Hawks won't win a whistle-blowing war

This is what the Hawks should do about Jack Madden. Tell their story to the league pooh-bahs. Then go to the drug store. Buy a roll of two-inch tape. Take it home. Open the box, strip off a piece of tape about four inches long and slap it across their mouths. Just shaddup about Madden, to put the matter with the delicacy it deserves. The Hawks looked foolish in losing to Detroit last week to end their season. In the last quarter on their own floor, they were beaten by 20 points (39-19). The petty whining came the next day when their coach and president complained about Madden, who is (to judge by the innuendoes) a striped-shirt brigand who burns down orphanages and kicks small dogs but most enjoys letting the air out of the Hawks' tires. Mike Fratello, the coach, and Stan Kasten, the president, both stopped short of blaming Madden for the 104-96 defeat. They said Madden's assignment to their game was unfair to the Hawks and Madden. They were concerned, they said, that Madden's presence increased the tension already attendant to a playoff game. Sports' toughest officiating job is basketball, a game played at full speed by giants. Middle-aged referees can't keep up. The rules, if enforced to the letter, would result in endless violations; so referees must make a thousand judgments ("Did he gain an advantage with that hook?" ... "Did he need to travel to score?").

Braves winning, but not at gate or in ratings

Attendance down 24 percent from 1986

By Michelle Hiskey Staff Writer

Despite a winning record, the Atlanta Braves are drawing their worst home attendance and television ratings in six years.

tendance of the 26 big-league teams. Only the Pirates are drawing worse, averaging 12,625 for 21 home dates.

Through 18 home games last season, the Braves had averaged 18,021 fans.

Meanwhile, the Braves' telecasts on WTBS (Channel 17) are drawing an average rating of 2.4, meaning that only 2.4 percent of the 42 million homes equipped with WTBS cable service are tuning in to Braves games. This represents the Braves' lowest TV rating since 1981; it is down The Braves (19-18) have drawn an av- from last year's 2.8 and less than half the club-record 5.2 rating in 1982, when the Braves won the NL West championship. Executives with the Braves and WTBS say they are not disturbed by the Braves' lack of drawing power - at least not yet.

"With 150 games (on TV), it's a marathon. You don't worry about the ratings. this time of year," said Robert Wussler, executive vice president of Turner Broadcasting System and president of WTBS. He said the poor ratings have a "glacial," rather than immediate, effect.

"We sell the baseball package in the offseason, so the ratings this year won't affect (advertising revenues) until next year. We look more at the last 45 games of the

'You really look intelligent'

Not all men do this impossible job as well as other men, and the Hawks think Jack Madden is one of those other men, that he gives them the worst of it.

Their relationship deteriorated so far this season that Madden was fined by his erage of 13,716 fans to 18 home games at Atlanta-Fulton County Stadium this season, down 24 percent from the same point last season and the next-to-lowest average atyear to sell the remaining availabilities (30- or 60-second commercial spots), and how the team is playing then is much bosses for a wisecrack he made to president Kasten, who stood at courtside slowly shaking his head, as if in puzzlement over Madden's work.

"You really look intelligent," the referee said, which, to a man with a law degree (Kasten's is from Columbia) might be judged a compliment. Madden's tone suggested to Kasten that the referee was not entirely sincere. Words followed. Then came the fine of an undisclosed amount.

The NBA admits it is common for referees to be fined; most often the fines are for errors in administering the rules. Commissioner David Stern won't say if any official besides Madden has been fined for speaking unkindly to a team official.

When Madden worked an Atlanta-Indiana first-round playoff game, Stern was asked, "Why does the NBA assign a referee to work a game involving a team for which he has been fined for arguing with its president?"

Stern said, "If we didn't use referees in games involving teams that didn't like them, our top eight officials would never work again.'

"But what," the questioner tried again, "about the Madden situation? Isn't this different? The referee starting the argument?"

Stern said, "Well, yes, it is different" The commissioner said no more.

Losing records with other refs

Madden lives in Roswell, an Atlanta suburb. The Hawks' theory has been that Madden works so hard to avoid appearances of favoritism that he winds up being unfair to them. The Hawks were 0-2 in playoff games worked by Madden this season. They argue that is more evidence of bias.

Jackets host NE regional; Dogs invited

By Thomas O'Toole and Tom Whitfield Staff Writers

Georgia Tech and Georgia, which split two games during the regular season, likely will face each other again this week - in the NCAA Northeast Regional at Tech's Chandler Stadium.

In an unexpected development, the NCAA awarded the regional to Tech, a fledgling program in terms of fan support with a 2,000-seat stadium. Joining the seventh-ranked Yellow Jackets and the 14th-ranked Bulldogs in the double-elimination event are ninth-ranked Michigan, Fordham, Dartmouth and Rider. Tech is the top seed.

Tech's regional is one of eight in the country, with the winners advancing to the College World Series starting May 29 in Omaha, Neb. The others are at Arizona, Texas, Florida State, Stanford, New Orleans, Mississippi State and Huntsville, Ala. Among the teams that made strong bids for a regional and didn't get one was Miami. The Hurricanes will play at Florida State, where their first game is Thurs-

It also can be argued as coincidence. The Hawks lost three other playoff games, one at home, in which Madden did not work. The Hawks were 3-3 in the regular season in games with Madden. (Box scores show they went 2-5 with Bernie Fryer, 1-2 with Dan Crawford and broke even with seven referees besides Madden. Were they all out to get the Hawks?)

The last Madden flap came in the Hawks' flop against Detroit. Dominique Wilkins went off the court chasing a pass. Madden put the ball in play before Wilkins made it back. Detroit's basket and free throw tied it at 93-all. The free throw came off a technical foul called on Fratello for screaming that play should have been held up for Wilkins.

The technical was not called by Madden but by his partner Mike Mathis.

Rod Thorn, the NBA's director of operations, said the league would not investigate the Hawks' complaint on that play. "He did not see (the play) as an atypical incident," said NBA information secretary Mary Szetela, speaking for Thorn.

Coaches don't win these referee battles. Better to let it go. Better for Fratello and Kasten to worry about their parts in the team's playoff disintegration. Leave the whistle-blowing to Madden. The coach and president have enough to do in analyzing their own failures.

Alabama basketball players Derrick McKey and Terry Coner are among 50 to 60 college athletes who face possible indictment for their association with New York agents Norby Walters and Lloyd Sources say a federal grand jury that begins Tuesday in Chicago will consider whether to hand down indictments against the athletes, as well as the two agents, for committing fraud against the colleges by signing contracts before the end of the Norby Walters scenario, and I think the players' college careers. A number of athletes have been subpoenaed to testify before the grand jury.

Wire and mail fraud charges also could apply to the agents and athletes, and sources say the Internal Revenue Service is conducting its own investigation.

U.S. Attorney Howard M. Pearl declined to comment on the grand jury investigation. But some attorneys are angry that he is pointing his criminal investigation at the players.

"It's an unfortunate spinoff of the U.S. attorney is all wet," said New York attorney Richard Zaroff, who represents Pittsburgh linebacker Tony Woods. "To try and prosecute the players in this case is without merit or consequence. Unfortunately, that's prosecutorial mentality. The U.S. attorney has been telling other attorneys, in essence, "We're going to get these kids, too,' and that's wrong."

Athletes who already have been subpoenaed include McKey and Coner and the following football players: Woods; Rod Woodson of Purdue; Ronnie Harmon of the Buffalo Bills and formerly of Iowa; Devon Mitchell of the Detroit Lions and formerly of Iowa; Jeff Atkins, Jerry Ball, Terence Mann and Ron Morris, all of SMU; Everett Gay, William Harris and Edwin Simmons, all of Texas, and Louis Brock Jr. of Southern California. Also, former TCU players Byron Linwood and Egypt Allen have been subpoenaed.

Despite losing the opener of the Western Conference final on Saturday, the Seattle SuperSonics held the Los Angeles Lakers to their lowest point total of the year, so Game 2 in LA Tuesday night should be interesting. Meanwhile, the Boston Celtics will try once again to shrug off the ravages of age and injuries in the opener of their Eastern Conference final against Detroit. In baseball, the Cubs may not be so glad to be home. Chicago, 6-9 at Wrigley Field and 16-5 on the road, is scheduled to send Greg Maddux (3-2) against Cincinnati's Bill Gullickson (4-2). On the positive side, however, the Cubs welcome the return of Harry Caray to the broadcast booth. Caray has been recuperating from a stroke. Meanwhile, the Mets start rookie John Mitchell (0-0) against San Diego's Eric Show (1-4). The opener of the series between the Atlanta Braves and the St. Louis Cardinals will be tape-delayed due to the live telecasts of the two NBA playoff games. In boxing, promising lightweight contender Terrence Alli (32-4-2, 12 KOs) will battle Rodney Moore (13-4, 5 KOs) in a 10-round match, and knockout artist Lenny LaPaglia (26-4, 25 KOs) meets Marvin Mack (15-6-1, 8 KOs) in a 10-round super middleweight bout. Tuesday's sports on TV

"I think we had a little more fight and a little more bark," said Middleton.

"They were yelling 33-0," said Morrison, the only player to win against Southern Cal in both matches. "We can yell 32-1."

The Southern Cal players were bitter about Georgia's home-court advantage.

"Anywhere else in the country, no way they're going to beat us straight up," said Amend. "There's not a snowball's chance in hell they beat us anywhere else ... and this is no sour grapes."

"We keep on coming in here and giving it our best shot; we just keep coming up short," said Jensen. "We want this thing more than life itself. You work so hard all season, you sacrifice, it's one tunnel-vision goal that you want. Ricky comes back for his dad and his team to win this thing. Just to take it now is really a heavy blow."

heir attorneys the testimony. overall in the gh Steelers, is the Bulldogs their win over USC.

Georgia led 3-1 in the singles after wins by Stephen Enochs, John Boytim and Mike Morrison before Trey Carter and T.J. Middleton both dropped threeset matches. After a brief rain delay, Carter and Middleton teamed to clinch the win at No. 2 doubles by defeating Luke Jensen and Eric Amend 7-5, 6-3. Leach and Scott Melville had already won at No. 1 doubles for USC, while Philip Johnson and Jim Childs won at No. 3 doubles for Georgia.

"I didn't think we were good enough to win the tournament," said Georgia coach Dan Magill. "I didn't think we had the doubles strength.

"The Georgia team that beat us in '84 and '85 was a strong team," said Leach. "I don't feel this team is anywhere close to that team."

Enochs, who upset Jensen at No. 2 singles, said the rain delay helped the Bulldogs.

"The momentum was so much in their favor," he said. "We got a chance to regroup. We just laughed and joked around. No big speeches or anything."

sity, then they are subject to suit."

Sloan said the school "was not interested in suing any of our players."

Sloan said Coner confessed Monday that he also accepted money from Walters before his senior eligibility period expired. McKey was a junior who was recently declared ineligible because he accepted money from Walters.

Sloan said he still does not expect the school to be severely penalized by ho are expect- the SEC and NCAA regarding the Crimson Tide's league title and NCAA tournament money. In 1971, NCAA basketball runnerup Villanova had to forfeit all tournament money because its star player, Howard Porter, entered an early agreement with an agent.

"Historically, the only time the NCAA punished somebody for this thing is when the school had knowledge of it," said Sloan. "We investigated it when we first heard about it (in March from an Atlanta Constitution reporter). We did what we could, and we acted when further information followed.

"There are 50-some schools involved in this case. It's far-reaching. This is the most significant agent matter ever, and its implications are tremendous."

Alabama basketball coach Wimp Sanderson identified Terry Bolar, who is employed by Walters, as the middle man in the agent's recruitment of McKey and Coner.

"He (Bolar) has some relatives in Alabama," said Sanderson. "He made the contact and he apparently set the whole thing up."

Sources say Bolar also is included in the grand jury investigation. Neither he, Walters nor Bloom were available for comment Monday.

Wire and mail fraud could apply if the grand jury determines that Walters and Bloom illegally sent money to the players by those means.

One such transfer of money apparently has pulled a previously untouched player into the grand jury investigation. Brock, son of Hall of Fame baseball player Lou Brock, has been subpoenaed to testify on June 16. Contacted at his home Monday in St. Louis, Brock said he did not know the exact reason he was being called to testify but thought it had to do with $50 that Bloom tried to wire him by Western Union last year. He connected Bolar to the incident. "Bolar was living in the Los Angeles area back awhile, and when he moved to New York to join that agency, he asked me and my roommate (Tim McDonald) if he could keep some of his furniture in our garage," said Brock. "We let him, but then we had to move, so we called him and asked him to contribute a liftle money for the rental truck. He said he'd wire it to us. "When I went to go pick it up, the money was coming from Bloom, so I refused it because I knew about those guys. That's the only way I could be conthe university nected. There's no other way." The NFL Players Association is still another person taking a keen interest in the case. A grievance hearing by Harmon against there could be Walters is scheduled for June 10! in ant agents to Washington, D.C. A former U.S. senator to circumvent from Iowa, John Culver, is the NFLPA's arbitrator.
