Goach tells how athletes lied to him

By TOM WITOSKY Register Staff Writer

CHICAGO, ILL. - Left untouched by the defense, University of Michigan head football coach Bo Schembechler testified Wednesday two former Wolverine players would have been ineligible their final years had heknown they had signed with sports agents before the 1986 season.

In fact, Schembechler, one of the most successful coaches in Big Ten football, said he immediately ousted defensive back Garland Rivers permanently from the Wolverine program after the player acknowledged signing a representation contract with agents Norby Walters and Lloye Bloom before to his senior year.

"I told him he was a disgrace to Michigan football, that his grant-in-aid is taken away, that he is suspended from the team, his locker is closed and his picture is off the wall," said Schembechler, who is also from Oklahoma - you don't forget things like that."

 Virginia is the underdog of the remaining Southeast Regional contenders, but the Cavaliers are on a shooting tear after hitting 58 percent from the field and 70 percent from three-point range in two games last week.

The Cavaliers remember Oklahoma. The teams met last year in Hawaii and played close the first half. In the second half, the Sooner pressure held Virginia to no points but 16 turnovers the first 9 minutes. Oklahoma won, 109-61.

"It's hard to remember anything [about that game] except the second half. It was so embarrassing," Coach Terry Holland said.

 Michigan has been knocked out of the tournament the past two years by the same team - North Carolina. The teams meet again in tonight's second game.

Michigan State to NIT semifinals, 70-63

By The Associated Press

VILLANOVA, PA. - Steve Smith scored 34 points to lead Michigan State to a 70-63 victory over Villanova Wednesday night to earn a berth in the National Invitation Tournament semifinals.

Smith rescued the Spartans from a cold second-half start that included 5-and 4-minute droughts.

The 6-foot 6-inch sophomore scored 22 of his points in the second half and was perfect on 10 free throws as Michigan State went 18-for-18 from the line in the period.

The Spartans (18-13) next play Monday in the NIT semifinals in New York. Villanova ends its season at 18-16.

Villanova, which trailed, 37-30, at the half, scored the first nine points, taking a 39-37 lead on a tip-in by Gary Massey as Michigan went 5 minutes 4 seconds without a point.

Smith brought the Spartans back nament champion. with three field goals for a 43-39 lead. Then the Spartans, up 56-41, went scoreless for 4:07 while Doug West and Massey, playing their final games for Villanova, scored four straight baskets for a 49-46 Villanova with an 18-13 record. Kennedy, a sophomore guard, hit lead.

Mark Montgomery broke the string with a pair of free throws to pull the Spartans within 51-48. Smith collected 16 of the Spartans' final 22 points for the victory.

STORRS, CONN. - Andy Kennedy scored 22 points, 18 on three-point field goals, to lead the Blazers past last year's National Invitation Tour-

Senior forward Reginald Turner added 18 points for Alabama-Birmingham, which advances to the semifinals Monday night in New York City. The Huskies finished the season two free throws with 42 seconds left to give the Blazers an 81-76 lead.

Connecticut dominated the early minutes and led, 25-20, with 11:25 left in the first half.

athletic director at Michigan.

The coach, who will enter his 21st season this year, described the meeting during direct examination by government lawyers during the 10th day of testimony in the extortion, fraud and racketeering trial of Walters, 59, and Bloom, 29.

Walters and Bloom face up to 70 years in prison and $2 million in fines if convicted on charges stemming from the signing of college football players to representation contracts before their eligibility ended.

The agents have acknowledged spending hundreds of thousands of dollars to obtain the signatures of top collegians in 1985 and 1986 but deny they broke any federal laws.

Schembechler's testimony appeared to re-energize the prosecution's flagging case, which has taken a battering by the defense's attempts to place college athletics and several universities on trial instead of their clients.

Schembechler testified for nearly 30 minutes and was dismissed from the stand after defense lawyers declined to cross-examine him.

"I was surprised," Schembechler said after he testified. "I was hoping they would cross-examine me."

Schembechler testified that he noticed a change in Rivers almost from the beginning of his senior year - a year Rivers was predicted to be an all-American.

"In that fourth year, he was not the same young man I had for three years," Schembechler said. He said Rivers began to do poorly academi-

"It's a disadvantage in that you can't help but remember they beat you twice," Michigan player Loy Vaught said. "But on the other hand, we want to avenge ourselves. It's going to put a lot of fire in our eyes."

Steve Fisher, in his second week of replacing Bill Frieder as coach, clearly has high respect for North Carolina Coach Dean Smith. As a high school coach a few years ago, he went to a clinic and got Smith's autograph.

"I was getting it mostly for myself, but I also told him I was getting it for my boy," Fisher said. "It's like those old baseball cards. I don't know where it is now."

• It has been seven years since North Carolina won a regional, a long dry spell for Smith, who's been to seven Final Fours.

The Tar Heels are at full strength and trying to put last weekend's suspension of J.R. Reid for curfew violation behind them.

"I feel like I let them down," Reid said of his teammates. "I like to think we're a little better team with me."

The Virginia-Oklahoma game may be a struggle for tempo. The Sooners average 102.9 points a game. Virginia likes to take its time and wait for a good shot.

The Cavaliers hit a lot of shots last week, and their leaders were guards Richard Morgan and John Crotty. Morgan had 33 points in each of the two games, and Crotty had 24 points and 25 points.

teams mentally when they make you play defense for 30 seconds and then hit the 20-footer," said Middle Tennessee Coach Bruce Stewart, whose team lost, 104-88, to Virginia.

The top matchup will be Mookie Blaylock against Crotty, pressure against poise.

"He fears nobody," King said of Crotty. "It'll be interesting because Mookie doesn't fear anybody, either. You have two persons with strong wheels."

North Carolina's strength close to the basket led to Michigan's demise last year. The Tar Heels pounded the ball inside to draw fouls and sent a parade to the free-throw line. North Carolina's 78-69 victory was built on a 21-9 edge at the free-throw line. Michigan will have to guard against that tactic this year.

Michigan also must try to force turnovers from the Tar Heels, whose weak link is ballhandling, and hope to come close to its nation-leading 57.4 percent field-goal accuracy.

"I had told him after his third year to be careful and not jeopardize his eligibility because he had a good shot at a degree. Now I know that he didn't," Schembechler said.

Earlier in the trial, Rivers and running back Robert Perryman admitted they had received money from the agents and signed representation contracts with them before their fourth years of eligibility.

Rivers and Perryman also admitted they lied to Schembechler when he first confronted them with questions of whether they had signed with the agents.

In his testimony, Schembechler was forceful in describing his recruitment of both athletes and his adherence to NCAA rules.

Of his recruitment of Rivers, Schembechler said he told the Canton, Ohio, athlete that he "would have a great opportunity to get a degree from this great school."

"I told him he would have the best support services available," the coach said, "but that it would always be done in adherence with NCAA rules."

Schembechler described Perryman as a "fine young man, but a lazy student."

But Schembechler said Perryman was still in a position to receive his degree within five years had he stayed in school.

In his meetings with both athletes about their involvement with agents, Schembechler said Perryman and Rivers lied to him.

"They can break down a lot of - Reid said of the Wolverines.

Arizona, Indiana eye berths in Final Four

DENVER, COLO. (AP) — The Nevada-Las Vegas Runnin' Rebels have been the gang that couldn't shoot straight most of the season.

Coach Jerry Tarkanian said that will have to change if his team expects to have any chance against No. 1-ranked Arizona tonight in the semifinals of the NCAA West Region-

Indiana and Seton Hall meet in the other semifinal.

"We have to shoot extremely well tomorrow to be in the game," Tarkanian said. "We're playing a team with no weaknesses."

Tarkanian figures his 15th-ranked Rebels are due to improve their shooting accuracy. In their last three games, they've hit 42, 39 and 37 percent from the field. Still, they won.

"Defense has carried us," Tarkanian said.

"If we go through a long period and don't score against Arizona, we'll be 10 or 12 points down in a hurry because they shoot it so well," he said.

A choking pressure defense has enabled the young Rebels to compile a 28-7 record, but against Arizona, they'll face a team loaded with good ballhandlers.

ble to his 1987 NCAA champions. But he was never certain how good that '87 team was either - until it won it all.

Knight's Indiana teams also won national titles in 1976 and 1981.

"I've had the best team in the country two or three times and not known whether we would get by the first round or not, so I never know how we'll do," Knight said after Wednesday's practice.

"This team is comparable physically to the '87 team," he said. "We won't overpower anybody. The other two [national title] teams could have beaten anybody at any time."

Knight characterizes his team as one that has to play well to win. "We don't overwhelm anybody on the boards," he said. "We don't knock the ball loose a lot. We have to avoid mental and mechanical mistakes and we have to shoot well. If nothing else is going well, we're not able to pound you on the boards all night the way some teams do."

The Hoosiers, who started the season 3-4, turned things around after switching to a three-guard offense. But some observers say it is Knight's more mellow demeanor that has made the difference.

"Katie can play there," Stringer said of Waugh's inside position, but we've been using her on the perimeter and she is accustomed to that spot."

Besides those two, forward Franthea Price has been hobbled by a swollen knee in the past two weeks. Guard Jolette law has to have a shot before every game because of a nerve problem in her right wrist.

"Robin Christian is the only healthy starter we have," Stringer said. "Why can't we go into a situation powerful, healthy and ready?

"We'll have to have our greatest game of the season, and Stanford will have to not play [for us to win]."

Tonight's winner will play either third-ranked Louisiana Tech or unrated Louisiana State Saturday for the right to compete in the Final Four in Tacoma, Wash. The other teams play tonight, after Iowa's game.

Even with everyone fit, the opponent for the Hawkeyes (27-4) is not easy. Stanford (27-2), the Pacific-10 Conference champion, has won its last 21 games and has scored 100 points or more in five of its last six.

The 10-player team is selected by the Women's Basketball Coaches Association and will be announced March 30 at Tacoma, Wash., site of the NCAA women's basketball final.

Schembechler said Perryman also tried to perpetuate the lie by suggesting the coach talk to Bloom. But Schembechler said he refused a telephone call from the agent.

After the truth about the contracts came out, Schembechler said, Rivers and Perryman were immediately denied scholarship money for any future assistance had they returned to finish their educations.
