Big Ten is on the run

HICAGO — Welcome back __ to three yards and a cloud of dust in Big Ten Conference football.

It'll probably be four or five yards instead of three, and nobody in the Big Ten plays on natural turf, but no matter. Passing is out, and running is back in vogue in the league of hard-konck football. Somewhere, Woody Hayes is smiling. Based on the comments of the 10 conference coaches here Thursday at the Big Ten's Kickoff press conference, quarterbacks are going to do less passing and more caddying for the league's many stud running backs.

"I see the league piling up more rushing statistics in '87 than '86," Michigan Coach Bo Schembechler

Schemmy, a Hayes disciple who would rather run than pass any year, had a team that threw for more yards than it rushed last season. The Wolverines happened to feature a quarterback named Jim Harbaugh, who was a first-round draft choice of the Chicago Bears. And there's the rub. Harbaugh is gone. Ace running back Jamie Morris is back.

Thus, give Morris the ball. It's that way all over.

The Big Ten's top nine career passers all played in at least part of this decade. Five finished their college careers in the last two seasons. None are around this year.

"NEVER, EVER HAVE I seen quarterbacks like the Big Ten has had the last three or four years," Ohio State Coach Earle Bruce said. "I don't think any league has faced that. I couldn't believe the quarterbacks and receivers we were seeing."

The who's who in 1980s Big Ten Long, Jim Everett, Tony Eason, Jack Trudeau, Scott Campbell, Mark Herrmann and Art Schlichter.

"You go down the list," Bruce said, "and there were about 10 of them. That's something."

They are gone, all gone. The bestknown of the returning signalcallers is Rickey Foggie of Minnesota, who can pass but would prefer to run.

Why have the great passers all departed? Bruce thinks it's just cyclical. Besides, there are potentially fine quarterbacks on this fall's horizon. Among them are Bobby McAllister of Michigan State, Tom Tupa of Ohio State and Northwestern's Mike Greenfield.

Greenfield may turn out to be the all-league quarterback if his Wildcat teammates continue to improve. Still, this year's crop of field generals is going to be a far cry from the Everett-Long-Trudeau days of recent past.

Michigan's Morris rushed for 1,086 yards last season including 210 against Ohio State in the game that won the Wolverines a Rose Bowl berth.

Morris is a legitimate All-America candidate who may not be the best running back in his state.

Perles: White 'clean,' will play for Spartans

Coach says MSU's star running back didn't take money from sports agent

CHICAGO — Michigan Coach Bo Schembechler opened the Big Ten Football Kickoff Luncheon Thursday with a plea to avoid discussions about drugs and sports agents. Michigan State's George Perles

"First of all, Lorenzo White is healthy, his ankle is fine, he doesn't have an agent, he didn't take any money and he will play football for Michigan State," Perles said.

"If he wasn't clean, he wouldn't play for us."

White, interviewed after Perles' statement, admitted to having met with Walters last year.

White, one of many good running backs in the Big Ten, said he often thinks about winning the Heisman Trophy. He was fourth in balloting in 1985, the year Auburn's Bo Jackson edged Iowa's Chuck Long in the closest voting ever.

If White becomes a strong contender for the Heisman, it probably will mean the Spartans will become strong contenders in the Big Ten. Coaches were unanimous Thursday in their support of Ohio State as the favorite this season, but many mentioned MSU as a prime contend-

CHICAGO — Iowa football coach Hayden Fry said Thursday he won't comment on Keaton Smiley's status with the Hawkeyes until Smiley's trial in Octo-

Smiley has been charged with five counts of assault in connection with separate incidents involving two University of Iowa women. Smiley has pleaded innocent to all charges. His trial is scheduled Oct. 12.

Smiley, a starting defensive back last season, announced recently he would sit out the 1987 season as a red-shirt.

Fry was asked if Smiley will remain on scholarship and if he will practice with the team this

"I won't comment because the trial hasn't been held," Fry said at the Big Ten Kickoff Luncheon Thursday afternoon. "I was told he'll forego football this year but I haven't had a chance to talk to Keaton since his announcement.

"I just assume Keaton decided a red-shirt season would be best for him and the team. Other than that, I can't make any public comment."

Van Scoyocs power Norway into Class 1A final

Norway's brother team hits, pitches Tigers to a 4-0 win

> By Bob Denney Gazette sportswriter

MARSHALLTOWN - Norway High School's Van Scoyoc family made Dutch treat of the Class 1A opening round of the 42nd summer state baseball tournament Thursday afternoon. Junior pitcher Aaron Van Scoyoc carved out a masterful two-hitter, while brother and senior catcher Chad Van Scoyoc slugged a home run to lead the second-ranked Tigers to a 4-0 victory over Martensdale St. Mary's and a berth in Saturday's title game at noon.

The Tigers (36-8) have made the championship game six of the last seven years. They also got a season-long wish granted several hours later, as top-rated and two-time defending champion Bancroft St. John (27-1) advanced to the finals by escaping Rock Valley, 7-6.

St. Mary's retired 22-12, with pitcher Brian Reese (4-5) taking the loss.

It was St. John which snapped Norway's four-year title string in 1985 with a 10-1 rout. Memories of that loss continue to sting the Tigers.

. . We want St. John awful bad," said Aaron Van Scoyoc, who was a third baseman and relief pitcher during the '85 title game. "They're after our streak and they're not going to get it."

VAN SCOYOC'S FATHER - Tigers coach Jim - needs a victory over St. John to become the first coach to guide five summer champion teams.

"The kids have been talking about St. John since the first of June," he said. "I'd say it has been a leading motivator in getting us here.

"As a father I'm proud as hell, but I'm proud of the whole team. They have far exceeded my expectations."

Aaron Van Scoyoc relied upon his curveball to shut down the Blue Devils. He struck out nine and walked one for his sixth shutout of the season.

The 6-foot right-hander had pulled a muscle in his right arm during an American Legion Red game at LaCrosse, Wis., three weeks ago. But he was effective against St. Mary's.

Gooden notches 6th win in a row as Mets sweep

ST. LOUIS (AP) - Kevin McReynolds and Gary Carter drove home two runs apiece Thursday night as the New York Mets beat St. Louis 5-3 and sent the Cardinals to their seventh straight loss.

Dwight Gooden, 8-3, won his sixth straight decision against the Cardinals as the Mets completed a three-game sweep. They extended St. Louis' longest losing streak of the season before a crowd of 48,256.

New York moved within 51/2 games of the National league Eastleading Cardinals and Montreal is four games behind.

Gooden gave up nine hits and left after Jim Lindeman led off the ninth inning with a single. Tony Pena greeted Roger McDowell with a single and pinch-hitter Jose Oquendo sacrificed the potential tying runs into scoring position.

Vince Coleman followed with a grounder that first baseman Keith Hernandez bobbled and had no play on at first base, but threw to Carter to nail Lindeman in a home-plate collision. McDowell then retired Ozzie Smith on a fly ball for his 15th save.

Howard Johnson hit his 25th homer in the eighth for the Mets' final run. The Cardinals asked home plate umpire Joe West to check Johnson's bat and it was removed from the game and will be examined at a later date.

Gamble's running jumper lifts Hills Bank to Prime Time title

IOWA CITY (AP) — Former Iowa guard Kevin Gamble hit a 10-foot running jump shot with 26 seconds to play to lift Hills Bank to a sweltering 86-84 victory over Ahrens Construction in the championship game of Iowa City's Prime Time League.

Gamble, who was taken by Portland in the National Basketball Association draft, was joined on the championship team by former lowa forward Brad Lohaus, who went to Boston in the NBA draft. Lohaus, who passed up several scoring opportunities to make passes, had four points. Northern Iowa's Greg McDermott and former Mankato State player Todd Lumsden each hit 18 points for Hills Bank.

The game was trimmed to 15minute halves from the regular 20 minutes because of 90-degree heat in the City High gym and because players competed in back-to-back semifinal and final games.

Jeff Kraayenbrink, a Northwestern College player in 1979, hit 30 points to lead Ahrens and Northern Iowa's Troy Muillenberg had 16. owa center Les Jepsen and former Western Illinois player Todd Hutcheson had 15 points each.

Hills Bank held a 50-45 halftime lead but Kraayenbrink's hot shooting lifted Ahrens to a 68-59 lead. After McDermott tied the game at 80 on a jump shot with 3:45 left, Gamble hit the final six points for

Packers' Martin says he's ready to start fresh

Associated Press

GREEN BAY, Wis. — Charles Martin is hard at work in the summer heat, pitching 315 pounds of weight off his chest and driving himself to what he hopes will be a 1987 season full of football and little else.

"My attitude is a lot better as far being a player on the field and off the field," says Martin, a 6foot-4, 280-pound nose tackle for the Green Bay Packers.

"My whole attitude is that the problems I had last year and stuff like that are behind me. I've worked on that and I feel like I've improved myself as a football player and a person off the field. That is my main change right now, being a better person, period."

Martin became a national villain of sorts last November when he body slammed Chicago Bears quarterback Jim McMahon to the turf on a late hit and then drew a two-week suspension.

In December, Martin's wife checked him into an alcohol rehabilitation program in Birmingham, Ala., for a month and it was there, says Martin, that he realized he had a drinking problem.

"Coach (Forrest) Gregg knew I had a problem," Martin said earlier this year. "He told me that I had a problem because some of the things that 9. were happening were related to alcohol. But I was still into denial."

AIDS tests 'unnecessary' A doctor who specializes in AIDS treatment said Thursday it was stupid and unnecessary for

NFL clubs to test players and have trainers wear rubber gloves to guard against the disease. "This type of stupidity is going to put us back into the dark ages so far as educating people" about AIDS, said Dr. Peter Mansell of the Institute for Immunological Disorders in Hous-

He said testing is "totally unnecessary" and that playing football has "absolutely nothing to do with the transmission of the disease."

Five of the NFL's 28 teams have announced voluntary testing programs. They are the Dallas Cowboys, Houston Oilers, St. Louis Cardinals, Los Angeles Raiders and Los Angeles Rams. "Each club is handling it as it sees fit," NFL spokesman Joe Browne said.

Bengals, Brooks agree

The Cincinnati Bengals say they have reached agreement with Pro Bowl running back James Brooks on a new, two-year contract.

The Bengals said they expected to sign Brooks to the contract Thursday evening when he and other veteran players were due to report to the team's preseason training camp at Wilmington (Ohio) College.

Brooks, 28, a veteran of six National Football League seasons with San Diego and Cincinnati, set two Bengals' team records when he rushed for 1,087 yards and collected 1,773 total yards last

BIG TEN: White 'clean'

The Spartans never got into the title hunt last season and one of the reasons was White's health. He suffered a knee injury, then an ankle ailment. He gained only 633 yards after a 2,066-yard sophomore season. "If Lorenzo stays healthy, we could have a nice season," Perles said. "And if we can meet that tough early schedule (USC, Notre Dame, Florida State, Iowa, Michigan), it could pole vault us into a good season.'

IOWA COACH Hayden Fry, who again removed himself from the public spotlight this summer, had comments consistent with ones he made at the end of spring drills. He again said sophomore Dan McGwire is the No. 1 quarterback, but that Tom Poholsky and Chuck Hartlieb would press him. He emphasized the lack of experience on defense, especially in the secondary. He spoke in glowing terms about a lot of players, but in summary said, "We will have a very inexperienced football team. We lost 14 starters. To say I'm a little uptight would be an understatement.

"For us, it's a matter of getting players some experience and enjoying some success early. In all probability, by mid-season we should again have one of the better teams in the Big Ten."

Indiana, which played in the All-American Bowl last year, is on lowa's schedule for the first time in three years. Iowa fans will get their first look at the Hoosiers since 1984 when they visit Kinnick Stadium Oct. 31.

"We were frustrated last year in that we lost four games by a total of 11 points," said Indiana's Bill Mallory, last year's Big Ten Coach of the Year. "But it made our players want to get that much better.

"I feel the Big Ten is the best I've seen it in four years. Ohio State and Michigan are rated up there, but owa and a lot of others could move in there with those two." Iowa does not play Illinois this season or in 1988. That piece of scheduling could be fortunate for the Hawkeyes if Illini Coach Mike White's assessment is correct.

"Our defensive team will be stronger than the one we had in 1983 when we went to the Rose Bowl," White said. Illinois' 1983 team was the last to shut out lowe dousing the Hawkeyes in Chamnaign. 33-0.

White was asked about quarterback Jeff George, who announced last week he will transfer to Illinois. George, who won't be eligible until 1988, left Purdue after Leon Burtnett was fired and originally intended to go to Miami (Fla.). "People around home feel good about Jeff George coming to Illinois," White said. "That's the short term, so we'll see about the long haul." Ohio State has an extraordinary collection of returning players, Many headliners are on defense, including linebackers Chris Spielman and Eric Kumerow.

"In most cases, Big Ten championships are won by outstanding defenses," OSU Coach Earle Bruce said. "Basically, we should be a very sound defensive football team.

"In my coaching career, I have never coached a player with as much intensity as Spielman. If there's a linebacker with the caliber to win the Heisman, then I feel that person is Chris Spielman."

SCHULTZ'S PITCH — Former lowa basketball and baseball coach Dick Schultz, recently named to succeed Walter Byers as executive director of the NCAA, said he'll try to create a positive impression of collegiate sports.

"I think the greatest power I'll have is the power of persuasion," he said. "College athletics may be at the pinnacle of their popularity and there are far more positive things going on than negative."

NOTES - Dennis Swanson, president of ABC Sports, worked at WMT -TV in Cedar Rapids after graduating from Illinois. He appeared here Thursday to discuss ABC's Big Ten-Pac-10 package this season . . . Purdue lost a starting offensive guard, Dan Payne. New Boilermaker Coach Fred Akers said Payne competed with the Canadian national wrestling team and decided to stay there and work toward making the 1988 Olympic team . . . NORWAY: In Class 1A finals

From page 1B Van Scoyoc boosted his record to 12-1 by retiring the first 11 batters he faced. He surrendered an infield hit to Ruston Sullivan with two out in the top of the fourth inning. The only other St. Mary's hit was single by Marty Wadle to shallow center field in the fifth. THE FAMILY AFFAIR goes further. Van Scoyoc said he has worked on his pitching, getting periodic tips from his uncle -Baltimore Orioles pitcher Mike Boddicker. "I talk to him all the time on the phone," said Aaron. "When he's home he comes out and helps me. He talks to me about my motion. try to throw a curve like him.

"I can at least get it over the plate, even when I'm behind in the count," he said. "It sets up my fastball."

-Chad Van Scoyoc gave the Tigers all the offensive punch they needed with a solo home run - his sixth to lead off the bottom of the fourth. He socked a 3-2 pitch by Reese over the left field fence.

Reese was chased after five innings, giving up three runs on five hits. Reliever Brent Gavin pitched the final two frames, allowing one two-day sessions with coaches.

The Tigers' Dan Kahle salted away the win by scoring on an error in the fifth inning and slapping a two-run single in the sixth.

Kahle singled with one away in the fifth, stole second and advanced to third on Charlie Schulte's single. He scored after St. Mary's second basemen Toby Alexander threw over first base trying to complete a double play on a grounder by Aaron Van Scoyoc.

ST. JOHN Coach Eugene Meister watched his team squander a 6-3 lead to Rock Valley in the top of the sixth inning, only to rally to win with an unearned run in the bottom of the seventh. Keith Vaske scored the winning run on a wild pitch.

"It certainly wasn't a classic, but it was probably good for us," Meister said. "The kids should be highly motivated to play better baseball Saturday against Norway . . . St. John and Norway, that's the way it should be."

THEISMANN: Gibbs 'shocked'

excerpts of Theismann's autobiography, which appeared in the August issue of Washingtonian magazine, said that the former quarterback claimed that he often attended practices hung over and that he lost as much as $35,000 gambling during one season.

"I never saw Joe Theismann where I didn't think he was (giving) 100 percent on the practice field," Gibbs told the Post. "I thought Joe was one of the best practice players I ever saw. I didn't know Joe drank. I swear I didn't other than to have a beer or something."

Gibbs attempted to halt excessive post-practice drinking during the 1986 training camp after the team missed the 1985 NFL playoffs, according to Theismann.

He wrote of a group of players on the Redskins he called the "Five O'Clock Club" that regularly gambled after practice.

As for the gambling, Gibbs said "It stopped a while back because I felt it was getting out of hand."

the book Theismann also claimed that Gibbs asked him to either become a backup quarterback or to retire after the 1985 season, may be using drugs. He wrote that "with the money available today, every team may have three or four cocaine users." Gibbs said he doesn't believe that any Redskins use the drug.

Theismann said Thursday he didn't mean to sound critical of Gibbs or his former teammates. Theismann, appearing on WRC-

TV, said he wanted "to refute a statement that came out in the Washington Post" that he often "was hung over while at practices" and to answer other questions that were raised about comments he made in his book.

"I don't drink. I never had a problem drinking. It should well have been a shock to Joe Gibbs, because the problem never existed," said Theismann.
