Lost Code wins Nash Memorial

By Neil Milbert

HORSE RACING

Alabama Derby winner Lost Code prepped for the Illinois Derby by running in Friday's $98,830 Nash Memorial at Sportsman's Park.

And, in winning, he looked better than any of the 17 horses that ran in last Saturday's Kentucky Derby. Lost Code turned a 10-horse race into a runaway, crossing the finish line 11 lengths in front of his closest pursuer, You're No Bargain.

The winner was a bargain, paying mutuel prices of $8.40, $3.80 and $3.20 after going off as the 3.20-tothird choice in the wagering. The 9,257 fans at Sportsman's and the three intertrack locations bet jockeys. Pat Day, the world champ in four of the last five years, rode Valid Prospect, the 9-to-5 favorite at the start of the race but fourth at the end, and longtime Chicago standout Earlie Fires was aboard You're No Bargain, the second choice at 2.10-to-1.

Lost Code made irrelevancies out of both the jockey factor and the sharp turns at Sportsman's.

"I just wanted to make sure he handled the first turn," said his rider, Gene St. Leon. "When he showed me he could handle it, I let him take it from there.

Turning for home, I reached back and hit him a couple of times. He hadn't run in a while, and I wanted to be sure he got a race into him.

"We're going for $300,000 the next time [in the May 23 Grade III Illinois Derby], and sometimes too easy a race isn't good."

The victory was the third straight for Lost Code, whose last start came in the April 11 Alabama Derby. That day he beat Homebuilder, a colt Woody Stephens hopes to run in the Belmont, and Phantom Jet, a candidate for next weekend's Preak-

Overall, Friday's easy victory was Lost Code's fifth in 12 starts.

"He went around those turns like a hoop around a barrel," said trainer Bill Donovan, critiquing the romp in which Lost Code ran the 1 1/16 miles in 1:44 1/5. "This is the best horse I've ever had my hands

"When I took him to Birmingham, he ran short and bled the first time. Then we put him on Lasix, and the rest is history."

BRIEFS

Alabama junior Derrick McKey, the Southeastern Conference basketball player of the year, applied for the National Basketball Association draft Friday after losing his eligibility because of dealings with an agent. Just five days earlier McKey had said he planned to play for the Crimson Tide his senior season and not jump to the pros.

McKey reportedly had dealings with agent Norby Walters, a key figure in accusations of underclassmen taking money from agents and athletes being threatened by agents.

"It's a sad day in college athletics when an athlete is so close to getting a college degree and is deprived of that opportunity as a senior, especially by those who have so little feeling for him and his family," said Alabama coach Wimp

Sanderson. "One of these days we are going to come up with an answer in college athletics to eliminate the problem of unscrupulous agents." McKey, sophomore Norris

Coleman of Kansas State and junior Vincent Askew of Memphis State will be eligible for the June 22 draft. Kansas junior Danny Manning, announced he would bypass the draft and remain in school. "It's what's best for me and what my family wants me to do," he said. "The NBA will always be there, hopefully." Manning made his announcement after Kansas coach Larry Brown signed a four-year contract extending $79,000 a year. Washington defensive end Reggie Rogers, the Detroit Lions' first pick in the National Football League draft, has filed a suit against two agents he claims fraudulently gave him money before his college eligibility ended. Rogers filed the suit against Walters and G. Patrick Healy. He seeks $1.4 million in damages from Walters and $1.3 million from Healy. The suit says the agents provided money in 1984.

Running back Napoleon McCallum has been ordered to a San Diego-based Navy command, according to a service official. McCallum commuted last year from Long Beach to the Los Angeles Coliseum, a trip of about 20 miles, to start five of the Los Angeles Raiders' 16 regular-season games. San Diego is about 120 miles from the Coliseum. A Navy official said McCallum was denied his first three choices of duty—all on ships based in Long Beach.

Ohio State wide receiver Cris Carter has been was reinstated to the team, according to coach Earle Bruce. Carter was suspended April 22 for what Bruce called a violation of team rules.

The names of four candidates being considered as Elroy Hirsch's successor as Wisconsin athletic director have been submitted to acting Chancellor Bernard Cohen. The Wisconsin State Journal said they are James Jones, Ohio State associate athletic director; Carl Miller, Pacific athletic director; Don Purvis, Ball State athletic director; and Ade Sponberg, North Dakota State athletic director. The Capital Times said Jones wasn't among the finalists. In addition to Miller, Purvis and Sponberg, the Times said Robert Frederick, Illinois State athletic director, was a

Los Angeles Dodger outfielder Mike Marshall, who has been bothered by a bad back, will be placed on an exercise program and probably will be out of action for two weeks. The lumbar discs are drying out, causing Marshall's back to become stiff and sore when he swings a bat.

Southern Methodist's board of trustees has approved a plan to overhaul the school's governing structure in a bid to prevent a repeat of the scandal that killed the football program for two years. As part of the plan, which calls for a 40-member board, 16 trustees resigned.

Greg Louganis captured the 1-meter springboard event at the McDonald's International diving competition in Boca Raton, Fla. He had 622.44 points.

Brad Snell of Des Plaines won eight straight matches to earn the top seed for the finals in the American Bowling Congress Masters Tournament in Niagara Falls. Snell topped Rick Steelsmith 842-785. Also advancing were Mike Fairchild, Tony Marrese and John Weltzien of McHenry.

Former Tennessee quarterback Tony Robinson, sentenced on cocaine charges in November, has asked a judge for early release from jail so he can pursue a professional football career.

Oswego wins in Little Seven track

Kaneland's Kerry Rink bettered the listed season's best for Chicago-area performers in the 800meter run, but Kathy Miller, Theresa Hill and Amy Harris combined to lead Oswego to the team title Friday in the Little Seven Conference track meet in Sycamore.

Oswego posted 69 points to 60 for runner-up Kaneland. Waubonsie Valley was third with 38.

Rink won her specialty in 2:18.48, topping the Chicago-area best of 2:18.51 established by Wheeling's Alice Doyle.
