Burden lifted from acquitted Malone

By Greg Philby
City Editor

After about two days of pacing floors, smoking cigarettes and "beginning to wonder if the jury was in the same courtroom that I was in," Dennis J. Malone was cleared Friday morning of a first-degree arson charge.

Malone, 37, "shared a big hug" with his wife, Diane, his brother John and Diane's grandmother in Johnson County District Court after the seven-man, five-woman jury returned the not guilty verdict.

Malone had been accused of setting a fire Dec. 3, 1982 in the basement of his business The Bicycle Peddlers which also destroyed Comer's Pipe & Gift Shop, Lind's Printing Service, Inc., and WGN Cos., Inc., all located between 13 and 15 S. Dubuque St. The blaze caused about $1 million damage and firefighters battled the fire from about 9:45 p.m. until late the following morning.

"It's a big burden off my mind," Malone said, who came back from his home in Harrisburg, Penn., for the trial. But "I had a lot of confidence in my attorney, (Philip Reissetter), and the fact I was innocent of the charge" helped get Malone through the two-week trial.

"It's just a relief to have it over with and for the jury to find out what we've known all along," said Des Moines attorney John Malone.

DIANE MALONE SAID she and her husband were "getting to be a pretty morbid couple" after the second day of jury deliberations passed without a verdict. She said she "cleaned and washed the car, hoping it would help the time pass or that the phone would ring."

Although their minds were "numb" after waiting that long for the verdict, the family was confident in the outcome.

"There was no way (the verdict) could've come back the other way," said Sharon Roberts, a sister of Diane Malone. "All along, I've never once doubted Dennis, but of course the jury didn't know him. What if they didn't hear it all? How were they to know? One (juror) was even asleep" during testimony, she said.

Roberts received a phone call from her sister following the verdict, who told her "Yahoo, everything's fine," Roberts said. Malone could have been found guilty of either first-degree or second-degree arson, with the first-degree charge carrying a maximum penalty of 25 years in prison.

Speakers discuss religion in Nicaragua

By Kirk Brown
University Editor

The state of emergency limiting civil rights announced by the Nicaraguan government last week will not hinder the broad religious freedoms most of that nation's population enjoys, predicted a group of local speakers Sunday evening.

"The churches have been pretty much left alone," despite the government's announcement, said Mauro Heck, a UI student from Brazil who visited Nicaragua last summer. "In Nicaragua there is plenty of room for ideology."

Heck's assessment of the situation was shared by two other local men who recently visited Nicaragua and spoke during a panel discussion Sunday evening at Trinity Episcopal Church.

"As far as exactly what the state of emergency entails, it is less severe than what happened in 1982 when all civil rights were banned," said Tom Fate, a UI graduate student in English.

FATE SAID information he has heard in the past week indicates the state of emergency declaration in Nicaragua was prompted by attempts of the Catholic Church's right-wing hierarchy to help the sons of elite families dodge the national military draft and also the expected intensifying of terrorist activity from CIA-backed Contra forces.

Fate emphasized, however, that the efforts of the Contras and right-wing Catholics are not supported by the majority of Nicaraguans, many of whom have split from the traditional views of the church to form "Christian-based communities" that were instrumental in bringing the Sandinista government to power in 1979.

"On the books it looks bad," said David Wall, a local member of Trinity Episcopal Church, in See Nicaragua, Page 5A

Iowa place-kicker Rob Houghtlin jumps in celebration of his game-winning 29-yard field goal against Michigan Saturday as time ran out. The win keeps the No. 1

Council eyes city service fees

By Gretchen Norman
Staff Writer

As an alternative to raising property taxes, the Iowa City Council will discuss Monday night a study to implement user fees for services provided by the city.

The additional revenue gained by the fees could amount to about $265,000, less than 1 percent of the city's total operation budget.

Councilor Larry Baker said user fees would "delay an increase" but property taxes may be inevitable because "Iowa City is not at the top of its allowable property tax assessment."

LAST DECEMBER, the five-year financial projections indicated a growing dependence on property taxes. User fees would charge only the residents who use a city service or face a fine for breaking a city regulation, rather than increasing property taxes for all residents.

"I believe the fees should be charged to the people who use" the city services, said Councilor Ernest Zuber. "Many others (residents) subsidize things they don't use, and it's not in the best interest of the city."

The city finance department completed the study for the council this month after spending about one year on the project.

ZUBER SAID animal control is an example of an area supported by many but used by few residents.

"Only a few people use them but everyone pays," he said.

"People who don't use them shouldn't be charged."

According to the study, expenditures for animal control have increased an average of 7 percent annually since 1981, and the current fees must increase to keep up with costs. Animal licenses, reclaiming animals, board fees and acceptance fees would jump 50 percent to 75 percent from the current rates. "The fees should at least cover the costs," said Zuber.

Zuber said although "the fees would amount to less than $300,000," people would be paying for things that never before had a charge.

AMONG THE NEW fees recommended by the finance department is a 1 percent retail sales tax on the sale of tangible personal property, gas, electricity, water and renting a room for fewer than 31 consecutive days. This option tax, which must be approved by Iowa City residents, would earn an estimated $2.6 million for the city.

"We should use every other possible way to raise money before going to a retail sales tax," said Baker. "I'm not enthusiastic about it right now. Nobody's enthusiastic about it at this point."

The finance department also recommended several other new fees be installed, including investment of police and fire department pension and retirement funds, $15 charges for re-inspections of fire and housing inspection services, a $5 vehicle registration tax, $1 fee for parking in airport public lots, sales proceeds of city-owned properties and a $5 charge for police officers to unlock cars. RECREATION facilities also might experience increases to relieve property taxes. The largest jumps would occur in admission prices to swimming pools. According to the study, an annual pass for a youth could increase by $7 and adult passes could increase $9.

Hawks take thriller as time expires

Michigan quarterback Jim Harbaugh is sacked by Iowa's Hap Peterson for a four yard loss in the first quarter of Saturday's 12-10 Hawkeye win over the Wolverines. Iowa remains undefeated on the season and will face Northwestern this Saturday in Evanston, Ill.

By Melissa Rapoport

Iowa football Coach Hayden Fry beat the oddsmakers, becoming the third team ever to defeat Bo Schembechler's Michigan Wolverines two years back-to-back.

Although rated the No. 1 team in the country, the Hawkeyes were tabbed the underdogs before Saturday's contest at Kinnick Stadium.

Iowa's 12-10 win, however, proved the oddsmakers wrong — even Fry is ready to believe the Hawkeyes' top spot is not a fluke.

"I'm not even going to think about that," Fry said in reference to whether the game was Iowa's most memorable. "In fact, I'm even gonna vote us No.1."

Rob Houghtlin

FRY MAY HAVE even received a pack of gum he may never open. "It's too bad someone had to lose," the Iowa coach said. "I told him (Schembechler) he had a great team and he said, 'But you have the greatest.'"

"That was quite a compliment coming from Coach Schembechler," he continued. "He even gave me a pack of gum. I might frame it."

Statistically, the Hawkeyes defeated the Wolverines in every facet of the game, but Iowa's domination was not reflected on the scoreboard. Even though Iowa more than doubled Michigan's offensive output, 422 total yards to the Wolverines 182, the Hawkeyes were down 10-9 with two seconds remaining in the game.

Football

Rob Houghtlin's record-tying fourth field goal of the day, started on Iowa's 22-yard line with 5:27 left on the clock.

AFTER TWO STRAIGHT incompletions, Long completed three of four passes, including two third-down conversions to tight end Mike Flagg.

In becoming the first player to rush for over 100 yards against Michigan this season, Harmon ran seven times, totaling 34 yards in the final drive. As the final carrier of the 16-play drive, Harmon, who totaled 120 yards on 32 carries, gained four yards with 22 seconds left on the clock, putting Houghtlin in field goal range.

The Hawkeyes allowed the clock to run down to two seconds before calling time out. Immediately, Michigan exercised its right to a time out, giving Houghtlin time to think about his could-be, game-winning kick.

WHEN THE HAWKEYES finally lined up, back-up quarterback Mark Vlasic held what Houghtlin described as a "perfect" snap. The perfect snap converted to a perfect 29-yard field goal.

Great Britain's Steve Jones crosses the finish line to win Americas Marathon in Chicago Sunday. Jones finished in 2 hours, 7 minutes and 13 seconds, two seconds off the world record.

Jones, Benoit take marathon victories

By Steve Sands
Staff Writer

CHICAGO — Great Britain's Steve Jones burst out in world record pace in Americas Marathon/Chicago Sunday, but his last ditch effort to recapture the mark fell two seconds short.

Valiantly kicking the last 100 yards, Jones stretched for the record but his finishing time of 2:07.13 narrowly missed Carlos Lopes' 2:07.11.

Jones had broken the record last year in Chicago with a 2:08.05 in his first complete marathon, but Portugal's Lopes erased that mark last spring in the Rotterdam Marathon.

Joan Benoit Samuelson set a new American record in the women's race with 2:21.21, shaking off Norway's Ingrid Kristiansen towards the end of the race.

However she also came up short of the world record 2:21.06 set by Kristiansen last year in London.

JONES, A ROYAL Air Force technician, broke away early from the pack of contenders including runnerup Robleh Djama, of Djibouti, and third-place finisher Rob deCastella of Australia.

Jones was clocked at 47.01 at the 10-mile mark. He continued his blazing pace consistently three to four minutes ahead of the world record pace.

But it caught up with Jones toward the 20-mile mark with his splits falling.

Running a 4:38 10th mile, Jones slipped to back-to-back 4:54s in the 18th and 19th miles. Toward the end, he clocked 5:06 splits for the 22nd and 23rd miles.

"Maybe," he said. "If I had held back a little through the first half, I could have run one to one and a half minutes faster."

BUT HE SAID the pace felt comfortable, until the later stages.

"About 21 miles, I really started feeling quite tired. My legs were tighter and I really had to concentrate to keep my form and pace."

The British marathoner said he did not think he was close to the world record until he neared the finish.

"It wasn't until I was halfway down the straight that I realized the people were going wild and I could see the clock," Jones said. deCastella took out the remaining pack but said his strategy did not pay off. After he made the Cardinals come back to take 2-0 advantage

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — The St. Louis Cardinals, baffled for eight innings by Charlie Leibrandt, solved the mystery in the ninth with four runs — three coming on Terry Pendleton's double — to defeat the Kansas City Royals 4-2 Sunday night for a 2-0 lead in the World Series.

After a travel day Monday, the best-of-seven Series moves 250 miles down Interstate 70 to St. Louis for Game 3 Tuesday night. Bret Saberhagen will pitch for the Royals and Joaquin Andujar for the Cardinals.

Leibrandt had allowed only two hits and retired 13 batters in a row over the first eight innings. But he placed himself in trouble in the ninth when Willie McGee led off with a double.

The left-hander appeared to settle down by retiring the next two batters. But Jack Clark, swinging on a 3-0 count, singled to left to score McGee and cut the Royals' lead to 2-1.

ROYALS MANAGER Dick Howser then elected to stay with Leibrandt instead of using ace reliever Dan Quisenberry to pitch to Tito Landrum.

Howser's decision to stay with Leibrandt backfired when Landrum blooped a double down the right-field line, moving Clark to third. After Cesar Cedeno was walked intentionally, Howser still stayed with Leibrandt even though the left-hander was looking into the dugout, practically begging to come out.

Pendleton, a switch-hitter, drilled a double down the left-field line to score all three runners.

No team has recovered to win a World Series after dropping the first two games at home.

Ken Dayley, who relieved starter Danny Cox in the eighth inning, was credited with the victory and Jeff Lahti pitched the ninth for the save.

THE ROYALS outthit the Cardinals 9-6 but managed only two runs, courtesy of RBI doubles in the fourth inning by George Brett and Frank White.

Landrum again proved an outstanding replacement for injured outfielder Vince Coleman. In Game 1 he played excellent defense while going 2-for-4 and scoring the go-ahead run. Sunday night he went 2-for-4 with a run scored.

Coleman, who suffered a leg injury last Sunday at Busch Stadium when the tarpaulin ran over his leg, may play in Game 3.

The Royals took a 2-0 lead in the fourth. Willie Wilson led off with a ground single to right and scored on Brett's double to the right-field corner.

White followed with a double to score Brett. White moved to third on an infield out but was stranded when Cox struck out Jim Sundberg and got Steve Balboni on a fly to center.

Team performance concerns Hassard

By Brag Zimaneck
Staff Writer

The Iowa women's cross country team lost a close battle to Big Ten rival Illinois, 27-30, at Pinkbine Golf Course Saturday morning.

"It was a very close and disappointing loss," Iowa Coach Jerry Hassard said. "I still think we need to run in a meet where all of our athletes perform well and I think that's something we're going to work on before we go to Big Ten's and districts."

The Hawkeyes were defeated by only the fifth team this season overall and second Big Ten team this year.

Illinois Coach Malcom Coomber believes it was a big win for an Illinois squad that has been underrated so far this season.

"This win means a lot," Coomber said.

"I guess coming into this meet everybody told me that Wisconsin would be favored in the Big Ten and then probably Illinois and then Northwestern and Iowa. We haven't run against Northwestern so running against Iowa and finishing ahead of them is a plus."

GOING INTO Saturday's meet the Hawkeyes were ranked 16th in the nation and Coomber feels that the Fighting Illini should receive some recognition before heading into the Big Ten Championships to be held Nov. 2 in Ann Arbor, Mich.

"It should enable the girls to get some recognition. They have not been ranked this year and there are teams in the top 20 that we know we can beat and there are a couple in there that we have beat," Coomber said. "Our one top class race was in the middle of September so we've been ignored since then."

Leslie Hawkins of Illinois won the 5,000-meter race with a time of 17:33 and was followed by teammate Kellie McNee, who finished 23rd at last year's NCAA Championships, and Iowa's Janeth Salazar.

Though it was cold and the course was very wet, Hawkins believes it didn't make a difference because she has run well in those conditions in the past.

"I'M USED TO the colder temperatures and since it stopped raining before the race it wasn't so bad after all," Hawkins said. "I think we had a good race and I think we are going to get better and better."

The rest of the scorers on the Iowa team after Salazar were Renee Doyle, Tricia Kiraly, Kristen Watters and Rachelle Roberts.

Both Illinois and Iowa will have to regroup for the Big Ten Championships as top runners from both squads were unable to perform Saturday because of injuries.

Iowa's expectations too high at Michigan

By Dan Millea
Staff Writer

The Iowa men's cross country team gave a dismal showing at the Central Collegiate Championships in Kalamazoo, Mich. Saturday, finishing 13th in a field of 15 teams.

Eastern Michigan won the meet with Illinois and Illinois State taking second and third.

Iowa Coach Ted Wheeler had hoped to come away from the meet with a placing in the middle of the pack, but because of continuing injury problems the team fell far below those expectations.

WHEELER WAS disappointed with the performance, and said he had probably been too optimistic about this team earlier in the season.

"Coaches are so narrow minded, they only see things from their own perspective," Wheeler said. "I'm aware of that and I try to avoid it, but sometimes I can't. Coaches aren't dumb; they just tend to be too optimistic sometimes. We have talent, but it isn't (physically) sound."

The reason the runners aren't sound is the injury difficulties suffered by nearly every runner this season.

Sean Corrigan and Louis English missed Saturday's meet completely; Corrigan because of an upper thigh strain and English due to a series of muscle pulls in his abdomen and groin.

BILL THIESEN, John Dobbs

Cross Country

and Al Greene did run, but all three are recovering from injuries and are still below full strength.

In fact, Greene may have made his thigh injury worse during Saturday's race, according to Wheeler.

"I didn't realize it till we got into the race, but we shouldn't have run Al because he isn't healed," Wheeler said.

This season was racing for the first time and Wheeler said the meet was treated as a trial run for him, giving him some exposure to competition before the Big Ten Championships, Nov. 2.

THE HAWKEYES had just three healthy athletes Saturday: Danny Waters and two freshmen, Chris Novak and Brian Nichols.

The one bright spot for Iowa was Waters' performance. He had finished first in each of the Hawkeyes' previous three meets, and although his time of 25:09 was not good enough to win Saturday's five-mile race, Wheeler was very impressed with the senior's effort.

"Danny Waters was just sensational," Wheeler said. "He finished fourth in a very, very competitive field."

Hawkeye win makes race for Rose Bowl berth clearer

UPI — Iowa has cleared a major hurdle toward its first undisputed Big Ten title in 27 years during the weekend but the top-ranked Hawkeyes still face some major obstacles down the road.

The Hawkeyes, thanks to a 29-yard field goal by Rob Houghtlin at the final gun, edged Michigan 12-10 in a nationally-televised game on Saturday.

The win gave Iowa a 3-0 mark in the conference and a 6-0 slate overall, the lone Big Ten team with a perfect record.

But all Iowa can say right now is that it is tied with surprising Minnesota, which handled Indiana 22-7. The Golden Gophers are also 3-0 in the league.

OHIO STATE and Illinois stayed in the race. The Buckeyes, celebrating the return of Keith Byars, outlasted Purdue 41-27 while the Illini rebounded with a 30-17 victory over Michigan State. Both clubs are 2-1, tied with Michigan for third.

In the other Big Ten game, Northwestern ended a long drought at Wisconsin by beating the Badgers 17-14 on John Duvic's field goal at the buzzer.

Iowa is at Northwestern next Saturday and the Hawkeyes must play at Ohio State the following week. On Nov. 9, Illinois pays a visit and the Hawkeyes close the season hosting Minnesota.

AS EXPECTED, the Iowa-Michigan game was a close affair with defense dominating the contest. Iowa could not manage a touchdown but got four field goals from Houghtlin.

"Coming into the game, we were No. 2 in all those defensive categories headed by Michigan, so I knew we weren't that bad," said Iowa Coach Hayden Fry. "The mark of a great team is doing what it has to do to win." Houghtlin's field goal left the Iowa crowd into a frenzy and it is the crowd that left a bad taste in the mouth of Michigan Coach Bo Schembechler.

"Iowa people should never criticize Wisconsin fans," said Schembechler, referring to Fry's criticism of the Wisconsin fans the week before.

FOR THE SECOND straight week, Purdue's Jim Everett posted big yardage numbers, throwing for 497 yards. But it wasn't enough as Byars gained 106 yards and Ohio State posted the victory. Ohio State forced five turnovers in the game.

"We did things today we usually don't do," said Purdue Coach Leon Burnett. "Turning the ball over is not like us."

Byars had been sidelined with a broken right foot earlier in the season but scored two touchdowns in the final 4:41.

"You saw the return of Keith Byars," said Ohio State Coach Earle Bruce. "Can you imagine any athlete — any athlete — who can be out six weeks and then perform the way he did today. He most certainly tied our team together."

ILLINOIS SPOTTED Michigan State the early lead and then exploded for its sixth straight victory over the Spartans. Jack Trudeau was 29 of 39 for 265 yards and one touchdown and Chris White set a Big Ten record with three field goals, increasing his career mark to 47.

IOWA CALLS timeout with 2:51 to play.

Harmon gains 13 on first down to the Michigan 27. Next play, Iowa penalized 10 yards for holding. First down and 20 Iowa from the Michigan 37.

Harmon gains three yards and the Wolverines are penalized 10 yards for defensive holding. Michigan Coach Bo Schembechler disagreed. "That was unbelievable," he said. "I don't know where that (official) came from." Iowa first and 10 from the Wolverine 27. Harmon loses a yard. Long hits fullback Fred Bush for six. Timeout Michigan at the 54 mark.

Fullback David Hudson gains six over left guard for a first down at Michigan's 16. Under a minute to play.

HARMON GAINS four yards. Iowa Coach Hayden Fry calls timeout with :02 left to play.

Iowa kicker Rob Houghtlin trots on to the field for 29-yard attempt. Houghtlin has accounted for all nine of Iowa's points and is three for four on the day. The Iowa kicker had missed on his last attempt from 44 yards out.

Schembechler makes Houghtlin sweat a bit more by calling another timeout.

decision to chase Jones, the Australian said he was in a difficult position because the other runners, including Djama, settled in behind him.

"I ended up doing all the work," he said.

Although the weather was cool, both runners complained of a strong wind on the course.

BERNIT SAMUELSON said she had thought of breaking the world record and even dipping below 2:20 but changed her mind before the race.

"I went out for a run along the lake front yesterday and I said there is no way," she said. "I'm going to have to change my race strategy completely."

Both Benoit Samuelson and Kristiansen were on record pace also, but the winner said she began to feel weak at the halfway point of the marathon.

"About 13 miles," she said, "I felt really weak. At that time, I thought 2:20 was definitely out of sight and I didn't know if I could hold on for a win."

Benoit Samuelson regrouped around the 20-mile mark, though, and steadily increased her lead over Kristiansen. "I came very close to saying, 'OK, just hold on for second', and I was happy I was able to keep my bullhead and keep going."

THE 1984 OLYMPIC gold medalist, who is used to winning races all by herself, said Kristiansen applied the pressure this time.

"It was definitely my fastest marathon," she said. "I didn't feel as in control in this marathon as I had in other marathons."

Over 12,000 runners toed the starting line at 8:45 a.m. in the Daley Plaza of downtown Chicago. The 26 mile, 385 yard course wound its way through many of the ethnic neighborhoods and along Lake Michigan before finishing in Lincoln Park on the north side.

For their winning efforts, Jones and Benoit Samuelson collected $35,000 for first place, $10,000 for a course record, and $13,000 for finishing under 2:08 for men and 2:24 for women. They missed collecting $50,000 for world records.

goal, putting a fairy-tale ending on a near-perfect day.

Michigan's defense, which has allowed only one touchdown in the 1985 season, put up a brick wall to keep its string intact. The Hawkeyes efforts to reach the goal line were totally devoid of success.

Houghtlin, a former walk-on, was Iowa's entire scoring offense, booting four field goals to tie Dave Holsclay's school record set in 1977 at Minnesota.

Prior to the game-winning field goal, Houghtlin fell short of a 44-yard attempt in to the wind with 7:38 remaining in the game, breaking a string of 10 good kicks in a row. The Miami (Ohio) transfer did not let the miss intimidate his final try.

"IF YOU THINK about missing," he said, "you're going to miss it. ... I knew when I hit it, it was good."

In fact, Houghtlin didn't anticipate having to kick on the drive. "I really thought we were going to get a touchdown," he said. "Then at about 1:24 I started to get an itchy feeling we were going to kick."

The Iowa offense came close to scoring a touchdown several times but got hit with a severe case of the hard knocks. In the Hawkeye's first drive of the second quarter Iowa moved the ball from the Iowa 36 to the Michigan 18 with under 10 minutes to play until the half.

On third down with 12 yards to go Long hit Scott Helverson deep in the end zone. The back judge ruled Helverson out of bounds. Instant replay showed Helverson with both feet in bounds.

THE SHOULD-BE touchdown ended in Houghtlin's first field goal of the day, putting the Hawkeyes on the scoreboard first.

Michigan however, retaliated, marching the ball into the end zone in only eight plays.

The Wolverines started their pilgrimage downfield with a 60-yard kick off return by Jamie Morris, who led Michigan's rushing with 70 yards on 14 carries. With 7:55 left until halftime, quarterback Jim Harbaugh hit Gerald White to score the only touchdown of the day and take the lead, 6-3.

A successful point after by Mike Gillette put the Wolverines up, 7-3.
