Moses, whose 47.02-second clocking in 1983 remains the world record, also fell at a meet in Paris in July.

"I've had no big races this season, but most of the events I took part in were held in cold weather," Moses said.

If everything goes according to expectations, Moses should face Harris and Harald Schmidt of West Germany in the event's final on Tuesday, one day after Moses' 32nd birthday.

It was Schmidt who last beat Moses in 1977 before the American started his remarkable streak. Harris set the fastest time this year over the distance when he beat Moses in Madrid, clocking 47.56. Schmidt has the second fastest, a 47.60 set in Cologne two weeks ago.

Never let it be said that football was a sport from which Mark Adams of Clinton, Utah, always wanted to get his kicks.

The junior college transfer who will do Iowa's punting against Tennessee in Sunday's Kickoff Classic at East Rutherford, N.J., didn't go out for football until he was a junior in high school, and didn't punt until he was a senior. "When I was a young kid," Adams said, "basketball was my best sport. Then I got into baseball. But the high school football coach kept telling me I'd play if I came out for football." Adams became a standout punter without attending any kicking camps or receiving any concentrated teaching from a coach.

Adams said. "I take the normal 2 to 21/2 steps to get the ball off, and I usually get good hang time with my free loan and monthly payments tokicks.

"Any time a punter keeps the ball in the air more than 4 seconds, it's good. If he can get a 5-second hang time, that's really good." lege punters in his first year at Eastern Utah with a 45.7-yard average. lems. "I went through six deep ground, all over the place. So that hurt my average."

and Gladman but none of the four little-known players - Dan McFadden, a defensive back from Miami (Fla.); Paul Miller of Illinois Valley Community College; Marquis Pleasant, a wide receiver from Southern Methodist, and Chester Savoie, a defensive back from Nicholls State - was taken by any of the NFL's 28 teams.

Carter was declared ineligible by Ohio State on July 16 after admitting that he accepted a $5,000 interesttaling $1,800 to sign with Walters and Bloom in May 1986.

Administrators Reluctant

College administrators have com-football at Ohio State. But I told him that if we were going to appeal, we would have done it six weeks ago."

Bay added, "If we were to appeal this, I think it would pass on two messages. First, it would destroy our credibility with the people who believed us six weeks ago (at the time Carter was declared permanently ineligible). Second, this would be a message to future outstanding basketball and football players at Ohio State, that they could ... make such a mistake and still play college athletics."

Bruce, who said he was angry that Carter had repeatedly lied to him about any involvement with the agents, said he is now convinced that Carter is sincere and wanted to return to the Ohio State team.

Moses' best time this year is 47.69 and that came when he was beaten by Harris.

Asked which of the two rivals would be harder, Moses replied, "I don't really know, I haven't given much thought to that. I am not going to be looking at anyone on the track.

"I feel I'm as good today as I was then when I set the world record."

"Everyone is going to try to do their best and I expect competition from all over the track. Several guys are capable of going under 48 seconds," he added.

But Moses said breaking the world record in Rome would be very difficult because of heat and humidity, and the fact that there are two days of qualifying before the final.

Creating A Style

"A high school coach showed me the fundamentals," Adams said, "and I did the rest on my own. "When I was a high school junior, I did the place-kicking, and it wasn't

"I'm not bringing in any more lardos who can't run," Widenhofer said.

As a former assistant with the Pittsburgh Steelers and then as head coach of the USFL's defunct Oklahoma Outlaws, Widenhofer said it took him some time to adjust to college coaching. After last season, he said, he had finally learned that running a pro-style offense with a dropback passer won't work at too many schools.

KANSAS CITY, MO. - Billy Gardner is an extremely personable man whose quiet, low-key approach to managing seemed to be just what the Kansas City Royals needed following the death of Dick Howser.

But in the final analysis, it was his pleasant nature that probably led to his downfall.

Players liked Gardner, but it was becoming more and more apparent they had little respect for him.

They did not play their best for him and in recent weeks were openly critical of his way of handling his starting pitching staff and rookie left fielder Bo Jackson.

Gardner seemed to be confused and had to take starting pitcher Buddy Black out of a recent game in Boston when he erroneously made two trips to the mound in one inning.

Puppet

In another game against the Red Sox, he ordered starter Charlie Leibrandt to intentionally walk No. 9 hitter Spike Owen to load the bases in the bottom of the ninth inning. Reliever John Davis was then summoned from the bullpen and walked in the winning run.

"I hope to instill some Royal pride that's something that seems to have been missing around," said Wathan, a Cedar Rapids, Ia., native who had been managing the Royals' triple-A affiliate in Omaha.

General Manager John Scheurholz would not elaborate on Gardner's managing style.

"I'm not here to bury Billy," he said at Wathan's news conference. "I'm here to praise John Wathan. We believe John will provide leadership for this team. I personally am delighted to have a man of his caliber, quality and dedication."

"Time For Change"

Scheurholz met with Gardner at noon Thursday, told him of the decision and presented him with a check for the remaining balance of his $125,000 salary. The Royals' clubhouse attendant er room by announcing he would sign who drove Gardner to the airport later in the day said the former manager was in good spirits. Also Friday, American Mark Schultz returned to the victory stand, winning the 82-kilogram title.

Schultz, the 1985 champion, romped through the division and defeated Alexander Nanev of Bulgaria 3-1 in the finals. Vladimir Modosian of the Soviet Union, the 1986 champion, finished third. Schultz defeated Modosian Thursday to advance to the final pool.

The bronze at 82 went to Vladimir Modosian of the Soviet Union. He defeated Stans Aradamski of Poland, 6-2.

Soviet wrestlers took three of the other four weight classes that were decided Friday.

Champions at weights 52, 62, 74, 90 and 130 will be decided today.

FOGGIE'S FUTURE. A University of Minnesota committee is expected to declare guarterback Rickey Foggie ineligible today because an assistant coach bought him an airline ticket in 1985 so he could fly home to South Carolina for his grandmother's funeral. UMPIRE REIGNS. Seattle Mariners Manager Dick Williams was angry with the way his game Thursday at Yankee Stadium was rained out. The start of the game was delayed for 1 hour 8 minutes. Once the game started, play was halted for 1:32, and then called in the middle of the third inning, with Seattle leading, 1-0. "You have to be fair to everybody," said umpire versity of Texas won't automatically appeal the ineligibility of defensive cornerback James Lott just because the NCAA reinstated a Pittsburgh player who, like Lott, received a loan from a sports agent.

cally, we'll look at it," Athletic Director DeLoss Dodds said Thursday.

The NCAA Eligibility Committee voted earlier this week to restore the eligibility of Pitt senior Teryl Austin, a defensive back who borrowed $2,500 from agent Norby Walters.

Lott admitted to signing an $800 promissory note with Walters last summer. Upon learning of the note, the university declared the senior ineligible and asked the NCAA for a ruling on the school's action. The NCAA said Texas acted properly.
