HAWKS: Tough 4-game finish

but that." With five freshmen in his top 10, Davis said their performance will determine lowa's success in the coming weeks. Ray Thompson has been steady in the starting lineup, with James Moses, Wade Lookingbill, Troy Skinner and Brian Garner in reserve. "I think how well those five freshmen do is probably going to be a key as you look at us," said Davis. Michigan State Coach Jud Heathcote has faced a similar situation with three freshmen in his top group. "I think Jud made a good comment, if I interpreted right what he said," said Davis. "He felt maybe his freshmen had reached a plateau. I think that's a pretty been able to get them to go beyond," said Davis. "How good are the Hawks going to be, not only in the last two weeks of the season but in the postseason?" he wondered. "Can those five freshmen raise themselves up to a new level and soon it's going to come down to one game. If you win, you play again. If you lose, you retire for the year.

"And that is pressure. It's a different kind of pressure." Davis said inexperience can hurt in three ways. "Where does it show its ugly head?" he mused.

"They work hard, but they foul," he said. "You see them commit turnovers far too often . . And the third thing would be in forcing shots."

Davis said the 18-game Big Ten season against top teams and top coaches prepares a club for most styles of play. Tournament pressure, however, is another matter.

"The problem of going into postseason is the mentality that this could be our last game," he said. "And the players don't know how to respond to that pressure, and as a result they play poorly, they tighten up, they don't pass as well, they don't shoot as well, they don't rebound or defend. "Because they say, 'Gee, if I don't do it tonight we're done.'

And so they panic almost." Iowa's four-game winning streak is its longest in the Big Ten since 1985. And 21 wins tie the fourth-best in school history, despite seven virtual newcomers to complement seniors Roy Marble,

B.J. Armstrong and Ed Horton. "It's one of the reasons I'm pleased with the ballclub as to where they are," said Davis. "To have won 21 games with that combination, you've got to be happy with that."

ISU: Winless in Big 8 trips

From page 1B would like to settle a score with Iowa State from the game the two schools played in Ames earlier this season. Iowa State rallied from nine points down with less than five minutes left to win in overtime, 81-77. "That's one that really kind of sticks in your craw a little bit," Colorado Coach Tom Miller said.

"We thought we could win the basketball game but we didn't. That one, of all the games this season, is probably the most distasteful. It was a big game for us, an opportunity we let slip away."
