No Knight; league in daze

Strike Indiana from the record books of the 1980s, and Big Ten basketball isn't quite so big.

Without the Hoosiers almost single-handedly carrying the NCAA tournament banner, the league becomes the Pretty Big Nine.

Granted, this is like saying if it weren't for that 20-point run at the start of the second half, the game would have been close.

The college basketball decade began with a pair of Pretty Big Nine teams in the Final Four. And now, with Illinois playing Michigan in Seattle, it will end the same way.

Still, in the eight years between Iowa-Purdue and Illinois-Michigan, if it hadn't been for the Hoosiers, the Big Ten would have been oh-for-Final Four.

That's one reason Seattle holds so much promise for Midwesterners. After too many years of relying on

66Michigan's playing the best basketball of anybody in the NCAA.99

- Lou Henson Illinois basketball coach

Indiana to uphold its reputation as one of the very best leagues in the land, the Pretty Big Nine has redeemed itself.

In fact, with Michigan and Illinois meeting in one semifinal, the conference has a nonrefundable ticket to the championship game.

Not to be Hoosierphobic about it, but weren't you beginning to wonder whether the man in the red sweater really did possess The Truth as it pertains to college basketball?

Well, he doesn't.

Michigan-Illinois does almost as much for Big Ten prestige as Kansas-Oklahoma did for Big Eight esteem a year ago.

Especially if one of them goes on to claim the title. That hasn't happened to the Big Ten — Indiana excluded since Magic Johnson led Michigan State past Larry Bird and Indiana State 10 years ago.

Over the past eight seasons, the Big East has sent Georgetown, Villanova, Syracuse, Providence and St. John's to the Final Four.

The Atlantic Coast Conference has sent North Carolina, Virginia, North Carolina State and Duke.

The Southeast Conference has sent LSU, Georgia and Kentucky.

The Metro Conference has sent Louisville and Memphis State.

The Big Ten has sent Indiana. Just Indiana.

No matter who wins — and since Illinois already has defeated Michigan by 12 and 16 in 1989, it'll probably be Michigan — this is a refreshing development. "Right now," said Lou Henson, the Illinois coach, "Michigan's playing the best basketball of anybody in the NCAA. I saw the Virginia game and it was unbelievable. They would have beaten a pro team. If they play like they've been playing, nobody is going to beat them." Speaking of refreshing, instead of larger-than-life coaching figures like Dean Smith, Bob Knight, John Thompson, Denny Crum or Lute Olson, weighing heavy on the proceedings, now we've got just folks. In P.J. Carlesimo, the Seton Hall coach, we have a fellow who was under fire last season, and not just because he wears a beard.

Seton Hall, by the way, is not the name of the library, the student center, the honors dorm or the gym. It's the name of the entire school, which is located in New Jersey and features Olympians from Puerto Rico and Australia.

Neither of them is a 5-foot 4-inch guard named Pookey Wigington.

Seton Hall plays Duke, which means we'll have to learn to spell and pronounce Mike Krzew ... Keewoo .. Krsh ... Coach K for the third time in four years.

But it's worth it. It'll be good practice for the '92 or '96 Olympic Games, when Kerplunkski coaches the U.S.

True, he's a Final Four re-retread, but he's a classy young re-retread.

Last season, when UCLA asked him to consider the head coaching job in Westwood, Krzooski didn't book immediate passage to L.A.

He said he'd discuss the possibility at the end of the season. Good enough, they said. What's

lowa prof: lowa athletes would have been ineligible

By TOM WITOSKY Register Staff Writer

CHICAGO, ILL. — A University of Iowa professor insisted Monday former Hawkeye athletes Ronnie Harmon and Devon Mitchell would have lost their eligibility and scholarships had school officials known the two were involved with agents.

Samuel Becker, a professor of communication studies and U of I athletic faculty representative, said such action would have been taken because NCAA and Big Ten Conference rules required it.

At the same time, Becker said he still is not sure whether either Harmon or Mitchell have repaid the school for their scholarships though he said school officials have demanded the money be returned.

"My understanding is that we have taken action to recover the scholarship money though I don't know the details of it," Becker said.

Becker's testimony on Monday was the final piece put into the record of the federal government's prosecution of New York City-based sports agents Norby Walters and Lloyd Bloom.

Walters, 59, and Bloom, 29, face up to 70 years in jail and $2 million in fines if convicted on federal extortion, racketeering and fraud charges stemming from the two men's threeyear attempt to become the preeminent sports agents of black football players.

The two agents are accused of conspiring with eight athletes from several Big Ten schools as well as Notre Dame and Temple University of defrauding the universities of scholarship money by signing the athletes to representation contracts prior to the end of the athletes' college eligibility. In addition, the agents also are accused of threatening three athletes when they attempted to break their contracts with the agents.

Prior to resting their case, however, U.S. Attorney Anton Valukas dropped two parts of the indictment including charges the agents had threatened Chicago Bears wide-receiver Ron Morris and that they had signed former Miami of Ohio star player George Swarn to a representation contract.

Valukas declined to say why the charges involving those athletes were dropped, but defense lawyer Dan Webb, who represents Bloom, demanded a mistrial be declared.

Webb's motion, which was rejected by U.S. District Court Judge George Marovich, was based on a claim that

Arizona, Florida camps far apart in attitude

• While Boston star Wade Boggs battles Margo Adams from his base in Florida, Milwaukee pitcher Ted Higuera drinks a beer in the grandstands in nearby Chandler, Ariz.

 While Cincinnati Manager Pete Rose tries to fend off reporters who want to talk about gambling in Florida, Oakland Manager Tony LaRussa invites reporters to his Phoenix condominium for Easter brunch.

"You rarely see the negative sides of baseball here," Denkinger said. "What you see here are players having fun ... getting themselves in shape for the season.

"Zim told me just the other day that he's winning about once a week this spring, but that he's not concerned. That's the attitude managers have about spring training here. It's too competitive in Florida."

Player Agrees

That's not only an umpire's view. It's also the view of Cubs outfielder Mitch Webster, who went through spring training in Florida last year with the Montreal Expos.

"People are way too serious about spring training in Florida," he said. "I agree with Denkinger, they treat their spring training games like the World Series. I even remember once when someone walked me intentionally last year in Florida. That's garbage during spring training.

here and a kid ran up for my auto-more free time for the players in Arizona than in Florida. "Maybe it was just the Expos, but we seem to be able to do more things here after we're finished," Webster said. "When we thought we were done in the afternoon in Florida, there would be a message on the chalkcase here. Not only with the Cubs, but with some of the other teams.

"I know that I've seen some of the A's and Brewers at various spots around the area at night. You see the managers out and about here, too. In Florida, you rarely saw them away from the field or a meeting."

Few Meetings

Zimmer is an example. He has a meeting with his coaching staff for an hour after a game, then it's on to other things. In his case, it's to Phoenix Greyhound Park, where he meets friends almost nightly.

"I don't know anything about the dogs," he said. "It's just a means of escape. I've been to many spring trainings in Florida. I agree, they're too serious, but it's the nature of the game over there.

"It might be the weather. In Florida, you never know from day to day whether it's going to rain. Here, "I could tell the difference from you're pretty much assured of having nice weather. And anyway, we've got all season to have meetings."

ASKED TO QUIT. Arden Reid, a part-time assistant coach whose son is one of the leading scorers on the team, has been asked to resign at Nebraska, the Lincoln Journal reported Monday. Reid has been a member of Coach Danny Nee's staff since Nee was hired as Nebraska's coach in 1986. Reid's son, Beau, was recruited by Nee for Ohio University, but enrolled at Nebraska after Nee was named the Cornhusker coach. Beau Reid received a special ruling from the NCAA allowing him to attend Nebraska without losing a year of eligibility. He received a scholarship, but was withheld from competition in the 1986-87 season. He averaged 11.9 points a game for the Cornhuskers this season.

BACK TO BUSINESS. The Oklahoma Sooners, rocked by a three-year probation and a string of off-field arrests, returned to the football practice field Monday. Coach Barry Switzer, whose legs were in soft casts from a skiing accident, was driven around the practice field in a golf cart. Despite a steady drizzle, Switzer said the Sooners are glad to be back on the field, "more so than anytime than I can remember."

COACH NAMED. Tates Locke, an assistant coach to Bob Knight at Indiana University, was named head basketball coach Monday at Indiana State. Locke succeeds Ron Greene, who coached the team to a 4-24 recored last season and an 0-14 mark in Missouri Valley Conference play.

RACER KILLED. A motorcycle racer died of injuries she received Sunday after she her bike hit a guardrail at a drag strip at Orangeburg, S.C. Authorities said Sherry Williams, 29, of Hudson, Fla., was racing her 1984 Harley-Davidson at the facility Sunday afternoon. She died at a hospital later.

Quotes of the Day

"It's one thing to get your tail kicked and deserve to be out of here. If you can get somebody cheaper to do the same job, you do it." - Relief pitcher Neil Allen, who was released Monday by Cleveland. He had been signed as a free agent in January and would have reportedly made $325,000 had he made the team. He was 0-1 with a 4.60 earned-run average.

"I only make good pitches. That's the other guy who's out there with me on the mound that makes bad pitches. I cuss him out and want him to leave my body. I'm a guy who never messes up. And I'm still trying to teach that other guy how to pitch. You have to pitch a lot of innings to give up 50 homers. That shows that you were out there working." - California pitcher Bert Blyleven, philosophical about giving up homers.

In addition, Teleconnect proposes to establish set-up fees of $100.00 for intrastate SUPERWATS PLUS + and $200.00 for intrastate SUPERWATS PLUS DAL. Also intrastate SUPERWATS PLUS 1+ will be subject to a monthly charge of $11.00. Some interLATA (calls between your Bell zones) MTS will receive rate increases. Some intraLATA (calls within your Bell zones) MTS will receive rate increases.

The total Teleconnect intrastate revenues are being reduced. For this reason, Teleconnect does not perceive this filing as a rate increase. However, the Board may perceive the filing as a rate increase because certain specific rates are being increased. This proposed increase/decrease in rates and set-up fees may be docketed by the Board, which may suspend the effective date of the proposed rates and set-up fees. After a thorough investigation, the Board may order final rates, set-up fees and monthly charges which may be different from those we requested. These final rates, set-up fees and monthly charges will become effective at a date set by the Board. You have the right to file a written objection to these proposed changes with the Board and to request a public hearing. The address of the Board is: Iowa State Utilities Board, Lucas State Office Building, Des Moines, Iowa 50319. The Board should be provided with any facts that would assist it in determining the justness and reasonableness of these requested changes. This information will be available to the Consumer Advocate, who represents the public interest in rate cases before the Board.

A written explanation of all existing and proposed rate schedules is available without charge by calling
