Don't look now, but Iowa plays at Ohio State again next season, when Keith Byars will be trying for his a) first, or b) his second, Heisman Award.

Aaaagh!

What will it be then -26 years since Iowa has won a football game at Columbus?

What happened last Saturday. on the sunny shores of the Olentangy River was not too much different from what has happened to Iowa almost always when it plays at Ohio State. Despite best effort, despite a great comeback, despite a lot of unusual plays, or because of them, Ohio State winds up with more points on the scoreboard than Iowa. It's interesting to note that the only previous time Hayden Fry took an Iowa team to Columbus, in 1979, when his first Hawkeye team was very undermanned, it had more first downs and more total yardage than Ohio State, but lost 34-7, thanks in no little part to 10 turnovers! Saturday's game was much more competitive than that one, with Iowa actually having a chance to win throughout a great deal of the second half, but again Hawkeye turnovers and big plays by the Buckeyes made the difference. In the end, a 45-26 final score probably does not do justice to the Hawkeye effort, or the closeness of the game. And let's not, in the disappointment of a 19-point defeat, note that that comeback from 31-10 to 31-26 was outstanding. Ohio State likes to get a team down and then step on it. I've seen many Iowa teams, in such a situation, fold their tent and lose by 57-16 or some such. This one, happily, had too much poise and was too good to let that happen.

UNITED NATIONS — President Reagan, declaring he is ready for "constructive negotiations" with the Soviet Union, today proposed regular meetings between senior experts from the two sides to reduce tensions and the threat of war.

"We recognize that there is no sane alternative to negotiations on arms control and other issues between our two nations," Reagan said in a prepared speech to the U.N. General Assembly.

He said these experts and other, senior U.S. and Soviet officials could set as their goal a "road map" to guide relations between the two superpowers over the next 20 years.

"We need to extend the arms control process, to build a bigger umbrella under which it can operate," Reagan said.

The president, who once condemned the Soviets as an "evil empire," today said that, "while there will still be clear differences, there is every reason why we should do all that is possible to shorten that distance."

the recently improved "hotline" between Washington and Moscow to prevent war by miscalculation.

"America has repaired its strength," Reagan said. "We have invigorated our alliances and friendships. We are ready for constructive negotiations with the Soviet Union."

In a major step in that direction, Reagan will meet at the White House for three or four hours Friday with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko.

As for further meetings between officials of the two sides, Reagan said such regular sessions could be conducted between Cabinet-level officers and other top officials "on the whole agenda of issues before us, including the problem of needless obstacles to understanding."

He said such talks could consider exchanges of weapons-development and arms-purchase plans. Reagan also said ways should be found by next spring to have Soviet and U.S. observers at each other's nuclear test sites. The president called for negotiations to begin in Vienna by early 1985 on ways to prevent the militarization of space.

While Reagan did not accept the Soviets' demand for a test ban pre-

He urged Moscow to agree to hold "periodic consultations at policy level" to reduce tensions in various regions and said that Secretary of State George Shultz would bring up that subject with Gromyko when the two meet Wednesday.

"Spheres of influence are a thing of the past," Reagan said. "Differences between American and Soviet interests are not. The objectives of this political dialogue will be to help avoid miscalculation.

In Reagan's 44 months in the White House, U.S.-Soviet relations have been strained to their worst point in more than two decades.

Negotiations to reduce nuclear and other weapons are in suspension; cultural and scientific agreements have lapsed, and just a year ago Gromyko chose not to attend the U.N. session when he was barred from flying here in a Soviet Aeroflot plane.

But Reagan told the United Nations he is committed to "redoubling" his efforts to attain a ban on chemical weapons, a cutback in U.S. and Soviet ground troops in

For the second week in a row, Iowa had the statistics and the other team had the ball game. That's always frustrating. Still, it gives promise for the immediate future. Iowa is not being routed, or outclassed. It has lost to two fine football teams, but on both Saturdays Iowa has often been its own worst enemy. The discrepancy between statistics and scoreboard Saturday made it tough to put your finger on just where, or why, the Hawkeyes failed. For instance, bad-boy Byars of the Buckeyes is said to have had a great day, and maybe to have been the difference in the ball game. I won't disagree with that at all. I wish we had him. New panel to study mix of growth, environment

Emilie Rubright recalled the anger some Iowa City residents felt earlier this year when trees and rocks were torn from a bluff to make room for an apartment complex on North Dubuque Street.

The residents wondered, angrily sometimes, how the city could let the apartment developers destroy a hillside for apartments.

"When they're aghast at something, they just look at the city for the blame," said Rubright, cochair of Project GREEN, an Iowa City citizens group that deals with environmental concerns.

"But really, we're all the city."

On Wednesday, residents concerned about what neighborhood development does to the environment will have a chance to express their concerns to a special city committee.

The ecstasy of Elton

Singer brings adoring crowd to its feet again and again

By SUSAN CLOTFELTER Press-Citizen Reporter

Elton John didn't have to do much to make a crowd of 15,000plus people love him Sunday night in Carver-Hawkeye Arena. He got a standing ovation just by walking on stage.

The 37-year-old British piano man evidently didn't think that was enough. So he and his band and their three-panel suspended light bank kept bringing the crowd to its feet - and making the few who chose to sit sway in their seats.

With 24 albums behind him, Elton John hardly has to strain for good concert material. Flipping his pink tailcoat behind him, he sat down and got straight to work, opening with a sentimental "Tiny Dancer," then bowling the crowd over with an extended version of "Rocket Man." Here the band's sixth member, the light bank, came to life. It tilted back over the stage and opened diamondshaped wings, making the stage look like something out of a George Lucas movie. John and his band — bassist Dee Murray, drummer Nigel Olsson, guitarist Davey John-- gave the distinct imstone pression they were having fun, mimicking the Temptations on the chorus of "Too Low For Zero." In mid-song on "Bennie and the Jets," the band left the stage and John swung into a piano solo. He picked at a chord, glancing around mischieviously.

gave as good as it got.

You could say it was a crowd of fans - old and new. "I saw him on his first world tour in 1972," remembered Joe Welch, 30, of Rock Island, Ill. "He wore blue jean overalls on stage. He didn't know what glitter was then."

Tiffani Schmidt, a 17-year-old UI student, was an MTV convert. "I saw his stuff on videos first," she said.

Old or new, they stood eight times to applaud the stocky showman. And when he ripped into "Kiss the Bride," they reacted as if cued, swarming down from the bottom rows of the stadium seats to mob the floor.

Dave Carroll, 31, of Keokuk and his nine friends hardly sat down for the two hours the band played. And when they weren't sitting, they were dancing, jitterbugging even, in front of their seats. "He put on a great show," Carroll said.

Reagan hints of new Lebanon peace effort

He calls latest bombing attack an 'act of barbarism'

By R. GREGORY NOKES AP Diplomatic Writer

UNITED NATIONS - President Reagan, denouncing the "despicable act of barbarism" in the attack last week on the U.S. embassy in Beirut, hinted today that the United States was ready to begin a new round of diplomacy aimed at bringing peace to Lebanon.

"All of Lebanon's friends should work together to help end this nightmare," Reagan said in remarks prepared for delivery to the 39th session of the United Nations General Assembly.

Reagan, however, stopped short of saying directly that the United States was going to respond positively to pleas by Israel for assis- ter, Rashid Karami, over the tance in pulling Israeli troops out of Lebanon.

Secretary of State George P. Shultz had said Sunday that although the administration had left Lebanon alone since the collapse of the U.S.-brokered 1983 troop withdrawal agreement, the time might be right for another round. out for the season (Jackson and McCallum to date), he may win it by default.

But I look at the statistics and I note that he carried the ball 23 times for 120 yards. Fifty of those came on an early touchdown burst when he hardly was touched. For the rest of the game, he carried 22 times for 70 yards, an average of 3.2 yards per carry. Hey, anytime you hold Keith Byars to three yards per carry, that's great defense. He'll chew up most Big Ten defenses for much more than that. So I'm not sure Keith Byars was the difference. Or Mike Tomczak. Or anybody. It could have been too many turnovers for Iowa, three of 'em in a span of 72 seconds, two of which led directly to Ohio State touchdowns.

and Ohio State mean to 10wa's season, and where the Hawkeyes go from here.

It's a direct reversal from last year, when successive somewhat surprising wins over Penn State and Ohio State thrust Iowa into the national limelight and into a No. 3 ranking nationally. Then came the big thud at Illinois.

Some fairweather fans may be looking for a convenient stopping place to jump off Iowa's bandwagon. They are among those who believed all that pre-season stuff about No. 3 in the nation and No. 5 in the nation and No. 6 in the nation, etc. I said somewhere between No. 12 and 18 was more realistic. It seemed to me the Penn State game was no better than 50-50, and Iowa's chances at Ohio State were less than that.

As for the Rose Bowl, the chances for that now are quite dim. If Iowa wins all the rest of its games, Ohio State has to lose two for Iowa to get a bid ahead of the Buckeyes. If Iowa loses one more, Ohio State has to lose three, etc. Those aren't good odds.

But most of the Hawkeye fans

Central Europe and a treaty reversing the growth of nuclear weapons stockpiles.

"We need to find ways to reduce -- and eventually to eliminate -the threat and use of force in solving international disputes," he said.

The president also told delagates to the General Assembly:

"Today, let us dare to speak of a future that is bright and hopeful and can be ours, if only we seek it. I believe that the future is far nearer than most of us would dare to hope."

Reagan foreshadowed his speech with brief remarks Sunday night at a reception he gave for visiting foreign officials. He said, "My country will not shirk the hard work or ration its good will in our effort to deal with our differences peacefully. And we will ask other nations to make the same commitment." While Reagan has taken a conciliatory stance occasionally in the past, a hard-line approach to the Soviet Union has colored U.S. foreign policy in his nearly four years in the White House.

Democratic presidential candidate Walter F. Mondale has sharply criticized that approach as unrealistic and "very, very dangerous" and proposed a temporary suspension of nuclear weapons tests and a negotiated freeze to revive the stalemated arms control talks.

Shultz and other key Reagan advisers are careful not to claim the president's olive branch can produce instant agreements or even an immediate resumption of negotiations. "It's a gradual process," Shultz told reporters Sunday night. But they said the speech could help improve the atmosphere and make it easier for the Soviets to return to the bargaining table next year - if Reagan is re-elected.

In fact, Shultz indicated there would not be major revisions in the

Chernenko turns 73 today

MOSCOW (AP) - Konstantin U. Chernenko, the oldest man ever to become leader of the Soviet Union, turned 73 today after being awarded another prestigious medal for service to the Communist Party.

An Order of Lenin medal was bestowed upon Chernenko through a decree from the presidium of the Supreme Soviet, the state-controlled media reported.

Despite the front-page and top-of-broadcast treatment afforded the medal announcements, the media reports did not mention that today was Chernenko's birthday.

The decree bestowing the Soviet leader's new medal, the nation's second-highest civilian award, said the honor was given to the Communist Party chief "for his outstanding services in the party and state activities."

Or a couple or three big breakdowns in a defense that was otherwise very good.

Or poor kickoffs and/or poor kickoff return coverage by Iowa. (It seemed like everytime Iowa scored and made a shift in momentum, Ohio State returned the kickoff to midfield, once with the aid of a penalty.)

Or great punting by Ohio State freshman kicker Tom Tupa that helped keep Iowa in poor field position much of the afternoon. (Although please note that Gary Kostrubala's punting for Iowa also was very good.)

I think Tomczak came out ahead of Long in quarterbacking for the day, pluses and minuses added. But Tomczak had much better protection most of the time.

When he does have time, it seems Chuck often is having trouble finding receivers open, and I don't know whether this means Penn State and Ohio State had exceptional coverage, or whether Iowa's relatively experienced receivers still need much work on their routes, or whether Chuck is having trouble spotting 'em.

The question now is what the losses back to back to Penn State talked to Sunday are not greatly discouraged, and far from ready to give up. Three of 'em, in fact, in separate conversations, told me they thought Iowa has lost its last game.

I think that's a possibility, but I wouldn't put much money on it. My only pre-season prediction was that this would be a very good football team that would go to a bowl game. I still think that. A lot of very good football teams could, in the last two weeks, have lost to Penn State and Ohio State. But don't make the mistake of thinking things are suddenly going to get a lot easier. Illinois again is in a very good spot to cause the Hawks a lot of grief. It's going to take a big emotional effort to beat the Illini, and that again figures to be tough, as it was last year, on the heels of Iowa State, Penn State and Ohio State.

Somewhere, your emotion needs a rest. Illinois already took its rest at Stanford. But it is 1-0 in the Big Ten and its win over Michigan State was most impressive. I am very concerned about its crazy defensive schemes, and the fact that every Saturday it throws the football for a bundle of yards, and often a bundle of points.

I think the crowd may have to help carry the Hawkeyes in this one.

weekend. Syria torpedoed a 1983 accord for pulling all foreign troops out of Lebanon.

Reagan said today that the U.S.brokered 1983 agreement, "if implemented, could have led to the full withdrawal of Israeli forces in the context of the withdrawal of all foreign forces."

"The tragedy of Lebanon has not ended," he said. "Only last week, a despicable act of barbarism by some who are unfit to associate with humankind reminded us once again that Lebanon continues to suffer.

"This agreement was blocked and the long agony of the Lebanese continued. Thousands to people are still kept from their homes by continued violence and are refugees in their own country."

Reagan also said "the time is bound to come" when Israel reaches peace with other Arab neighbors as it has with Egypt.

The Israeli-Egypt peace agreement shows " that the negotiating process brings results when the parties commit themselves to it," he said.

Reagan also alluded to attempts by Arab hardliners to boot Israel out of the United Nations. "If universality is ignored, if nations are expelled illegally, then the U.N. itself cannot be expected to succeed," Reagan said.

On Sunday, Shultz hinted that in addition to direct talks with Syria on Lebanon, the United States might also make an approach through the Soviet Union, which has close ties with Syria.

Shultz will meet in New York with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko on Wednesday. Gromyko will go to Washington for a meeting with President Reagan on Friday.

Shultz said the United States would welcome "a constructive role" by the Soviet Union.

"We are always glad to have a constructive role played by anybody," Shultz said. "I think the Middle East is a subject that is very important to both countries."

A senior White House official said the visit of Assistant Secretary Murphy to the Middle East was planned even before the bombing of the U.S. Embassy annex in Beirut last week. "The potential for us to assist is there," he said.

Murphy was expected to visit other Middle East capitals after his stops in Beirut and Damascus. Israeli Foreign Minister Yitzhak Shamir, who was prime minister in the previous Israeli government, has proposed the new American role. He has said he wants Washington to arrange with Syria for the withdrawal of Israeli troops from southern Lebanon.

The Urban Environment Ad Hoc Committee gives the city and residents a chance to make careful studies into mixing development and the environment in Iowa City, she said.

"Project GREEN isn't against 'development," she said. "It's just against development that doesn't respect the environment."

Marianne Milkman of the city's planning and program development department said the committee should develop a clear picture of what special environmental needs exist in special neighborhoods and what kind of development could adapt to those needs. "We will probably end up with an overlay zone," Milkman said. "But . . . we haven't worked on it in detail at all."

Milkman said that if the Iowa City Council is interested, programs could be established to help developers trade environmentally fragile areas.

"There might be some areas that are so important for the city to acquire them," she said, though she added, "there are all kinds of ways of doing this which don't involve actually buying the land."

COLUMBUS, Ohio - Seen from the wide angle of a play-by-play sheet, Iowa's offensive shortcomings these past two losses seem merely acts of duplication. Fumble. Interception. Fumble. Inter- Purdue ception. Terminal turnoveritis, which hit Iowa two Saturdays ago to the tune of three fumbles and one interception in a 20-17 loss to Penn State, struck again Saturday against Ohio State. Iowa gave up two fumbles and two interceptions in the 45-26 loss to the fifthranked Buckeyes (3-0 overall) at Ohio Stadium. Iowa (1-2) went in hoping to write a happy beginning to its Big Ten season. Instead, it wrote its own obituary. "The turnovers we had against Penn State and Ohio State were the difference in the ball games," coach Hayden Fry said plainly in a telephone press conference Sunday morning. "They were critical. Every one either stopped a drive with us going in to score or set up a TD (for them) or gave them one."

This done, Byars addressed himself to reports quoting him the previous week as saying there was "no doubt" he'd win the Heisman Trophy.

"I didn't make those comments to the media like that," he reportthe Ohio State locker room celebration. He turned back only to repeat, "Your defense sure hits hard, coach."

These insights came from Fry, who saw first-hand the damage Byars wrought. The Ohio State junior tailback ran for two touchdowns, caught one and threw for another in the fifth-ranked Buckeyes' 45-26 romp over No. 14 Iowa.

"Hey, hey, he had the Triple Crown," said Buckeye quarterback Mike Tomczak, referring to Byars' running, passing and receiving abilities.

Tomczak himself started his first game since breaking his right leg in two places last spring.

Handoff to Byars for a gain of seven.

Byars, like Marines and letter carriers, works through anything. The 6-foot-1, 231-pounder went through Iowa's defense Saturday for 120 yards on 23 carries.

"The main thing he has is upper body mass," Iowa linebacker Larry Station said. "He's so big it's hard to club your arms around him. He just busts arm tackles."

Not to mention busting arms. Or legs. Or any other debris in his path. He broke Hawkeye linebacker Kevin Spitzig's tackle on his first carry of the afternoon the 11-yard pickup - and sent

"It wasn't supposed to be a pitch to Keith," Tomczak explained. "Their secondary coverage didn't agree with the formation of the linemen.

"I'd been looking for it in the films all week. It was a situation where we could catch them off-balance. We just checked-off to Keith to run at their weakness," Tomczak said.

Fan grabs victory away from Angels

By KEN RAPPOPORT AP Sports Writer

It was "Fan Appreciation Day" at Anaheim Stadium, but there was one fan the California Angels did not appreciate.

In their final home game Sunday, the Angels blamed a costly 2-1, 10-inning defeat by Texas on an over-zealous customer in the box Marv Foley. seats.

ing point for them. I was yelling all the time, 'let it go.' If you're into the game at all, you've got to let me catch that ball."

The incident gave new life to George Wright, and the Texas hitter promptly belted a fly ball that allowed Billy Sample to move from second to third. Sample then scored on a single by pinch-hitter

The loss kept the Angels in third "That cost us the game," said place in the American League Doug DeCinces, referring to a fan West, 11/2 games off the pace of Minnesota and Kansas City. Those two teams moved into a tie after

Kansas City dropped a 5-1 decision to Oakland.

Foley's single was just out of reach of first baseman Darrel Miller and California manager John MacNamara felt the extra base gained by Sample on the controversial play was decisive.

"It changed the complexion of the inning by changing where we played," said MacNamara, referring to the Angels' defensive alignment. "With a man on second, Miller plays deeper at first, and the ball went just under his glove."

Brian Downing's homer, his 22nd, with one out in the second inning gave California a 1-0 lead. But the Rangers tied it in the eighth on Tommy Dunbar's RBIsingle.

Texas right-hander Dave Stewart, 6-14, pitched all 10 innings for only his second complete game. Stewart walked two, struck out three and held the Angels to four hits.

In Minnesota, Randy Bush snapped an 0-for-17 slump with a two-run, tie-breaking homer in the sixth inning and Rick Lysander pitched four scoreless innings in relief to lift Minnesota over Cleveland.

Minnesota's Mike Smithson, Ed Hodge, Lysander, 4-3, and Ron Davis combined on a five-hitter Davis finished up for his 29th save.

The score was tied 1-1 in the bottom of the sixth when Jerry Ujdur, 1-2, walked Kent Hrbek. On a 2and-2 count, Bush hit his 10th homer to put Minnesota ahead 3-1.

"I was surprised. I was just trying to make contact and hit the ball up the middle," Bush said. "It's been a long drought. I didn't do anything different today, I just kept concentrating and kept hack-

Payton would have been embarrassed anyway.

"I don't care how many yards I got today," Payton said. "What matters is that we didn't win."

Seattle won 38-9 in a most bizarre game that left both teams with 3-1 records. For example:

 The Bears' defense, which entered the game as the best in the league, allowed Seattle only 37 yards in the first half and 203 in the game.

• Seattle led 10-7 early in the second quarter even though the Seahawks had no first downs and had minus-one total yards.

 The Seattle defense let Payton run up and down the field for 116 yards to raise his career total to 12,091. Harris had 23 and slipped to third place with 12,032.

But most of the Bears' 301 total yards came on their 80-yard gameopening scoring drive. And that was sparked by a 39-yard pass interference call on the game's first play.

PETE JOHNSON, acquired in a trade from San Diego 24 hours earlier, first passed a urinalysis test then scored a TD for the Miami Dolphins Sunday.

The defending AFC East champions sent a second-round draft choice in 1985 to San Diego for the 270-pound fullback, but said the trade was contingent upon Johnson passing a urine test that Chuck Muncie and Rickey Young had each failed in the past 10 days.

Johnson, who rushed for 46 yards on 19 carries in three games for San Diego, was a second-round draft choice of the Cincinnati Bengals in 1977.

He was suspended for four games in 1983 afer admitting that he had purchased drugs, but came back to gain 763 yards in Bengals' last 12 games.

Harmon ran for 132 yards. Gill, playing fullback for the first time because of regular Fred Bush's ankle injury, rushed for 69.

"Obviously, this is what we wanted to work up to all along," Fry said of his new backfield. "Those two guys are potentially two of the finest running backs in the nation. It's just a matter of our line coming along. Our line has really come along on run blocking and the pass blocking has been good, too." The Hawkeyes rolled up 458 total yards in the game compared with Ohio State's 320. Iowa had 466 in the loss to Penn State. "We have moved the heck out of the football even with our new offensive line," Fry said. "Normally 26 points will win a ball game, but it didn't yesterday. RUTHERFORD

JOHNNY RUTHERFORD was just breezing along, enjoying a very fast Sunday drive, when a serious accident and a rain shower interrupted his fun.

Rutherford, who led all 33 laps until the wet weather forced postponement of the remainder of the Detroit News Grand Prix Indy-car race until today, was averaging a sizzling 207 mph before a crash involving Derek Daly and John Paul Jr. brought out a caution flag on lap 26 at Michigan International Speedway.

Daly, a 31-year-old native of Dublin, Ireland, who now makes his home in Noblesville, Ind., was reported in fair condition in the University of Michigan Hospital at Ann Arbor, suffering from badly broken feet and ankles, a broken left hand and a bruised abdomen.

AMY ALCOTT thinks her game "is just coming around" after 10 years on the LPGA Tour.

"I'm playing better and putting better than I ever had before," said Alcott, who captured the $175,000 San Jose Classic by two shots Sunday over the par-73, 6,290yard Almaden County Club course.

Alcott's closing round in the 54-hole tournament consisted of two birdies and a bogey for a 72 to hold off Pat Meyers, Kathy Whitworth, Betsy King and Beverly Klass, who were at 213.

"I used to be a good putter, but now I'm a great putter," said the 28-year-old Alcott, who won her fourth tournament of the year and the 21st of her tour career. "My game is more consistent and I'm more patient in hitting my shots."
