on an eight-play, 44-yard drive capped by quarterback Ron Jaworski's 6-yard scoring pass to wide receiver Harold Carmichael.

Lions 38, Bears 17

Eric Hipple passed for 216 yards and one touchdown and Leonard Thompson scored on a 40-yard reverse to lead Detroit over Chicago. Hipple hit Jeff Chadwick with a 21-yard touchdown pass in the first quarter and completed at least one long pass in each of Detroit's first four touchdown drives.

Bills 27, Saints 21

Joe Ferguson threw four touchdown passes, including two to Mike Mosley, and Buffalo survived a late New Orleans rally to beat the Saints. Ferguson ended the game with 13 completions in 25 attempts for 173 yards, while Saints starting quarterback Ken Stabler left the game at the end of the first quarter after taking a shot in the ribs.

Dolphins 30, Rams 14

Rookie quarterback Dan Marino ran for one touchdown and passed for two and Tony Nathan burst 18 yards for a key third-quarter score as the Miami beat Los Angeles.

Eric Dickerson, the Rams' sensational rookie, rushed for 101 yards to boost his yardage for the season to 1,096, the first player in the NFL to pass the 1,000-yard plateau this year and the 17th rookie to do so in NFL history.

Bengals 34, Packers 14

Fullback Pete Johnson rushed for 112 yards and two touchdowns in his first start of the season, and quarterback Turk Schonert threw two touchdown passes and ran for another score as Cincinnati crushed Green Bay.

The Bengals scored four first-half TDs while taking advantage of the NFL's worst defense statistically.

Broncos 27, Chiefs 24

Steve DeBerg shredded the NFL's No. 1 pass defense for 350 yards and a touchdown, and fullback Nathan Poole added two short-yardage scores to lead Denver over Kansas City.

"I feel like our offense is improving each week," said DeBerg. "The thing we did well today was eliminate what Kansas City does well — rush the passer. They get an excellent pass rush from the ends, but (tackles) Dave Studdard and Ken Lanier did a great job of keeping them off me. Consequently, we were able to throw the ball effectively."
