Dears roast, not toast, Eason

By Dave Albee Gannett News Service

CHICAGO - To appreciate the Chicago Bears' defense Sunday, you had to feel it.

The player who felt it the most was New England Patriots' quarterback Tony Eason.

"You try to make things happen," Eason said, "but it seemed everywhere we went they had a person there."

Eason found that out in the second quarter when 6-foot-5, 263pound end Richard Dent wound up intercepting one of his passes at the Bears' nine-yard line, even though the play originated at the New England 49. Somehow a down lineman intercepting a pass 42 yards downfield is frightening.

In general, the Bears ruined an entire afternoon for Eason, who was returning for the first time to the state where he first gained national fame and fortune as a football player.

The last time Eason was in Illinois they called him Champagne Tony when he quarterbacked the Fighting Illini to the Rose Bowl. The Bears made him look like Club Soda Tony.

They intercepted the third-year New England quarterback a pro career-high three times and sacked him six times, scraping his left knee and bruising his ego.

Not all was Eason's fault. The Bears' defense limited the Patriots to 27 yards rushing.

This, in turn, forced Eason to throw. And sometimes pray. On one three-play series, Eason was decked by Dent on first down, harassed into an incompletion (one of 20) by a wave of blue jerseys on second down and collared by linebacker Otis Wilson on a blitz on third down.

. "The key," Eason said, "was our defense was on the field. My God, they must have been on the field all day long and playing their minds off."

Eason and the Pats offense were on the field for just 22:35 in the 60-minute game and all but about six seconds of it was spent in their own territory. The only time New England crossed midfield in the game was on a Soldier Field-record 90-yard touchdown pass from Eason to fullback Craig James, who caught the ball at the Pats' 39-yard and outraced the Bears defense the rest of the way.

"We were humbled," Eason said. "We were shut down. I never thought we'd get shut down like

The main culprit was All-Pro linebacker Mike Singletary. He sacked Eason three times, each time when the Patriots came close to invading Bears' territory at midfield. He also intercepted an ill-advised pass late in the third quarter.

The charm's still there

Only Drake didn't have a good time

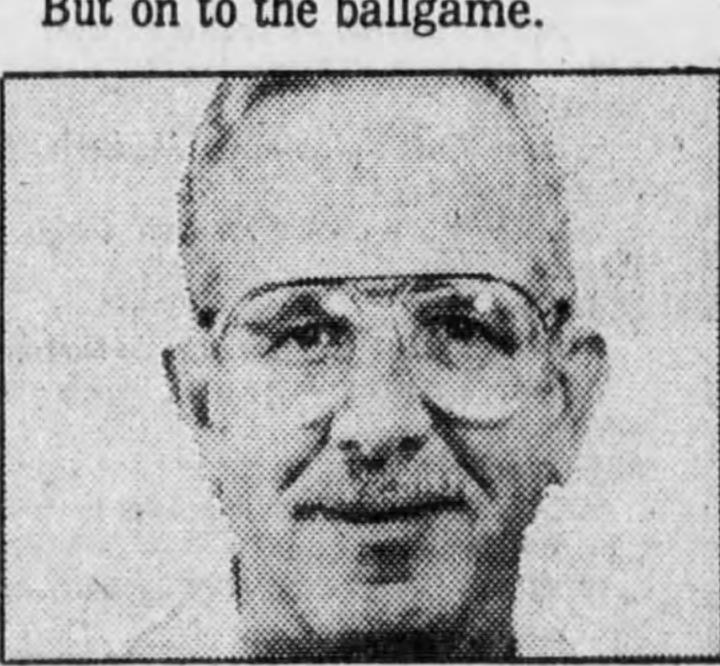

Except for the foul mouths in the student section, Saturday was a pretty nice day at Kinnick Stadium.

With a vocabulary like that, who needs cheerleaders?

Nile Kinnick, the gentleman scholar and football player for whom the stadium is named, must have rolled over in his grave at the barnyard epithets being tossed around.

What they need, maybe, is an education.

But on to the ballgame.

AL GRADY

As expected, it didn't prove much. But a good time was had by all, except the Drake Bulldogs, who must have wished, in retrospect, that they could have gone home at halftime.

Having stayed alive in the first half through a combination of some aggressive defensive play and very little blocking by Iowa, the Bulldogs virtually committed suicide in the second half, which made the final score worse than the apparent difference between the teams. Iowa's five touchdowns and a field goal produced what may have been a record 37 points in the third quarter, but keep in mind that Drake helped out with, or was badgered into, two short punts, two fumbles and a bad snap on another punt attempt.

We used to say that you couldn't hope to stay in the game if you made mistakes against teams like Michigan or Ohio State or Notre Dame or USC. I guess one of the things one can say nowadays is that you can't hope to stay in the game if you make mistakes against a team like Iowa. For the afternoon, I thought Iowa's defense was more impressive than the offense, chiefly because the offense did not demonstrate a consistent running game, and that primarily because of a lack of effective blocking.

The fact that the defense may have performed better than a 58-point offense has to be heartening, because it is the defense that was causing preseason concern, and may still do so against teams of sterner stuff than Drake.

But against the Bulldogs, Iowa's defenders had plenty of

Who said the Big Ten couldn't win a nonconference game? Big Ten football teams enjoyed one of their finest moments Saturday by recording nine victories in nine games, but it wasn't all that easy.

Just listen to the coaches and you'll be able to tell which teams won't forget Saturday's games this week in practice.

"Their kids played their hearts out and deserved to win," said Illinois coach Mike White after a Southern Illinois field goal attempt for a tie fell short in the final minute of play. White's Illini won, but only by a 28-25 margin.

"I feel fortunate and lucky, I'm glad the first game is over," said Michigan State coach George Perles. His team slipped past Arizona State, 12-3.

"Embarrassing," said Ohio State coach Earle Bruce, whose Buckeyes gained just 48 yards rush-

In fact, the win vaulted Schembechler's team into the USA Today Top 25. With Bo's boys ranked 22nd, the Big Ten has four teams ranked this week: Iowa at No. 3 (up from fourth), Ohio State at No. 5 (up from seventh) and Illinois remained at No. 19.

Hawks work more magic in 3rd quarter

By Steve Carlson

The Press-Citizen

You might think scoring points would get old after a while.

"It never does," said Iowa wingback Scott Helverson, who scored two of the Hawkeyes' eight touchdowns in Saturday's season-opening 58-0 win over Drake. "You never get tired of scoring."

It apparently got old for the fans Saturday at Kinnick Stadium. Long before the last touchdown was scored, some of the 66,135 fought the ennui with alternate means of entertainment. They tried to resurrect last year's fad, The Wave; they tossed footballs around the stadium every time a field goal or extra point kick went into the stands; and they had a little mindless, deplorable fun screaming obscenities back and forth.

But the players, they're apparently able to better adjust to having a big lead. After all, the Hawkeyes, who when last seen were leading Texas 55-17 in the Freedom Bowl, stuck to the task Saturday and have now scored 113 points in their last two games.

owa coach Hayden Fry said the third quarter has been "magical" for his team in the years he has been here. With a school-record 37-point third-quarter against Drake, and 31 points in that period against Texas, the Hawkeyes have pulled 68 rabbits out of their helmets during the third quarters of their last two games. Last year, Iowa outscored its opponents 101-13 in the third quarter.

However Fry said he never dreamed the Hawks would total 58 points against Drake. The number of points probably wasn't surprising to most people, but how long it took Iowa to start rolling them up was. For the first 29 minutes of the game Saturday, Drake essentially played Iowa dead even.

"We knew we were going to be a little slow coming out of the chute," Fry said. "We hadn't scrimmaged since last spring. But we didn't plan on being that How slow? Well, Iowa only

Iowa's halftime lead would have been even more flimsy were it not for a 60-yard pass from Chuck Long to running back Ronnie Harmon. Yanks add another Niekro to roster

Joe Niekro was scheduled to pitch for the Houston Astros in Atlanta tonight, but a sudden and surprising career detour will find him in New York wearing a Yankee uniform.

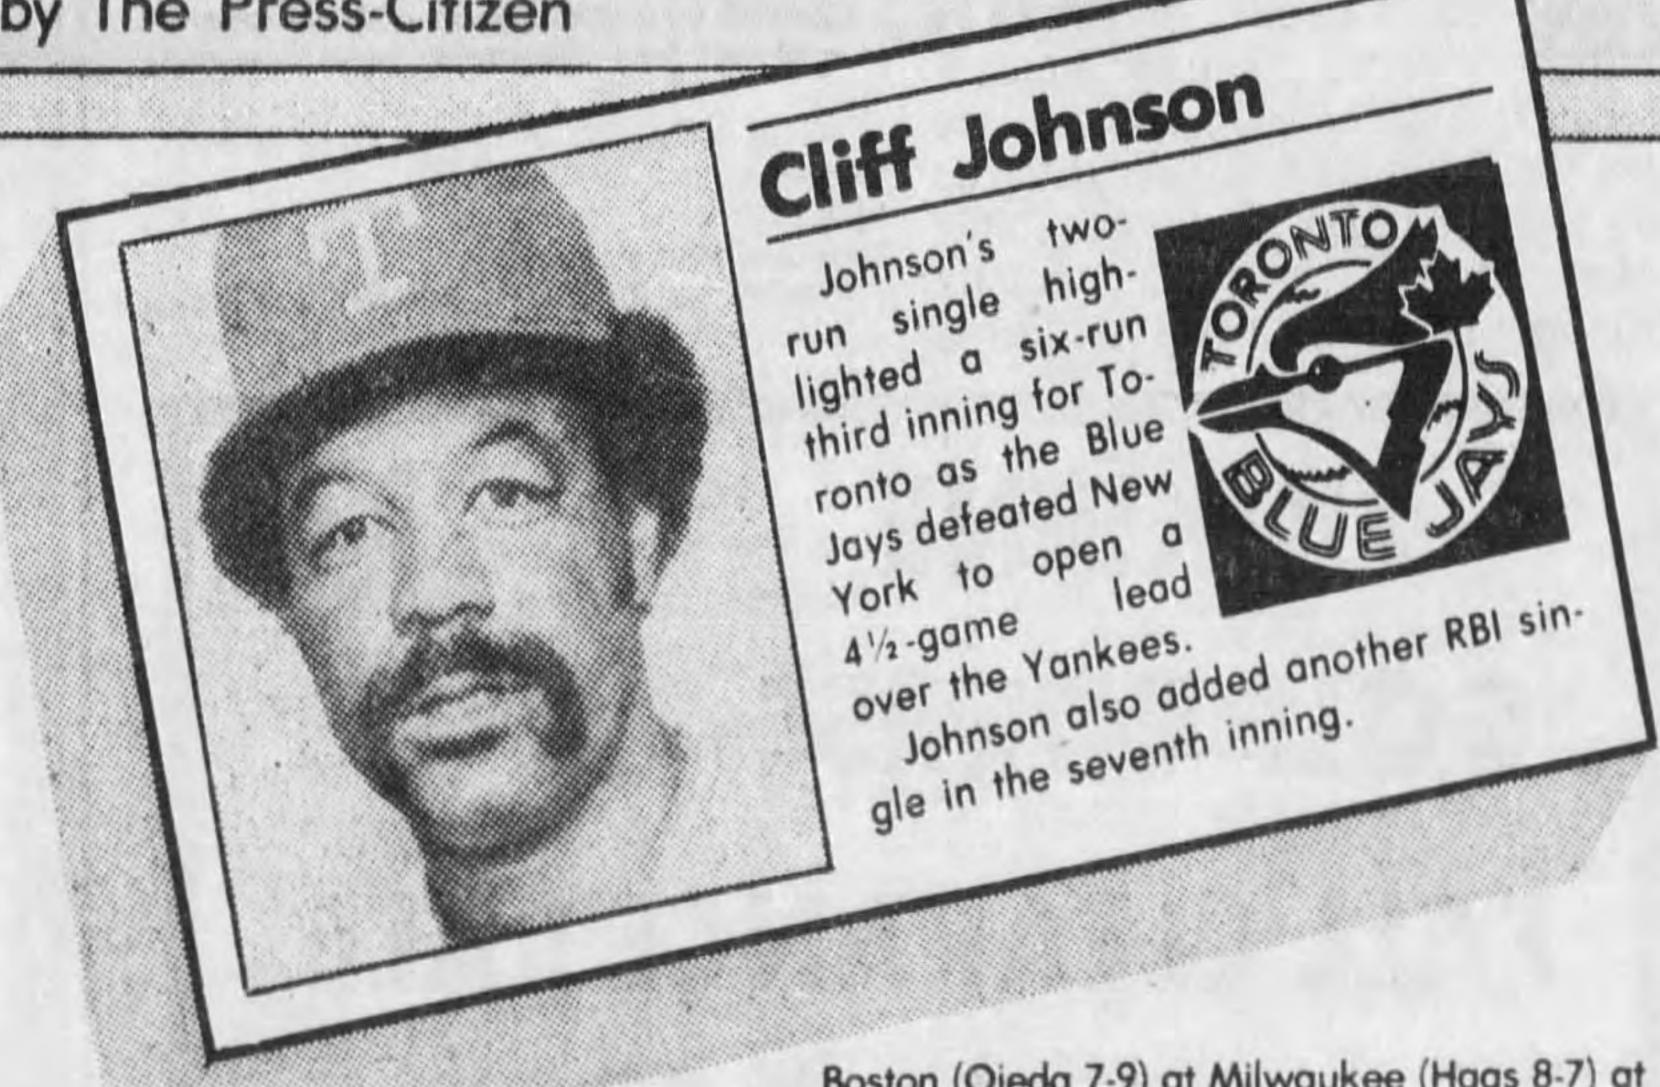

Three days after hearing new Astros General Manager Dick Wagner say that signing the knuckleball specialist was a priority, Niekro was traded to the Yankees Sunday in exchange for minor-league pitcher Jim Deshaies and an unnamed player.

I was shocked when my agent called and asked if I would give my approval," the 40-year-old Niekro said. "I'm sad to go. I have lots of friends here. I never wanted to leave Houston. But sometimes you don't get what you want."

Niekro, 9-12 with a 3.42 earned run average, said he at least was happy to become a teammate on the Yankees with his brother.

"I am happy to go to a club like the Yankees and play with a guy I truly love, Phil," Niekro said. "I wanted to see Phil win his 300th game but I thought I'd be in the stands and not in the dugout."

University of Iowa field hockey call. coach Judith Davidson is looking to add a few good women to her team.

In the meantime, Davidson will have to make do with her squad, which is ranked behind only Old Dominion. Davidson's opinion of the rating: "Much too high."

Still, the Hawkeyes picked up three more victories over the weekend at Northern Illinois, outscoring their opponents, 13-1. Iowa defeated Toledo on Friday, 3-1, 20th-ranked Ball State Saturday, 4-0, and then clobbered Northern IIlinois Sunday, 6-0. Senior Marcia Pankratz scored seven goals to raise her season total to 12.

Iowa's start this season might seem impressive to some, but not to Davidson.

"To the trained eye, we have a long way to go," she said. Meanwhile, Davidson is still looking to add to her roster. "I'm looking for that - how should I put this? — that star player," she said.

The Hawkeyes travel to New Hampshire next weekend for games against three Top 10 teams. Iowa takes on No. 7 Massachusetts Friday, No. 3 New Hampshire Saturday and eighth-ranked Connecticut Sunday.

Carner has fun with Safeco win

JoAnne KENT, Wash. Carner, who hadn't won a golf tournament since February, said she was just hoping to "have some fun and not get uptight" during the final round of the Safeco Classic.

Carner had a lot of fun Sunday, firing a bogey-free round of 4under-par 68 for a two-stroke victory over Jan Stephenson in the JOANNE CARNER

$200,000 Ladies Professional Golf Association tournament. Carner finished 72 holes over the 6,202-yard Meridian Valley Country Club course with a score of 9-under-par 279. She collected $30,000 for the 42nd triumph of her Hall of Fame career. "It's been a long time since February," said Carner, who last won in the Elizabeth Arden Classic at Miami, the second stop of the 1985 tour.

She pulled a muscle after that victory, took a couple of weeks off, then began battling such problems as flu, a bronchial condition and a wrenched back. "When I started playing like I was, my putting went bad. At the Henredon (at High Point, N.C. in early August) I missed seven four-footers. "I had to make some changes. I started to pick it up in Portland" last week, when she tied for fifth in the Ping Champion-

Her improvement continued in this tournament.

"I was trying to stay out there, have some fun and not get uptight," Carner said of Sunday's round.

MORE GOLF: Sam Torrance of Scotland scored the clinching point Sunday as Great Britain-Europe ended 28 years of frustration and defeated the United States 161/2-111/2 in the biennial Ryder Cup golf matches. Torrance led his teams' comeback 1-up victory over U.S. Open champion Andy North, marking the first British-European victory since 1957.

AUTO RACING: Brazil's Ayrton Senna drove his Lotus-Renault to victory in Sunday's Belgian Grand Prix, the 12th of 16 scheduled races for the world championship . . . Elsewhere in racing, Harry Gant ran off to an easy victory Sunday in the Delaware 500 Grand National stock car race, while Darrell Waltrip hung on for a second-place finish and closed in on Bill Elliott's season point lead. Gant, winning the grueling 500-lap race on the one-mile, high-banked oval at Dover Downs International Raceway for the second straight year, pulled steadily away following his last pit stop of the day 101 laps from the end.

HORSE RACING: Spend a Buck, the winner of the Kentucky Derby and a $2 million bonus which helped make him thoroughbred racing's second richest horse ever, was retired from racing Saturday, his co-owner Dennis Diaz said. Spend a Buck was scheduled to race in the Pennsylvania Derby Sunday at Philadelphia Park, but after a workout Thursday morning it was discovered he had a filling in his right front ankle.

"I certainly wasn't impressed with our run blocking early in the ballgame," Fry said. "I think we had 15 yards at the half, that's got to be an all-time low. I got on the offensive people pretty good at halftime and I think they perked up a little in the second half. But the field position really is what changed the momentum of the game."

Finally, after two surprisingly close quarters, Drake apparently realized this wasn't their game with Texas-Arlington. That comes Oct. 12. This was Iowa . . . Big Ten fifth-ranked quarters.

From the Hawkeyes' drive at the end of the first half until the first time they had the ball in the fourth quarter, Iowa scored on eight-straight possessions. In six third-quarter possessions, Iowa only started in its own territory twice — once from the 37-yard line and once from the 46. Three times the Hawks began inside the 20yard line.

Drake, meanwhile, didn't get a third-quarter first down until the second-to-last play of period. How long did that third quarter seem to the Bulldogs?

"Too long," said linebacker Wade Harman. "We just got ourselves in bad field position and couldn't get out of there. We (the defense) were out there a lot, but they were sticking it right into us. We needed to come up with the big play ourselves."

Drake never got it. Iowa didn't commit one turnover in rolling to its widest margin of victory since a 64-0 squeaker over Northwestern in 1981.

"Geez, anytime you lose by a score like that it hurts a little bit, said Drake starting quarterback Ed Cheatham, who injured ligaments in his right ankle on the Bulldogs' last play from scrimmage in the first half and only played one offensive series in the second half. "Everybody has pride and it's a litttle demoralizing."

The Bulldogs' running backs had to be the most demoralized lot on the team. The Iowa defense set a school record by holding Drake to minus-36 yards rushing. Fourthstring quarterback John Lawrence led the Bulldogs with 10 net yards on three carries. Fullback Peter Mangold was the leader among running backs with two net yards

Iowa allowed Drake just 148 yards of total offense, a figure which left the Hawkeyes ranked first in the nation after Saturday's games. And Sunday morning, after digesting game films, Fry said he was more impressed with the way his team played than he had been immediately after the game. Fry called linebacker Larry Station "possibly the best player on the field." He said Station was in on 12 tackles - seven solos and five assists — and received the highest grade for a linebacker since Fry has been at Iowa. "I feel better after really breaking down the game film this morning," Fry said. "I haven't seen one thing we made mistakes on that can't be corrected. We didn't really make any major mistakes."

have good time much as the offensive linemen; From page 1B bite. Larry Station, for one, was all over the field, making big hits called a split-four with four here and there and everywhere. Same for Hap Peterson, who spent a great deal of the afternoon in the Drake backfield.

And I thought the new strong safety, Jay Norvell, was another guy who had a nose for the football and seemed very willing to give up life and limb to get after it. Hayden Fry expresses concern over his team's depth at linebacker and defensive end, and he's probably right, but I thought ends like Doug Burrell and Robert Grafton and George plays by Tyrone Berrie, who must be a walk-on. It'll be nice to have Richard Pryor and Bruce Gear back soon, and maybe Sean Ridley will be ready to help out if needed, but consider, if you will, that Iowa played virtually the entire game, and scored a shutout, without its top four defensive ends of a year

Millett and Joe Mott played very well, and I noticed several nice

On offense, the lack of line blocking, especially in the first half when Iowa netted 14 yards on 15 carries, was really the only criticism. There could have been two reasons for this: One, the first team had had no live scrimmaging this fall, and perhaps no unit needs that as and two, Drake gave Iowa an unusual look of what might be linebackers. Whether this caused some problems I don't know. But it is a fact that Fred Bush and Ronnie Harmon were being tackled in the backfield way too much in the first half. And it is a fact that Iowa totaled 156 yards on the ground in the second half after that 14 in the first. So whatever was said at halftime must have helped, which usually happens with Hayden Fry teams, inasmuch as third quarters have almost always been big for him here. Still, I would imagine the review of game films was a bit uncomfortable for the offensive linemen Sunday and today. I imagine we'll see 'em get after it a bit more quickly this week. Chuck Long's passing was excellent, and so was that of Mark Vlasic. And the receivers lived up to their advance billing. And the kicking strength and accuracy of Rob Houghtlin was mighty pleasing, too. All in all, there wasn't much than you did last. Al Grady is a Press-Citizen sports columnist. His column appears Mondays, Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays.

But I'll bet you'll see a better

Iowa football team this Saturday to be unhappy about.
