'Beat-up' but upbeat, Hawkeye offense has outplayed last year's

Ship crashes off dry dock into water, injuring 30

Hayden Fry was about as happy at mid-afternoon Saturday as I have seen him in months months and and months. Maybe since the win over Ohio State here a year ago. He was positively exuberant.

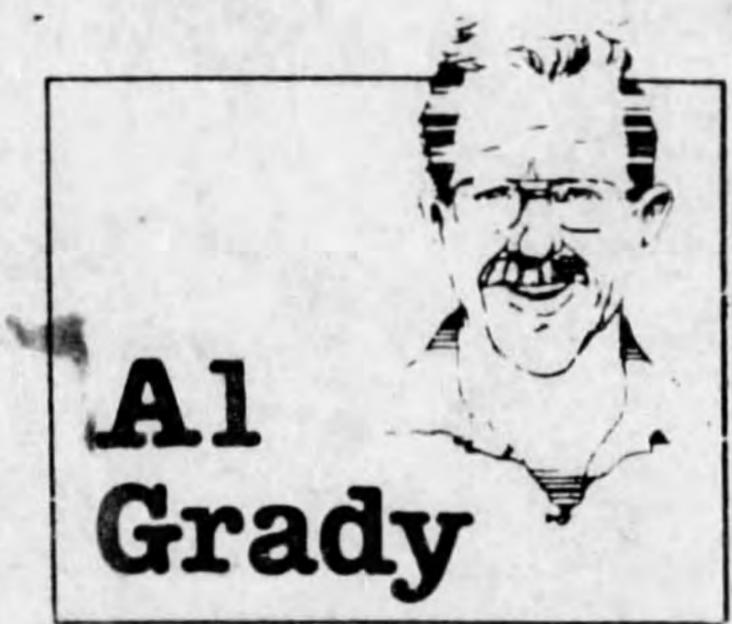

And why not?

He had just seen his deadgame Hawkeyes outlast Illinois in a thriller that may turn out to be the key to another very good season.

You'd have to appreciate how deeply worried Hayden was about the physical condition of his team throughout the week to appreciate his great joy at game's end.

said time and time again last week. But he has often said before, "Nobody cares how many players you got hurt. They want to know how you came out."

No doubt about it, the Illinois game was a big one, although Hayden tried his best to downplay the importance of it beforehand. Had the Hawkeyes lost, they'd have been 1-3 and certainly the chance of any kind of "major" bowl game would have been lost. In fact, the Hawaii game might have been Iowa's bowl game. But as it is, everything is still pretty much on target for the 1984 season. In April and June and August everyone was concerned about those first four game, especially Hayden, who said, "We're fighting the clock with such a young offensive team." Guesses on those first four games ranged from 4-0 to 1-3. To have come out alive with a 2-2 record and with a better football team than you had going in is not so bad.

done themselves proud. They may stand up and take a bow, because without them Ronnie Harmon and Owen Gill might be unable to stand up and take a bow.

Look what that offensive team did Saturday when the "We are really beat up," he chips were down. Illinois had just scored to make it 14-9. There were 12 minutes and 14 seconds to play. Iowa took the ball and marched it 80 yards in seven plays, taking just three minutes and 28 seconds. Of the 80 yards, 74 were covered by the sensational Harmon, who wasn't so dumb when he said he wanted to be a running back.

Then the Illini, tough and tenacious and courageous and clever, came right back to score again. So it was 21-16 with six minutes and 18 seconds to play. Momentum was back on Illinois' side, their defense was fired up, and I had the feeling if Illinois got the ball back one more time it might win the ball game. But it never did, thanks to Iowa's offense. The Hawkeyes took the ball and ate up the rest of the clock. They got five first downs and they covered 84 yards — actually 90 since they lost a yard on first down and later overcame a five-yard penalty. Of that yardage, 62 went to Gill, who really should not be called a "Baby Bull" anymore, just a Big Bull. In Ronnie Harmon, incidentally, we may be seeing the blossoming of one of the truly great running backs in almost 100 years of Hawkeye football history. If he stays healthy, and with maybe as many as 21 games yet to go in his Hawkeye career, there's no telling what heights Ronnie may reach. Rarely, and perhaps never, in fact, have we had at Iowa a back with his size and his speed and his elusiveness and his ability to catch the football. See Ronnie run. . . .

NORFOLK, Va. - A Spanish cruise ship with about 150 sleeping crew members aboard fell off a dry dock and crashed on its side into the water early today, briefly trapping about 50 people and injuring 30, authorities said.

The 50 people trapped inside the overturned vessel were rescued or got out on their own, according to the Coast Guard.

"Everybody is off the ship," said Coast Guard Petty Officer Tom Armstrong____

Bob Smith, coordinator of emergency services with the Norfolk paramedics, said there were seven major and 23 minor injuries, all being treated at hospitals.

"Some are extremely critical, most are minor," Ms. Donner said.

The accident occurred at 3:48 a.m. at the Norfolk Shipbuilding and Drydock Co., said Don Haupt, director of paramedical rescue in Norfolk.

In fact, if you had told Hayden Fry that this young offensive team was going to score more points through the first four games than the veteran offensive unit of a year ago, he wouldn't have believed you. But it is true. Iowa has scored 123 points in its first four games, a 31-point average, as compared to 113 a year ago.

And the comparison for total offense isn't so bad, either. A year ago, after four games, Iowa had rolled up 1,817 yards. This year the Hawkeyes are only 122 yards behind that figure at 1,695.

So I'd say offensive line coach Kirk Ferentz and the guys who play up front, and the guys who filled in Saturday for the ones who were hurt, have Blackstone the Magician sawed me in half. Or did he?

I don't know for sure and neither does the audience at Blackstone's performance Sunday afternoon at Hancher Auditorium.

There I was sitting in my seat in the auditorium, watching Blackstone make a rabbit disappear inside a crumpled newspaper.

("You say there's nothing inside," Blackstone said to the nineyear-old boy who had been holding the rabbit and the newspaper.

"What did you expect?" Blackstone said, answering his own question. "It's the Press-Citizen.").

And not five minutes later I was up on stage, lying on a bench and Blackstone was sawing me through the middle with a yard-long bucksaw.

I have to be honest and say that I knew he was going to call me up on stage to be a part of the trick - but he didn't tell me how he was going to do it.

After he pretended to coax me up on the stage, he proceeded to "hypnotize" me by having me stare into the balcony lights while he waved his hand up and down in front of my face.

"Your eyelids are starting to get heavy," he said, along with all the other hypnotists' mumbo jumbo.

The audience still didn't know that I was to be sawed in half -Blackstone told them he was going to levitate me.

Then he told me to sit on the bench and then to lie down.

Transplant bill deadlocked as time runs out By JUDITH HORSTMAN

Gannett News Service

WASHINGTON - As the clock ticks toward adjournment, the House and Senate remain deadlocked over one provision of a national organ transplant bill that would help match donors to recipients.

Unless it's resolved, the bill will die with the 98th Congress and the process will have to start over again next year.

That's cause for concern for those who need transplants to survive, says Charles Fiske, of Bridgewater, Mass., whose 3-year-old daughter Jamie is alive today only of the best in the country, there is some small concern that Iowa's passing attack, at least right now, is not as fearsome, not as explosive, as it has been in the past couple of seasons.

Maybe that's because the relatively new receivers aren't running routes as well as they should be. Maybe other teams are playing pass defense better. Maybe Chuck Long is hurting physically even more than we have been told. Whatever, he is having more trouble finding open receivers, and throwing more interceptions, than we have become accustomed to. But Chuck Long is in a bind. For two years he has been sensational. This year there was Heisman Award talk. So now if he is only good, that is cause for concern. He's like the guy who hits 47 home runs one season to lead the majors. The next year he comes back with only 32. That's still third high in the league but for him it's an "off" season.

pass defense is not very good for an experienced group of defenders. But it's hard to say what's good pass defense today. Illinois makes everybody look bad on pass defense.

I guess the bottom line is that Iowa won 21-16, and might have had another touchdown at the finish if Hayden had so decreed.

The kickoff return coverage was much better, and the punt coverage was almost flawless. And if the pass defense wasn't what we would have liked, holding an explosive Illinois attack to just three points in the first half turned out later to be a big key to winning the ball game.

Now is the time when Iowa's football team can begin to flex its muscles. It is not out of anything yet. It is one game behind last year's pace, but it can make that up against Michigan here later.

Then he removed the bracket and there I was inside the bucksaw. I sat up, he lifted it over my head and helped me to my feet. The audience responded with roaring applause.

Well, Chuck will pick it up soon, I think. And when Iowa gets its passing and running both in high gear on the same Saturday, look out!

As long as we're talking about passing, how about saluting Jack Trudeau and the Fighting Illini. How do they do that? They follow Dave Wilson with Tony Eason and then Trudeau and almost no one stops their passing. Trudeau com- umnist.

Next come road trips to Northwestern and Purdue. Both teams are obviously improved and one must make the assumption that both could be difficult games.

But Iowa may be starting on a roll. When it begins playing some 60-minute football games on both sides of the scrimmage line, counting the running and the passing, and the blocking and the tackling, it could be a handful for just about anybody.

"Legislative demonstrations abound, as an appeal to this or that special interest passes one house with full understanding that it will not pass the other."

The House last week passed a money bill laden with electionyear goodies such as public works projects. The Senate, trying to pass its version of the emergency measure, is mired in a fight over civil rights legislation that supporters want to tack onto the money bill.

"Late hours, polarization as a result of the pending election and the abandonment of normal procedures to speed up the process all combine to make it a time of frazzled nerves and collective recrimination," Conable wrote.

The prospect that Congress may not meet its target of adjourning by Oct. 5 has shortened tempers

In enabling transplants that are less than a perfect match to succeed, cyclosporine puts invalids back into the workforce where they not only pay taxes but also may get insurance that would pick up the cost, argues the House. Senate conferees say cyclosporine is still experimental, even though approved by the Federal Drug Administration, and recent studies show it causes kidney damage. Federal reimbursement would encourage dubious donorrecipient matches that could lead to multiple transplants as repeated organs fail, the Senate side argues, and it would set a dangerimmune-supressant ous precedent for federal funding of prescription drugs.

7 children die in fire

By PETER MATTIACE Associated Press Writer

MEADVILLE, Pa. - Three little girls who died in a house fire that also killed four other children and an adult apparently perished when the roof they climbed to collapsed, authorities said. Two adults escaped unhurt from the pre-dawn fire Sunday, which may have been started by a kerosene heater, authorities said. One of those who escaped the blaze, Anna Robey, 24, apparently led two of her children and another child onto a porch roof, said Crawford County Coroner Arden Hughes. "It's my understanding they were taken out there by Mrs. Robey, who then jumped off the roof, which was in flames," Hughes said. "Then the roof collapsed." The five other victims died on the second floor, said Vernon Central Fire Chief Tom Benak. Hughes identified the dead as: Shirley Swartz, 46; and her grandchildren, Winona Robey, 5; Adam Robey, 3; and Miranda Robey, 8 months. Also dead were: Jason Bailey, 9; Michael Bailey, 8; Anthony Bailey, 6; and Melissa Onesky, 21 months; all of the Meadville area, the coroner said. Winona Robey, her infant sister, Miranda, and toddler Melissa Onesky were found in the rubble of the front porch, Hughes said. Hughes said the Baileys and the Onesky child were being cared for overnight at the house.

The Chicago Cubs are the baseball hit of 1984. Nearly everyone outside of San Diego wants to see the colorful Cubbies in the World Series.

But it won't be easy. The Cubs have a lot more fans and got much more ink than the Padres, but there is little to choose between the two teams in the National League championship series opening Tuesday afternoon in Chicago.

They split the season series 6-6. They each were 3-3 at home. San Diego scored 53 runs and Chicago had 49.

The Cubs imported expensive veterans Ron Cey, Gary Matthews and Rick Sutcliffe. The Padres added Steve Garvey, Rich Gossage and Graig Nettles.

Each team has a general manager who cleaned house to build a winning roster: Chicago's Dallas Green and San Diego's Jack McKeon.

Each team has a manager dumped by other organizations and eager to prove his worth: Chicago's Jim Frey and San Diego's Dick Williams.

"Some of us were even saying that this would be just like the Ohio State game last year," Trudeau said. "We scored in the final minute there to win. We were saying this would be the same."

Then Ronnie Harmon ran for 15. 3:45 left.

"The clock was winding down, but we knew what we had to do," Trudeau said. "We were talking about what was working for us, what passes were open. We weren't talking specific plays yet because we had to see where we hopes. One minute, 7 seconds later they were gone, expired by one of the most effective ground attacks since Bull Run. The Hawkeyes' final drive consisted of 14 running plays. Iowa's final 21 plays of the game were rushes.

"Obviously, Illinois anticipated us to throw the ball and so we had an advantage in running it," Iowa coach Hayden Fry said in his Sunday morning telephone press conference.

"Illinois' defense has a veteran secondary," Fry said. "We picked on the weakest part of their team. We knew that would be the easiest thing to do: to run the ball and take time off the clock and keep it away from them."

Iowa ended with 313 yards rushing. Harmon ran 28 times for 191 yards and all three of Iowa's touchdowns. Gill had 115 yards on 16 carries.

Most pleasing to Fry, however, was that this proved his newly built offensive line is performing. "That performance really should give them confidence," said Fry of his line. "They played more like veterans than youngsters. I told them at our workout Press-Citizen/Jeff Myers

Witt 'awe struck' atter pertect game

By The Associated Press

The 1984 season ended on a perfect note for Mike Witt.

The California right-hander threw the 13th perfect game of nine innings or better in majorleague history as he retired every Texas Ranger that came his way Sunday and the Angels ended the season with a 1-0 victory.

"I was awe struck," Witt, 24, said. "Getting 27 outs is incredible. All you're trying to do is get outs. All I know is it's hard as heck to get."

Witt went to three balls on just one batter - Wayne Tolleson in the seventh inning - and threw just 94 pitches as the California outfielders recorded only four putouts.

Witt, 15-11, did have butterflies, but only briefly as the final inning began.

"I was real nervous walking out there (to start the ninth inning) until I threw the first pitch," Witt said.

It was the third no-hitter of the season. Detroit's Jack Morris no hit the White Sox April 7 and eight days later David Palmer of Montreal retired all 15 batters he faced in a rain-shortened victory over St. Louis.

The last nine-inning perfect game was thrown by Cleveland's Len Barker on May 15, 1981 against the Toronto Blue Jays.

Harmon has time for all

A kid would approach Harmon head-on. Harmon would turn his back, then jump around to face the kid again. "Oh, you want my autograph?" he would say in mock surprise. "My autograph?"

They'd laugh, the kid and him. And he'd sign: "Ronnie Harmon. #31."

What Ronnie Harmon, #31, did to Illinois was also very nice if one happened to be a Hawkeye partisan. He gained 191 yards in 28 carries - both career highs and scored all three Iowa touchdowns. Sixth in the country in allpurpose running heading into the game, Harmon ran back one kickoff for 12 yards - below his 27.5 average. Harmon's running style is something akin to rain rolling down a window pane: quick, stop-and-go, finally hitting an open spot and shooting away. One has the feeling that Harmon never made an unexciting run in his life, even to the refrigerator. Harmon, a junior running back, ran the outside against Illinois; Owen Gill, the senior moved from running back to fullback in the absence of the injured Fred Bush, worked the inside for 115 more yards. Behold: Iowa's Mr. Inside and Mr. Outside.

Harmon played the game with two jammed fingers on his right hand, the digits taped together almost like a Boy Scout salute; an aching back and knee. Part of the game, Harmon as much as said, playing with injuries like that.

Of course, bones would have to be poking through the skin before Harmon would sit out a game such is his love of the sport. As he said early last week, "Sometimes I sit and watch the (game) films and think I want to play forever. At the beginning of the season, I really get into it. Every fall I feel this energy coming to play football again. "I've read where the pros say that the time to get out is when you can't get up for a game anymore. But that feeling isn't existent with me."

The two New Yorkers sat together for a minipress conference after the game, bejewled and jolly. And nice.

"We couldn't reel off those runs if it wasn't for the offensive line," Harmon said, and Gill nodded agreement. "We appreciated them a lot. We wish they could be up here right now.

"But since it's us up here, we want them to know we appreciate them, and that we're all together in this."

With that, Harmon began ticking off the names of the honored missing: Wester and Glass, Sindlinger, O'Brien and Haight.

Harmon also credited Gill with Harmon's mother, Jacqueline, attended Saturday's game, having stayed the week with friends in Iowa City. Her husband, Jesse, had to remain behind in Queens, in New York, having spent his two weeks' vacation watching Ronnie start the Iowa State and Penn State games here.

Jesse and Jacqueline raised five boys, counting Ronnie. They range from 18 to 23 years of age. Only Gary, 22, the musician in the family, never played much football. Greg, 23, plays fullback with a semipro team, the Brooklyn Kings; Derrick, 21, former star running back at Cornell University, is a rookie with the San Francisco 49ers of the National Football League; then comes Ronnie, 20, and Kevin, a reserve freshman quarterback at Iowa, who will be 19 on Oct. 26.

Jacqueline's fresh, open face has been stamped on both Ronnie and Kevin. She feels close to all her boys in different ways, she says — and with Ronnie's name comes a particularly poignant story.

"We had six boys once," she said. "The baby was Michael. He died when he was four months old of crib death. Ronnie was two or three years old, too young to know what really'd happened. Just a little guy. "But he saw by the way I was that something was acting wrong. And do you know what? He would not let go of my hand all night. He didn't even want to go to sleep. "The little guy," she said, just kept wanting to hold my hand."

Cubs 2, Cardinals 1

Thad Bosley hit Chicago's tying run in the ninth and then scored the game-winner when St. Louis catcher Glenn Brummer threw a potential double-play relay wild to first. The Cub victory denied St. Louis reeiver Bruce Sutter a record 46 saves. The Cubs finished 1984 at 96-65 atop the N.L. East to earn their first postseason trip in 39 years. They will face the San Diego Padres in the National League Championship series beginning Tuesday. The Cardinals, World Champions two years ago, closed out at 84-78, third in the East. Rookies Danny Tartabull and Jim Presley belted consecutive first-inning homers and rookie left-hander Mark Langston captured the American League strikeout title as the Mariners beat the Chicago White Sox. Longston, 17-10, struck out nine and finished the season with 204, six more than Toronto's Dave Stieb. Langston became the first American League rookie since Herb Score of Cleveland in 1955 to lead the league in strikeouts.

sumptuous blocking for him, in a cause that helped lowa even its overall and Big Ten records at 2-2 and 1-1, respectively.

But it was Gill's power running that advanced Iowa from its 16 to the Illinois four late in the game. Harmon then said he took himself out of the game to ensure that Gill would get his rightful chance to score. "He really deserved it," Harmon said.

It never happened, however, because time ran out.

Hawks hog ball, run Illini to defeat

Lost in the running shuffle was Iowa quarterback Chuck Long completing seven of a career-low 14 passes for 73 yards and two interceptions. Long said he wasn't worried about his statistics; just the final score.

"I knew in the first five minutes of the ball game that we could run all day on them," Long said. "We were never put in a position where we had to throw.

"I could've been zero-for-zero passing-wise and we would've still won," he said. "It seemed like we had second down and five all day. The game wasn't as close as it seemed because we should've had two more touchdowns." NOTES: Fry said injured starting defensive nose guard Hap Peterson should return either this week against Northwestern or the following Saturday against Purdue. Peterson underwent arthroscopic knee surgery last week. Fry, who last week said revenge of last year's 33-0 loss to Illinois didn't provide Iowa with incentive, reversed himself Sunday. "I'd be telling you a story if we didn't work harder," Fry said. "You get beat 33-0 and you stay up a little later. Added Fry later: "I wish, frankly, I'd instructed Chuck to fall down on the ball when we had it at the (1-yard line) there in the end. We told him to hold onto it and he tried a (quarterback) sneak. I think it would've shown some class on our part to have him fall down. I remember last year when we were at their 2yard line at the end of the game and they brought their No. 1 defense back on the field to preserve the shutout. . . . " Fry said he was happy Iowa's most difficult portion of the schedule - with Iowa State, Penn

Don Mattingly collected four hits, including his first three at-bats, to capture the 8 50 American League batting crown over teammate Dave Winfield and help the New York Yankees to victory. Mattingly who trailed Winfield by two percentage points before the final game of the season at .341 to .339, went 4-for-5 with two doubles to finish at .343. Mattingly's final hit in his last at-bat was a bad-hop single over the glove of second baseman Scott Earl. Winfield then grounded to third, forcing Mattingly at second base. After Winfield was lifted for a pinch-runner, he and Mattingly shook hands and left the field to a standing ovation. Winfield had an infield hit in four at-bats, leaving him at .340. timore

State, Ohio State and Illinois was over. "It's kind of like a new season (now)," Fry said. "If we continue to improve and keep people healthy, we can have a real fine season. That running display yesterday (Saturday) has got to please people who like the Hawks. . . . "

Fry said he noticed "about seven or eight seconds" before the game's kickoff that "something was haywire. I started to yell at the players to expect something." Illinois kicker Chris White kicked an onside kick that Iowa's Kirk Banks fell on after a scramble. . . .

How would you explain this man's recovery from baldness?

Len G. had been balding for close to seven years. Yet, in the past two years, his hair seemed to grow back.

Was it due to a miracle? A hair transplant? Or a secret baldness remedy?

No, it wasn't any of these. The appearance of new hair growing back was the result of the new Gradual Hair Replacement procedure.

It's the new process that gradually adds new hair back into your own over a period of time. Not growing hair. But hair that looks like it's growing.

So no one will ever know how your hair gradually reappeared.

Gradual Hair Replacement.[™]

The new process that no one's talking about.
