It is a little-known fact that Shula's career has come full circle. The first regular job he ever held was digging cuttings for a nursery in Painsville, Ohio. The salary was $6.25 a week. Don gave his mother $5.75 and kept the rest for walking-around money. His weekly pay is better now. Brewers' streak means free food, contests for joyful fans

MILWAUKEE, WIS. (AP) - Baseball fans chartered buses to Chicago and packed taverns to watch TV so they wouldn't miss a single magic moment as their Brewers tried to extend their season-opening winning streak Tuesday to a record 14 games. It's more like World Series time than spring in Milwaukee, and it's a celebration no one expected when the season opened. Several national sports publications had picked the Brewers to finish last.

Now there's a booming spirit, with thousands and thousands of free hamburgers, radio contests and promotions. And the Brewers are making lots of money, though they won't say how much.

in Chicago was set Tuesday night as the Brewers hoped to set a majorleague record for a string of victories at the start of the season.

Sunday, victory came with a fiverun ninth inning on two homers. When they matched the record with a 5-4 win over the White Sox on Monday, players raced on the field, slapping high fives left and right.

"These guys believe they have a chance to win every time they step on the field," said center fielder Robin Yount, whose seventh-inning single scored Paul Molitor with the winning run.

With that, Milwaukee tied the record the Atlanta Braves set in 1982. The Braves had moved to Atlanta to 1965. The Brewers came to Milwaukee in 1970 from Seattle.

Monday several bars chartered buses to take fans the 90 miles down Interstate 94 to Chicago's Comiskey Park. Riders who boarded at Goolsby's, a popular downtown sports bar, drank beer, ate ham sandwiches and whooped it up all the way to the Windy City.

At Ella's Tavern, Floyd De Bow said: "If the Brewers get to 15-3 and play .500 ball for the reset of the season, they'll win the pennant."

Radio stations concocted all kinds of promotions and contests. WTMJ Radio, where broadcasts of Brewer games originated, said Armed Forces Radio will carry the broadcasts to Several stations said they would have disc jockeys or reporters on hand today when the George Webb restaurant chain gives away an estimated 112,000 hamburgers.

The late George Webb predicted in the 1950s that the old Milwaukee Braves would win 12 straight games. They never did, but Webb and his successors continued to predict that the Brewers would do it. The public came to assume this meant free hamburgers if it ever happened.

And on Sunday the chain of 48 restaurants in southeastern Wisconsin announced that one free hamburger would be handed out to each customer from noon until 8 p.m. today.

"It is a debt that has been a long time coming to pay up," said Daniel seems like one giant party."

There's no way to count the benefits to Milwaukee, said Don Dooley of the Metropolitan Association of Commerce.

"The national attention paid to the city is far more important than the dollars spent," Dooley said. "Milwaukee is shown nationally as an enthusiastic town where things are happening."

A fan who went to Monday's game said she never had cared much for baseball - until now. "You can't help but be swept up by this Brewer fever," Roselyn Smolej said. "It

Also in the world of high finance, not counting the ticket price, parking or $5 for a program, spending at the Super Bowl for food, drink and souvenirs jumped from $18.36 a person in 1986 to $20.75 in 1987. And this year's figure was for 100,000 fans.

Speedy field ominates Drake entries

Great sprinters sign up for special dashes

How much speed is there in this weekend's Drake Relays? There is so much that a world record-holder will run in two sprint specials Saturday and won't be favored to win either Calvin Smith, a former Alabama star, set the world record of 9.93 seconds for 100 meters in 1983. He's still ranked sixth in the world in that event and third in the 200 meters. But in Drake's invitational 100 he'll be facing the man who beat him here last year, former Missouri sprinter Chidi Imoh, who is ranked second on the current world list. Imoh has a :10 flat victory to his credit.

Smith won Drake's 200 special a year ago in 20.82, and he considers that his best event. But he'll be going against the world leader, swift Texas A & M sophomore Floyd Heard, who enjoyed a banner year in 1986. Heard won the NCAA outdoor 200 in 20.38, TAC national championship of 20.47 was set by Jeff Patrick of Iowa in 1983. Smith's former Alabama teammate and longtime opponent, Emmit King, also will compete in both special dashes.

"I am very, very pleased with the specials," Drake Relays Director Bob Ehrhart said Tuesday. "All of a sudden, everything just came together this week, and now we've got some great sprinters coming in.

"And not just with the men," he added. "Gwen Torrence of Georgia is | at 3,642. an outstanding sprinter in the women's field — and she's just one of | ahead of her record pace to lead the quite a few."

Torrence, a two-time NCAA indoor 55-meter champion, is entered in the 100 and 400 meters here.

The women's 400 Saturday could be one of the weekend highlights, with Alabama's Lillie Leatherwood King (she recently married Emmit King) seeking her third consecutive Drake victory.

That field also includes Missouri's Tash Kaiser, a former Des Moines Roosevelt prep who won the Big Eight 200 and 400 last year; Nebraska's Linetta Wilson, who set an American and collegiate record in this winter's NCAA indoor 500; and Nawal El Moutawakel, the Olympic hurdling gold medalist from Iowa State.

The men's 400 special is headed by defending champion Devon Morris of Wayland Baptist, who set a Drake record of :45.21 last year. Two of his chief competitors will be Raymond Pierre of Baylor and Gary Duncan of Georgia. Ehrhart said others in the men's sprint specials are Stanley Kerr, another Texas A & M sophomore standout, in the 100, and Notre Dame football player Tim Brown and Drake's Kevin Little in the 200. Little won the Kansas Relays 200 last Saturday, setting a Drake school record of :20.80 in the preliminaries.

Simpson's Kip Janvrin overcame cool and wet conditions with a personal best in the 400 meters Tuesday to take the halfway lead in the Drake Relays decathlon.

Janvrin, a junior from Panora-Linden, totaled 3,682 points in the first five events. Nebraska's Jeff Loescher was a close second at 3,660, followed by Iowa State's Ron McPhee complaint about the opening day below-par efforts in the shot put because of the light but steady afternoon rain.

Cathey Tyree of Purdue was well women's heptathlon with 3,275 points. Tyree scored 3,190 in the first four events last year when she set the Drake mark of 5,458.

"It was slippery and you couldn't get a good grip on the shot," said Janvrin. "I hoped to do quite a bit better than 38 feet."

Janvrin lowered his personal record in the 400 meters to 48.7 seconds to seize the lead from Loescher in the last of the day's five events.

Janvrin is the NCAA Division III champion in the decathlon and is shooting for a Division I qualifying score of 7,450. Two of his better events, the pole vault and 1,500 meters, are on today's closing program.

Iowa State's McPhee was last year's national junior college decathlon champion while attending Blinn, Texas, Junior College.

Tyree, a Purdue basketball player, topped two of the four opening women's events — the high jump at 5 feet 9¼ inches and the shot at 40-1¼.

"I was disappointed with the shot," she said. "I've been doing about 43 or 44 feet. But it was cold and damp, and I couldn't come close to what I wanted to do."

Tyree had a comfortable lead over second-place Terri LeBlanc of Missouri, who collected 2,977 points.

another chance to play in the National Football League or the Canadian Football League. He was drafted in 1985 in the fifth round by the New York Giants after two seasons in which he won all-America honors as an outstanding wide receiver. Henderson was one of the last players cut by the Giants before the 1985 season and later played sparingly for Saskatchewan Roughriders in the CFL.

Henderson also said Walters and Bloom are representing him in negotiations with several football teams.

"I've been contacted by other agents who tell me that Norby Walters and Lloyd Bloom can't represent me well because of all the trouble," Henderson said in a telephone interview from his mother's home in Maywood, Ill. Top Illinois prep to play with Orr's squad

By RICK BROWN Register Staff Writer

Mark Baugh, a 6-foot 5-inch forward from Elgin, Ill., who came on strong late in the basketball season, signed a national letter of intent to play basketball for Iowa State Tues-

Baugh, called a "spectacular outside shooter" by the Chicago Tribune,

"We're really excited about getting him," said Orr. "I think we got a real plum, the jewel in the state of Illinois. He can run, jump, shoot, pass the ball, do everything. He's a great athlete." Orr watched Baugh play in the city-suburban all-star game Saturday in Chicago, where he scored 17 points and was named the game's most valuable player. Marcus Liberty of King High School in Chicago, called by some the top college prospect in the nation, was one of those playing in the game.

ment play, and scored 34 points against Liberty's King team when Elgin was eliminated in the Class AA quarterfinals. The Associated Pres and United Press International named Baugh to their all-tournament teams.

Bradley, Marquette, Utah and

Pollard of Dodge City, Kan., signed with Oklahoma, guard Hank Ellis of Chowan, N.C., with Oklahoma State and forward Tony Williams of Independence, Kan., with Florida.

Orr has never signed a junior college player at Iowa State, but that still could change. The Cyclone staff still is recruiting Robyn Davis from Oklahoma Junior College in Tulsa, Okla. Davis, a 6-4 forward who started his career at Missouri, averaged 22 points and seven rebounds for a team coached by former Iowa State boss Ken Trickey. Drake Coach Gary Garner is being put on hold by several players. A player that Garner really covets, guard Eric Berger of Moberly, Mo., Community College, has yet to sign. Berger is an excellent shooter who would add punch to Drake's attack. He averaged 24 points, five assists and three steals this season.

averaged 24.8 points and 9.4 rebounds for the 28-3 Maroons and became the leading scorer in Elgin history with 1,536 points. He shot 60 percent from the field and 80 percent from the free throw line.

Baugh was named a first-team allstater by the Chicago Tribune and Associated Press and a first-team Class AA all-state and all-area selection by the Chicago Sun-Times. Elgin had a 59-15 record with Baugh in the starting lineup. He averaged 16.3 points and 5.5 rebounds as a sophomore and 19.5 points and 6.5 rebounds as a junior.

Baugh reminds Orr of another 6-5 player he had on one of his teams, Jeff Grayer.

"He's a lot like Jeff," said Orr. "He can really run. He gets it up and down the floor in a hurry."

Earlier this season Elgin Coach Jim Harrington called Baugh "one of the biggest secrets in the state." Baugh came on strong in tournaSouthern Illinois all made late pushes to get Baugh, but the Cyclones came out on top.

Baugh is the fourth high school standout to sign with Iowa State. Victor Alexander, a 6-9 center from Detroit, and 6-6 forward Robert Johnson of Des Moines signed early. Signing this spring was Norman Brown, a 6-5 forward from Park Forest, Ill.

Baugh's signing took some of the sting out of the recent defection of three junior college players the Cyclones were recruiting. Guard Art RECOVERY SLOWED. Greg LeMond's father says the cyclist who was shot in a hunting accident Monday may not be able to defend his Tour de France championship this year. Le-Mond's father, Bob, said that even with the full recovery physicians anticipate, the predicted layoff of a month or two could force Greg to miss this summer's Tour de France. "Possibly," the father said, "it means he won't be racing this summer at all."

PITINO WAITS FOR KNICKS. Providence Coach Rick Pitino said he'll listen if the New York Knicks make him an offer in the wake of their firing of coach Bob Hill. Pitino, a former Knicks assistant coach, is the leading candidate, according to a source at Madison Square Garden, which owns the Knicks. Also being mentioned are North Carolina State Coach Jim Valvano, Kansas Coach Larry Brown, Milwaukee Bucks Coach Don Nelson and Bob Ferry, general manager of the Washington Bullets. Nelson told the New York Times the Knicks haven't contacted him.

NBA EXPANSION VOTE. The 23-member NBA Board of Governors meets today in New York to vote on an Expansion Committee recommendation that Charlotte, N.C., be added to the league in 1988, Minneapolis in 1989 and either Orlando or Miami in 1988 or 1989.

TANYA GETS TRYOUT. Add former Des Moines Lincoln star Tanya Warren to the list of women invited to try out for the United States' Pan American basketball team Thursday. Warren, a 5-foot 5-inch junior at Creighton, led the Lady Jays to a third-place finish in the women's National Invitational Tournament, scoring a career-high 35 points in a 91-89 victory over Providence. Warren also had 30 points in a semifinal loss to California.

COURT SUPPORTS NBA. A federal appeals court ruled Tuesday in San Francisco that the NBA may be able to restrict the movement of its teams. Despite its contrary rulings in the Los Angeles Raiders antitrust case, the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals said the NBA could go to trial on its claim that it had legal restrictions for team moves that the Clippers violated by their 1984 move from San Diego to Los Angeles. The court noted that the NBA did not try to forbid the Clippers' move but wanted only to fine the team for moving without permission into an area that might have been used for a new franchise. An NBA spokesman said the league would seek a trial.

PICKING COLLEGES. Second-team allstate basketball player Dawn Bergeson of Southeast Polk will sign a national letter of intent later this week with the University of Arizona, while fifth-team choice Doug Moeller of West Point Marquette has signed with the University of South Dakota. Bergeson averaged 37 points a game. Moeller averaged 23 points and 10 rebounds.

Thin bench hurts Celtics' title chances

No team has repeated as NBA champion since Boston in 1969, and there are strong indications that the Celtics won't repeat this season. Although the Atlanta Hawks lost their regular-season finale at the Boston Garden, they could beat the Celtics, just as the Houston Rockets were able to beat the then-champion Los Angeles Lakers last season.

"We've been in the final three consecutive years and that gets difficult," Celtics General Manager Jan Volk said.

"Our season's been extended into June each time. We haven't had that physical and emotional recovery time. I think that's the premise you start with when talking about why nobody has repeated."

Sprint car driver Jimmy Sills of Placerville, Calif., believes that running the World of Outlaw circuit is like a close-knit family taking an intensive college seminar.

"You live racing on a daily basis," he said Tuesday.

The World of Outlaw circuit, now in its 10th season, opened Feb. 21 at Gardena, Calif., and will end Oct. 31 at Phoenix, Ariz. There are 100 nights of racing scheduled and the drivers will cross the country several times.

There will be Outlaw racing Friday and Saturday at Knoxville. Time trials will start at 8 p.m.

"The guys who run the circuit are the best drivers in the country," said Sills, who is eighth in point standings after he placed fourth in 1986 and suddenly can turn it on. The team hasn't been playing well. The Lakers thought they could turn it on and off last season. They were wrong. Coach Pat Riley called it complacency.

The Celtics are vulnerable because their bench is thin. That's why they won't repeat. No one does these days.

FIGHTING WORDS. The NBA Board of Governors is meeting this week in New York and is expected to announce its plans for expansion. With two Florida cities, Orlando and Miami, vying for the final franchise, things are getting rather nasty.

The Orlando Sentinel ran a story that began: "In Orlando, community leaders often spit out the name as a curse: Miami. Too much traffic, cocaine, cowboy shootouts and, of course, riots." A headline said: "A look at the enemy: It's Miami not so nice.'

But that was nothing compared to some of the things that Sentinel columnist Jerry Greene wrote:

"Truthfully, Miami is not a bad place to live, at least compared to other South American cities." ... "NBA players will like it [in Miami] if their plane doesn't get hijacked to Cuba."... "Miami is known to be fond of NBA souvenirs. The most popular items include official NBA hubcaps and official NBA wallets."

HARD TIMES FOR BENOIT. The Clippers' Benoit Benjamin keeps getting in trouble. Last week, he was fined $250 for yelling an obscenity during a game at the Los Angeles Sports Arena.

He had been taking some verbal abuse from fans. "Ben, blink your eyes so we know you're alive," one yelled. "At least break a sweat so we know you're out there. Are you paralyzed?" Another fan, using Benjamin's uniform number to set up his line, added: "Double zero. That's zero points, zero rebounds and zero effort." RILEY'S GRIPE. Pat Riley doesn't like the way the NBA determines its Coach of the Year. It is usually awarded to the coach who makes a lousy team respectable. "Mike Ditka and Bill Parcells were named Coach of the Year in the NFL when they won titles," the Los Angeles Laker coach said. "But in basketball, if you have the best record, you're not even considered. [Boston's] K.C. Jones won 67 games last year and the FBI and other federal law endidn't win." REYNOLDS' WIT. Coach Jerry Reynolds has become very popular in Sacramento. After the Kings' final home game, a victory over Denver, Reggie Theus and LaSalle Thompson carried Reynolds around the arena. No championship for the Kings, mind you. Not even a playoff berth. "I'm probably the heaviest thing Reggie's lifted in a long time," Reynolds said. "If he had thought I was a rebound, he would have dropped me."

Junior college placed on probation

COFFEYVILLE, KAN. (AP) -The Coffeyville Community College men's basketball team has been placed on probation for one year by because of recruiting violations.

The National Junior College Athletic Association action makes Coffeyville ineligible for postseason competition after the 1987-88 regular season.

Marcus Zeigler, a 5-foot 10-inch all-state guard at Wichita South High School, who signed a letter of intent to play at Coffeyville next year, reported recruiting violations to the NJCAA.

won more than $88,000. "Every day, you live racing. Every day, it seems like you are together, although there are breaks.

"You get up in the morning surrounded by racers. When you're not racing, you're talking racing. You become sharper. It makes for better racing."

There are disputes, he said, and drivers become angry with other drivers, but that blows over. "We're like a big family," he said.

Sills hasn't won any Outlaw features in 1987, but he did win a feature at Fremont, Calif., recently.

JOYS OF OWNERSHIP. Lenard McCarl of Des Moines owns the cars Sills drives and works on them at his home in Des Moines. But this week, the city is paving the streets in front of his house, and he has had to move the car.

"We have lost two or three weeks of the season with some mechanical problems," McCarl said. "We broke a motor in Phoenix, but we should have won a couple of feature races.

"I'll tell you one thing. There are some new, lightweight wheels out this year. We've broken three of them because they are to light. I'm throwing them away."

PROBLEMS, PROBLEMS. Des Moines car builder and owner Bob Trostle, who has been awaiting the arrival of seven sprint cars from Australia, including three of his own, is still waiting.

HARD FEELINGS. The San Antonio Spurs' rookies weren't too thrilled with Walter Berry, who thought he was above doing the chores expected of most first-year players. Recently, the other rookies were helping to unload baggage at a claim area, and when they saw Berry's luggage, they tossed it back.

No apologies for paying athletes have included entertainers Miles Davis, Luther Vandross and Janet Jackson, are the main characters in a growing controversy over their representation of various top college football players. The two men also are reportedly under investigation by forcement agencies for allegedly threatening with physical violence athletes who were considering dropping the two men as their agents.

In recent weeks, Walters and Bloom, executives of World Sports and Entertainment Inc., have filed lawsuits against several former and current college athletes charging each one with breach of contract. Among the lawsuits is one against former University of Iowa running back Ronnie Harmon, who also allegedly signed with Walters and Bloom during his junior year and received more than $54,000 from them during that time.

Harmon's new agent, Martin Rausch of Buffalo, N.Y., has acknowledged that Harmon received money from his former agents while he was playing for the Hawkeyes. Such actions, if true, are violations of NCAA rules. A university investigation into the charges is expected to be completed within the next two weeks.

Henderson said he had no contact with Bloom and Walters until after he decided to withdraw from Iowa State following his dispute with Criner. Henderson said the two men were among several agents who visited Ames after his dismissal from the team.

"They were like the rest of them in that they told me what they could do for me and what they thought I could expect," Henderson said. "They didn't really stand out that much except I liked them."

Henderson said neither Walters or Bloom paid him any money to become their client, but expressed little surprise that the two paid others.

"The money went to those guys they knew would probably be firstround draft choices," Henderson said.

The cars had been expected to arrive last week. Trostle said Tuesday they reached Minneapolis Sunday.

Last week, Trostle thought Randy Smith of Mount Ayr, his driver, would be without a car unless the missing machines arrived. Not so now. Roy Jordan of Knoxville will let Smith drive his car. Trostle will provide a motor.

Smith drove the car at Burlington last Friday night and won the feature race there. Jeff Tuttle of West Des Moines finished second and Danny Lasoski of Dover, Mo., was third.

GREEN BURNED. Tim Green of Carmichael, Calif., Sills' brother-inlaw, sustained second-degree and third-degree burns on his legs recently when a USAC modified sprint car he was driving crashed into a wall and burned.

Green, a former Knoxville driver and World of Outlaw competitor, is hospitalized in Fresno, Calif., and is expected to be there for another month.

Dubuque Speedway to open Sunday

The Register's lowa News Service DUBUQUE, IA. - The Dubuque Fairgrounds Speedway opens its season Sunday with the Bob Nesteby Memorial Race at 7:30 p.m. Gates open at 5:30 p.m. The track is beginning its fifth year of NASCAR/Winston sanction and plans to offer a weekly purse of $5,500. The Grand American Late Models pay $500 for a feature win, the modifieds pay $175, the modified streets pay $100 and the Enduro Bombers pay $50.

"Lloyd and Norby don't agree with the NCAA rules and they never have. They say they are the ones looking out for the players' interest, not the school."

Walters and Bloom have been unapologetic about their actions in paying athletes. They have argued that it is the best way to get athletes to become their clients.

Despite his lack of success on the field, Henderson said he has been treated fairly by his agents and believes he has been represented well. "They got me to the point where I had to prove myself on the field and that was all I could ask," Henderson said. Henderson also said he met Harmon in New York City last year during a visit to his agents' offices. " didn't know anything about New York, but Ronnie was very nice about showing me around. We had a good time," Henderson said.

"We also joked about what the people back in Iowa would say if they knew that a University of Iowa running back and an Iowa State receiver were getting along so well," Henderson said.

Athletic Association officials apologized Tuesday for the start that marred Monday's Boston Marathon, causing defending champion Rob de Castella of Australia to fall and other runners to have problems. De Castella tripped over the rope that is strung in front of the runners at the head of the field, when it was not removed quickly enough after the starting gun was fired.

Steve Jones of Wales got hooked on the rope, and Dave Gordon of Eugene, Ore., had to hop over it.

De Castella, who set the course record of 2 hours, 7 minutes, 51 seconds, in winning last year, suffered cuts on both knees and a bloodied right elbow in his fall.

"The fall happened very quickly," de Castella said. "It took me very much by surprise. I was not aware they were going to fire the gun.

"In the chaos, my foot caught on the rope, and somehow in the jostling, I got knocked down.

"You've got to be prepared for something like this to happen," said

Golden State Warriors? Coach George Karl told them they were going to have a minicamp before the playoffs and could choose between Santa Barbara or Lake Tahoe. They chose to stay in Oakland.

DOUBTS IN DENVER. Denver Nuggets Coach Doug Moe, on his team's chances against the Lakers in the playoffs' opening round: "They lost 15 games [actually 17] and that took an 82-game season. Now we're supposed to beat them three times in five. The advantage of meeting them in the first round is we only have to beat them three times. They're too good. To be perfectly honest, I don't think we can beat them."

JORDAN'S DEFENSE. Dallas coach Dick Motta says Michael Jordan deserves a spot on the NBA all-defensive team: "His enthusiasm for the game carries over to defense, plus his scoring ability wears down the defensive man who is therefore unable to score at the other end."

FORGET PRACTICE. The Portland Trail Blazers have had so many injuries that they didn't have a practice for the final four weeks of the 1 6971 regular season.

IOWA CITY, IA. (AP) - Randy Frakes went 3-for-4, including a two-'run homer, scored three runs and stole three bases as Iowa defeated St. Ambrose, 13-3, in college baseball Tuesday.

Steve Denkinger pitched five innings for Iowa (18-16), giving up two hits and one run, as he raised his record to 2-0. Daryl Courter (2-2) was the loser.

Jason Jones drove in three runs for the Hawkeyes with two sacrifice flies and a double.

Trent Snowden had two singles for St. Ambrose (7-10).

Dragons win

TOKYO, JAPAN (AP) - Former major-league player Gary Rajsich hit his sixth homer of the Japanese League season and later had a tiebreaking triple in the seventh inning as the Chunichi Dragons beat the Yakult Swallows, 7-4, Tuesday.

Four Derby candidates meet on track Thursday

LEXINGTON, KY. (AP) - Four 3-year-olds will try to complete their travels to the Kentucky Derby with a victory in the $200,000-added Blue Grass Stakes Thursday at Keeneland. The Derby hopefuls, among five colts entered Tuesday, were Was, Alysheba, Leo Castelli and Avies Copy.

Completing the small field for the 1¹/₈-mile race is Valid Prospect, who was not nominated for the Kentucky Derby May 2 at Churchill Downs.

Alysheba was made the 7-5 early favorite, although he has yet to win in two starts this year.

"That doesn't bother me, because I think we've had excuses," said trainer Jack Van Berg. "We had a little problem with his throat after the San Felipe, but that has been corrected."

Alysheba finished fourth in an allowance race March 8, then finished second to Chart The Starts in the San Felipe on March 22 at Santa Anita.

In his last two starts as a 2-yearold, the son of Alydar finished third behind Capote and Qualify in the $1 million Breeders' Cup Juvenile at Santa Anita and second by a neck to Temperate Sil in the $1 million Hollywood Futurity at Hollywood Park.

War will be trying for his second straight stakes victory at Keeneland and his third triumph in eight starts this year. He won the Lexington on April 11 after finished second to Trick Card in a seven-furlong race on April 3.

"You've got to go for the big one," owner Tom Gentry said when asked about War's prospects for the Kentucky Derby.

War is expected to be part of a D. Wayne Lukas-trained entry with Capote, the 1986 2-year-old champion, and Talinum, winner of the Flamingo.

Leo Castelli also is expected to be part of a Derby entry with Gulch, winner of last Saturday's Wood Memorial at Aqueduct. Both colts are owned by Peter M. Brant and trained by Leroy Jolley.

Leo Castelli, who has only five career starts, four of them this year, will be looking for his first stakes victory Thursday.

Each starter will carry 121 pounds, and if all go to the post, the Blue Grass will be worth $227,900, with $148,135 to the winner.

de Castella, recalling that he had fallen at least three other times during races, all in Australia.

De Castella got up quickly Monday and finished sixth.

"I don't think it affected me," he said. "It happened very early in the race. It wasn't anything too severe."

Guy Morse, a Boston Athletic Association administrator who was at the start, said he heard Tom Brown, the starter, announce when there was 1 minute to go before the race, and then warn the runners when 30 seconds were left.

"That's their last cue," Morse said. "There's no countdown."

Geoff Smith of England, the 1984 and 1985 Boston winner and the third-place finisher this time, said the chaotic start, "happens in a lot of races.'
