Agents say Harmon got $54,000 while he was Hawk standout

By TOM WITOSKY

Register Staff Writer IOWA CITY, IA. — Former Iowa Hawkeye running back Ronnie Harmon received thousands of dollars in improper payments during his final two years in college, his former and current agents said Thursday.

Lloyd Bloom, a New York City agent who represented Harmon until last August, also said he feels no remorse for paying money to Harmon as an inducement to become one of Bloom's clients.

Such payments would appear to violate National Collegiate Athletic Association rules.

"What civil law or criminal law have I broken?" asked Bloom, who, along with New York agent Norby Walters, represents a host of athletes and entertainers. "None. The only thing that has been broken are the silly rules of the NCAA, which doesn't care at all about athletes."

Car Loan

Bloom said Harmon received more than $54,000, including a loan to purchase a Mercedes automobile, during and after his final two years at Iowa.

Rausch, a Buffalo, N.Y., labor lawyer and agent, said there was "no ques-Bloom and Walters during his final Spiils owans two years in college.

But Rausch said Bloom and Walters misled Harmon into believing such payments were permissible. "Those two have to be exposed as the most flagrant set of characters who ever came down the pike, Rausch said. "Ronnie is not the type of person to do something illegal or otherwise, but they dangled a lot of money in front of him."

Rausch said Harmon, who now plays with the Buffalo Bills of the National Football League, would not answer any questions about the case. University of Iowa officials react-

Vatican report Harmon's current agent, Martin on procreation

By LISA COLLINS Register Staff Writer

Some Protestant church leaders in Iowa criticized the new Vatican policy statement on human reproduction Thursday and said the Roman Catholic Church is hasty in condemning the involvement of modern science in procreation.

But Iowa Catholic leaders expressed support for the Vatican statement and said test-tube babies and surrogate mothers are not the answers for couples unable to conceive by natural means.

In the statement released Tuesday, the Roman Catholic Church called for a ban on test-tube fertilization of mothers' eggs, surrogate mothers and other scientific methods of procreation. The church also called for governments of the world to put strict limits on medical interference in human procreation.

Protestant leaders agreed with Catholic officials' suggestion that people should consider the moral and ethical implications of artificial insemination. But the Protestants criticized the Catholic church for shutting its doors on using science to help married couples have children.

Democrats plot state tax revision plan

Sales, cigarette levies could be in for a boost

By JANE NORMAN

Register Staff Writer Iowa Senate Democrats are studying an income tax revision plan that includes a 1-cent increase in the state sales tax, possibly a 10-cent-a-pack boost in the state cigarette tax and changes in tax rates that won't affect the amount of revenue raised.

In addition, said Senate Majority Leader C.W. "Bill" Hutchins, senators may try to make the sales tax increase effective June 1, which would bring in $15 million additional revenue to the state that could provide some type of property tax relief.

Details of the plan, which would be contained in one bill, are sketchy, and Democrats still are hammering out an agreement that will win 26 votes in their 30-member caucus. Democrats will need the 26 votes to pass the bill in the full Senate.

"Flim-flammed" Hutchins, an Audubon Democrat, said members of his caucus are being "flim-flammed" by Republican Gov. Terry Branstad and Republicans in the Senate because Branstad and GOP legislators disagree on a tax

"We in the majority get caught in the middle of that," said Hutchins. "That's why we need consensus within our own caucus."

The plan is expected to be discussed next week by Democrats after Polk County votes on whether to approve a 1-cent increase in the local sales tax. Hutchins said he didn't want lawmakers' debates over a sales tax increase to influence that "The bill didn't look like it was going to be ready and I didn't push to get it ready," he said.

OK NOW, NO KICKING,

Reagan legal adviser tells

From Register Wire Services WASHINGTON, D.C. — President

Reagan's chief legal adviser Thursday depicted scenes of chaos in the White House in recent months and said he had been prevented from looking into the Iran affair for several weeks after its disclosure last November.

The legal adviser, Peter Wallison, who is resigning his White House post today, said that when he sought details of the scheme he was told by Vice Adm. John Poindexter, then Reagan's adviser on national security, "You have no role in this."

Poindexter's refusal to provide information came despite repeated pleas from Donald Regan, then the White House chief of staff, that Wallison, as White House counsel, be permitted to assemble a full accounting of the Iran policy initiative, Wallison

In another aspect of the Irancontra arms scandal, a federal district judge dismissed two lawsuits brought by Lt. Col. Oliver North and authorized the special prosecutor in the case, Lawrence Walsh, to continue his investigation.

The judge, Barrington Parker, said the suits, which challenged the constitutionality of the law authorizing a special prosecutor, were premature. Parker indicated that the law was probably constitutional.

"The nation demands an expeditious and complete disclosure of our government's involvement in the Iran-contra affair," Parker wrote in a 21-page opinion. "The court need not and should not hear plaintiff's challenges at this time."

In similar legal dispute, a threejudge panel here agreed to delay a pending indictment by a special prosecutor investigating the lobbying activities of Michael Deaver, a former White House aide.

The panel of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia halted the action by the prosecutor, Whitney North Seymour Jr., until next Tuesday. Seymour has said he plans to seek a four-count perjury indictment against Deaver, who has also challenged the constitutionality of the special prosecutor law. court asked Deaver and Seymour to submit legal briefs on the challenge.

Internal Maneuvering

In an interview with The New York Times, Wallison offered other new details of the internal maneuvering as the White House tried to come to grips with the crisis involving sales of arms to Iran and the reports that some of the proceeds had been diverted to the Nicaraguan insurgents.

Wallison, who has not been implicated in the controversy, has played a major role in advising the White House on how to deal with it. He said in the interview that he would not have acted differently.

The presidential review board headed by former Senator John Tower (Rep., Texas) described the atmosphere inside the White House after the November disclosure of the Iran policy initiative as "chaos." Wallison did not endorse that assertion, but his account reinforced that view.

For example, he said, aides preparing Reagan for his first session with the board on Jan. 26 found that he could not recall whether he gave prior approval to the first arms ship-

Firefighters douse romance in the park

COLOMBO, SRI LANKA (AP) -The Fire Department poured 5,000 gallons of cold water on dozens of young lovers in a city park to discourage "nefarious activities" in the bushes.

Wet and weeping girls and their boyfriends ran from Viharamahadevie Park, named for a beautiful Sri Lankan queen, after firefighters trained hoses on shade trees and bushes Wednesday afternoon.

The dousing was the latest effort to discourage public affection. Police have been chasing "umbrella lovers," those who kiss behind parasols. Several young women with umbrellas have been detained for questioning.

U.S. stiffens monitor plan on missiles

Soviets, Americans would use permanent inspectors

From Register Wire Services WASHINGTON, D.C. — The United States presented Thursday to the Soviet Union a tough monitoring plan to guard against violations of a proposed treaty to eliminate mediumrange nuclear missiles from Europe. Among the key provisions is the permanent stationing of Soviets at American missile factories and U.S. inspectors at Soviet plants. The Soviets have already accepted the principle of on-site inspection, but the new proposals include more-detailed provisions that could prompt long negotiations. Richard Perle, a senior Defense Department official, denied that the administration's tough stance on verification was a ploy to prevent an agreement. Perle is leaving his Pentagon post but will continue to advise the administration on security affairs.

"I wouldn't want to make a prediction," said Charles Redman, the State Department spokesman, as he released details of the proposal that was presented at the negotiating table in Geneva.

Parallel Talks

The Soviets said Thursday that they are prepared to conduct parallel negotiations with the United States on eliminating both the intermediaterange and short-range nuclear missiles from Europe. Viktor Karpov, Moscow's chief arms-control expert, disclosed the new position as the Soviets conducted their second nuclear test since abandoning a unilateral test freeze two weeks ago. The Kremlin described the purpose of the latest blast as an improvement of military equipment.

While the two nations were making their arms proposals, Senator Sam Nunn (Dem., Ga.), one of the Senate's most respected members, again disputed the Reagan administration's claim that the 1972 ABM treaty can be interpreted to allow tests for President Reagan's "Star Wars" plan.

The floor speech by Nunn, chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, was his second in two days in the debate over the Anti-Ballistic Missile treaty.

He called some of the arguments underpinning the claim "bizarre" and "illogical."

The monitoring and inspection under the proposed treaty on medium-range missiles would be conducted in three phases:

First, inspectors from the two sides would go to the missile sites to

Spiral galaxy found; largest in the universe

WASHINGTON, D.C. (AP) - Astronomers peering past clouds of gas and the glare of starlight say they have discovered the largest known galaxy, a giant spiral of stars 13 times as big as the Milky Way.

The galaxy, located 300 million light-years from Earth in the direction of the constellation Andromeda, is an oddly shaped mass of stars and gases that puts out tremendous amounts of energy, says a report published today in the journal Science.

Researchers say the galaxy, called Markarian 348, is 1.3 million lightyears in diameter. The Milky Way, in which the Earth's solar system is located, is about 100,000 light-years in diameter.

A light-year, a unit of measurement, is the distance light travels in a vacuum at 186,000 miles per second in a year's time, about 5.9 trillion ed to the disclosure by immediately launching a special investigation into the allegations. The probe will attempt to determine whether the payments were made and whether any athletic department or university official knew about it.

"If these allegations turn out to be true, it is very sad. We are shocked and surprised," said Dorsey Ellis, vice president of finance and university serv-

Ellis said a special three-member committee would conduct the school's investigation. The members are David Vernon, a professor at University of wa College of Law; Julia Davis, chair of the Io Board in Control of Athletics; and Leotis Davis, a member of the control board.

Ellis said the committee was appointed after consultation with President James Freedman.

It is the first time any University of Iowa football player has been implicated publicly in apparent National Collegiate Athletic Association rules violation since Coach Hayden Fry was hired in Fry, who has been critical of agents representing college athletes in the past, could not be reached for comment.

Athletic Director Chalmers "Bump" Elliott also could not be reached for comment. Elliott is in Tucson, Ariz., with the Hawkeye basketball team, which will play this afternoon in the first round of the NCAA basketball tournament.

Agents' Dispute

The disclosure of payments to Harmon are a result of a dispute between Harmon and his former agents, who have filed a $500,000 lawsuit against the player for breach of contract.

The former agents are attempting to force Harmon to pay them a percentage of his contract with the Bills for their services. Rausch said Harmon dropped his former agents because they had not performed adequate services.

"I began negotiating with the Bills when Bloom was on vacation," said Rausch, who also represents Harmon's brother, Derrick, who plays for the San Francisco 49ers. "They never did begin negotiations for Ronnie.

Bloom said Harmon agreed to become a client and signed a contract with his firm in 1984, Har mon's junior year. He also said Harmon received a $2,500 initial payment in 1984 and continued to receive money, including a loan to purchase the Mer-

Bloom also said he and Walters postdated their contract with Harmon until Jan. 2, 1986, the day after Harmon played his final game for Iowa in the Rose Bowl against UCLA.

During his career at Iowa, Harmon scored a record 32 touchdowns, 22 running and 10 receiving. He was one of three Hawkeyes drafted in the first round of the 1986 NFL draft.

Harmon's signing with an agent while a student would have been a direct violation of NCAA rules. Under the rules, athletes are allowed to consult with agents, but are forbidden to enter into a contract, receive money or discuss monetary arrangements until their eligibility is completed. Bloom's admission prompted the internal investigation by the school, said Iowa's NCAA and Big

NCAA rules forbid players from receiving any financial assistance during their eligibility except for tuition, books and room and board.

The school will face a penalty only if an investigation indicates that school officials knew or should have known that the payments were made. Ellis said the school's investigation would find out if any school official might have known about

"Those of us who are involved in college athletics lie awake nights worrying something like this might be happening," Ellis said.

IRAN

Yet, responding to a question at his his first meeting with the review board, Reagan answered "yes" when he was asked a complicated question related to advance approval. But he added that he "was still digging" in his memory for the correct answer. Ultimately he said he could not remember.

Wallison said there was also tension within the White House over trying to limit damage in a way that would benefit the president and his chief of staff. The board's report said that Regan, as chief of staff, "must bear primary responsibility for the chaos that descended on the White House when such disclosure did Wallison said: "Regan many times complained that he had no one working for him, trying to support his position. I and the other members of the White House staff were in fact devoting our time and placing our priorities on responding to questions and doing things that would advance the president's case."

Wallison had the primary responsibility for giving legal advice to the president in the period when the Iran-Nicaragua affair was unraveling. In that role, after the resignation of Poindexter and the dismissal of North from the National Security Council staff, Wallison reviewed hundreds of National Security Council documents, conducted interviews with numerous White House officials and was present with Reagan each of the two times the president appeared before the board.

Although Wallison has not discussed the Iran affair with the president since Reagan's speech to the nation last week, he said the president was guided in his public and private comments since November by a deep belief that had led to his approval of the policy initiative. That belief was that the American people, if informed about the Iran initiative, would accept his characterization of the policy as one with broad objectives.

"So when it was ultimately disclosed, I think he was still thinking that the American people would understand that he had a broader purpose in mind," Wallison said. "He doesn't agree with the Tower board that he shouldn't have done it and he still believes that the policy was val-

Reform Measure

In the matter of the legal disputes, both Jackson and Parker said that they believe higher courts will uphold the constitutionality of the Ethics in Government Act, the post-Watergate reform measure that provided for court-appointment of independent counsels to conduct investigations of certain administration officials.

North and Deaver had attacked the law as a violation of the constitutional principle of separation of powers. They contended that special court panels may not legally appoint such counsels because the Constitution vests the role of prosecutor solely in the executive branch.

"Although a careful look at the constitutionality of the act must await a time when plaintiff has alleged a concrete injury," Parker said in the North case, independent counsel Lawrence Walsh "has offered good reasons to believe that the act will be upheld."

The judge said that Walsh "is pursuing the investigation energetically and responsibly" and noted that the Reagan administration has supported him, going to the extent of giving Walsh a backup executive-branch appointment as independent counsel as "insurance" in case the court challenge succeeded.

In his ruling, he also rejected North's challenge to the back-up appointment, which was made by Attorney General Edwin Meese.

By The Associated Press SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH — Freddie Banks scored 23 points, including seven baskets from three-point range, and Gary Graham added 18 points as No. 1 Nevada-Las Vegas routed Idaho State, 95-70, Thursday in a first-round game of the NCAA basketball tournament's West Re-led, 46-27, at halftime, run off to a 29-point lead in the second half.

Nevada-Las Vegas, playing sloppily at times, committed 10 first-half turnovers and finished with 16. Idaho State was guilty of 23 errors.

UNLV trailed only once. Toros Yetenekian tipped in a rebound with 17 minutes 20 seconds left in the first half to give the Bengals of the Big Sky Conference a 10-8 lead.

From there, Banks and Graham led a 16-2 spurt that gave UNLV a 24-12 lead with 11:09 left in the half. The Runnin' Rebels (34-1) of the Pacific Coast Athletic Association will play Saturday against Kansas State. The Runnin' Rebels led, 70-41, with 8:33 left in the game and the outclassed Bengals got no closer than 20.

Kansas St. 82, Georgia 79 (OT) SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH — Mitch Richmond scored 34 points, including five three-point baskets, to lead Kansas State to an overtime victory over Georgia in a first-round of the NCAA basketball tournament's West Re-

The game was close throughout. Georgia (18-12) led by eight early in the first half and Kansas State held a brief five-point advantage in the second half. Richmond, a 6-foot 5-inch junior forward, hit four three-pointers in the second half in a long-range shooting duel with Anderson, who had three three-pointers after intermission. His 10-footer with 1:08 left in regulation put the Bulldogs ahead, 72-70. But Norris Coleman tied the game for Kansas State with an inside basket with 27 seconds to go.

Neither team could score again until overtime.
