Register Staff Writer University of Iowa President Hunter Rawlings indicated strongly he is willing to drop his push to make freshman athletes at Iowa ineligible for varsity competition if national reforms of intercollegiate athletics are adopted during the next two years.

"I never wanted to do it on our own," Rawlings said Friday after a luncheon speech in Des Moines to members of the Polk County I-Club. "I am so pleased right now with the momentum I see toward reform generally that I think it is much less of an important question at this time." "If we get these things through, I would feel much more confident then about being in a good position without having to go to freshman ineligibility," he said. The university president set off a storm of controversy about a year ago when he said he was willing to declare Iowa athletes ineligible for competition during their freshman year regardless of whether other schools approved a restriction.

Widespread Criticism

That idea prompted widespread criticism among Iowa coaches, alumni and fans, who claimed such a move unless done nationally would only hamper the ability of the Hawkeye athletic teams to compete.

Rawlings floated his idea on freshman ineligibility after a university investigation of the academic performance of Hawkeye student-athletes after the disclosure of the academic transcripts of former athletes Ronnie Harmon and Devon Mitchell during the federal court trial of sports agents Norby Walters and Lloyd Bloom. He said that he has been pleased with the reaction from Iowa athletic and academic officials to his call for placing greater emphasis on academics. As a result of the probe, greater academic demands have been placed on university athletes and greater monitoring of their programs has taken place.

"Over the last 12 months, I have seen quite a bit of improvement just at the University of Iowa in the approach taken toward academics. That gives me a lot of confidence, too. I think things are moving well right now and that is where I want to concentrate on that."

Rawlings says 12th Big Ten team unlikely

BUSINESS ON 6S

Further expansion of the Big Ten Conference is unlikely at least partially because there isn't another institution as attractive as Penn State to become the 12th conference member, University of Iowa President Hunter Rawlings said Friday.

"There were a lot of reasons to take Penn State," Rawlings told members of the Polk County I-Club. "But, we don't see another institution out there that looks guite like that at the current time. As a result, we would not be in such a strong position to go to a 12th school." Rawlings was a supporter of expanding the conference membership to include Penn State, an independent in football and member of the Atlantic-10 Conference in other sports. Penn State was granted admission to the Big Ten last July and is expected to be in full competition with other Big Ten schools by the mid-1990s. But the move to expand has prompted criticism and controversy within the Big Ten with several athletic directors complaining that it wasn't necessary. Rawlings said that controversy took a toll. "Adding the 11th was so hard that we don't want to go through that any time soon," Rawlings said. "There was a sense of exhaustion once Penn State was resolved." As a result, Rawlings said, it is unlikely that there would be any move to expand prior to the end of a fouryear moratorium on expansion approved at the time. Rawlings also said it is unlikely the conference would try to raid another conference. "Penn State was an independent and we don't want to get into the business of raiding other conferences. That would be a mistake," he said. Rawlings said another impediment to further expansion is that a number of the Big Ten schools are opposed to going to divisional play - something necessary with a 12-team conference. "There are presidents who favor divisional play, but not very many," Rawlings said. "We also had a couple who don't under any circumstances want to go to divisional play. Given that, we decided it was probably wise to stay the way we are." He added he personally doesn't have strong feelings about it, but he said a break-up of some traditional rivalries would be necessary. "There would be controversies over who would be in what division and what rivalries would be disturbed. By the time you did it, you would mess up some traditional rivalries," he said.

"I wouldn't call it a miracle," pitcher Greg Harris said. "It's mysterious. Maybe that's the word."

The Red Sox pedigree does not exactly read like that of the '27 Yankees. If the standings aren't lying, statistics are. For this is a team that can claim:

• Being shut out 14 times. Boston has been in first place for nearly a month, but, as of Friday, had outscored the opposition by only 10 runs

Hayden Fry for special praise, particularly Fry's support for the effort among college chief executives to reform collegiate athletics.

"Hayden's comments have been strongly welcomed on it. I think he is providing the leadership that is needed among the coaches to keep it going. In general, he can't be any more supportive. It helps a lot."

Rawlings said he is particularly supportive of changes to reduce time demands on athletes through the proSpeaks at I-Club meeting posed implementation of a 20-hour week for practice and competition and cost reduction steps including reduction of recruiting efforts.

Rawlings, who played college basketball and baseball, told I-Club members he still supports the idea of freshman ineligibility, particularly for minority students who may be as this season. They trail only Baltimore in leaving the most men on base.

• Using 40 different players this season.

• Being 13th in the American League in home runs, last in stolen bases. The Red Sox have hit into the most double plays, a statistic helped measurably by the six they hit into in one game against Minnesota. That will live in only slightly less infamy than the night before, when they grounded into two triple plays.

 Having a pitching staff that includes four men who have been released by other clubs. The starting rotation features Roger Clemens, Mike Boddicker and three refugees. They include Harris, cut by Philadelphia last year, 29-year-old rookie Dana Kiecker, and Tom Bolton, a left-hander who has spent most of 10 years in the minors before getting his chance. Losing both its established closers in the bullpen. Lee Smith was traded and Jeff Reardon had surgery for a ruptured disc. One prospect to fill in was Rob Murphy, but he owns a 6.34 earned-run average, which he has celebrated by throwing his glove into the stands one night in Cleveland and trashing the clubhouse after another bad outing in Kansas City.

"But right now I'd say we're not

So now the closer is one Jeff Gray, who in April was told by the Phillies he was not even good enough to make their triple-A team.

This juggernaut is threatening to conquer the A.L. East.

Veteran outfielder Dwight Evans said, "There are a lot of people who put us down. But we're in first place." Yes, they are. Have been since July 31, though the lead is being challenged this weekend in a Skydome showdown with Toronto.

And you can see reasons for Boston's ride at the top, if you squint.

They may not pound the ball, but they spray it enough. The Red Sox lead the league in hitting. The defense is sound. And the pitchers' work has been far better than their reputations.

Bolton has won seven games the last two months.

Harris, starting regularly for the first time in four seasons, has won 10.

Gray has saved four games. His calm under fire is one sign of the healthy atmosphere in the Boston clubhouse.

"It's driving me crazy," he said.

"We've gone through spring practice and half of our workouts so far in the preseason, and we haven't had all 11 defensive starters on the field at the same time three days in a row," Walden said.

"One day it's a defensive back who's down, then an inside linebacker's shoulder is sore, then two tackles have a knee and a hamstring problem.

Walden said Matt Rehberg, a 265pound end, is the only defender who could miss the Sept. 8 season opener against Northern Iowa.

"But that's the result of a latesummer shoulder operation," Walden said. "The other injuries are more aggravating than devastating."

Walden said Paul Schulte, a 213pound junior from Des Moines, has moved into the No. 1 tight end spot because Craig Mahoney is injured.

Walden said the offensive line, which is without standout center Keith Sims who is with the Miami Dolphins, is better now than it was at a similar point last season.

"No one has been hurt, and they're a strong bunch," Walden.

"They can hold and tear shirts like all other offensive linemen."

Walden said the loss academically of wide receiver Steve Lester has hurt, "but Chris Spencer, John Glotfelty and Troy Moore can catch the ball very well." Walden said sophomore Hussein Warmack has been impressive at fullback. "I like Warmack a lot," he said, "and he'll make a big difference in how we use tailback Blaise Bryant. "Last year, we were using Ron Wilkinson, a converted 187-pound halfback, at fullback."

Davis leads Reds past Pittsburgh, 4-3

Associated Press

PITTSBURGH, PA. - Eric Davis' knees are still aching, but his bat appears to be getting well - and that might be all the Cincinnati Reds need to win the National League West. Davis went 4-for-4 with a homer and scored all four Cincinnati runs as the N.L. West-leading Reds ended a five-game losing streak against Pittsburgh by beating the N.L. East leaders, 4-3, on Friday night. "He's starting to swing the bat and that's what we need," Reds Manager Lou Piniella said of Davis, who entered the game batting .225.

TORONTO, ONTARIO – This is how to win a division:

• In his last start against Baltimore, Boston pitcher Dana Kiecker was blown away in the first inning and never retired a batter. But Friday in the second game of a weekend showdown with Toronto, he threw eight innings of shutout baseball for a 2-0 victory.

• The Red Sox had nine hits Friday. All of them singles. But four of them came in the ninth inning when they broke open a scoreless duel. Boston moved two games ahead in the American League East one base at a time.

"I've always felt I could be quality major-league pitcher - and not just the No. 10 guy on the staff," he said.

"Now we're in a pennant race, and I'm into it as much as anybody in this clubhouse. I've known what I've gone through to get here."

The Red Sox, of course, are well known for being hungry. You have to be 72 years old to have been alive the last time they won the World Series. History since then has included several wars, famines and Boston disasters, and one suspects the rather unimposing facade of this team must have the hardened fans of New England wary of September, when the leaves and the Sox always fall.

But confidence abounds within the team. Part of that may come from having so many guys who were shunned somewhere else.

"You want to prove you deserve to be here," Harris said. "That gives you inside motivation."

"This this team has come together," Evans added. "Winning creates ... good habits, good thoughts.

"I keep going back to the little things. Little things count. If a man is on second, you have to move him over. You hit a line drive to the second baseman, you're not doing the job. That's trying; trying don't get it." No one knows that better than a Red Sox fan.

Davis broke a 2-2 tie with a solo homer leading off the sixth against Doug Drabek, who failed in a bid for his 17th victory. Drabek got off the

bek. Hal Morris popped out, but Davis singled to center for his fourth straight hit. Paul O'Neill, who hadn't hit the ball out of the infield in three previous at-bats, then lined a runscoring double to left-center field. Kipper, who was 5-0 in his last 21

LOBOS' INFRACTIONS. Academically ineligible athletes were allowed to compete by former University of New Mexico track coach Del Hessel, the school's athletic director said. Hessel was fired July 11 and Athletic Director Gary Ness confirmed this week the school had uncovered several violations by the track program when Hessel was in charge. Ness, who said the infractions could involve as many as 150 athletes, said he had informed the NCAA of the violations about two weeks ago.

CONFERENCE DISCUSSION. Atlantic Coast Conference and Florida State officials will meet Sept. 2-3 in Tallahassee, Fla., to discuss whether the school should become a league member, university president Bernard Sliger said Friday. Florida State officials want to decide about future conference affiliation by Sept. 30, Sliger said.

NOT LEAVING. Texas and Texas A & M will remain in the Southwest Conference, the presidents of the two schools said Friday. That ended speculation the schools would leave to join some other conference. The speculation started when Arkansas decided to join the Southeastern Conference next year. Fred Jacoby, the commissioner of the Southwest Conference, said the league is considering expansion, but he declined to be specific.

Frosh can play if reforms passed

RAWLINGS

well-prepared for college as other students.

NCAA Rules

"I still believe strongly that requiring all students to put their emphasis on academics that first year is very, very important and quite helpful in getting them on the road to have a successful academic experience," he said.

Rawlings also said that approach is preferable to the current use of minimum standardized test scores to determine admission to a school. Under the NCAA rules, student-athletes must achieve a minimum score of 18 on their ACT or 700 on the SAT test as well as have a 2.0 grade-point average in a core of college preparatory classes.

Rawlings described the use of test scores to determine admission under Proposition 48 as "fairly effective at least in sending a message." "But it is kind of using a blunt instrument when we need something more refined," he said, pointing out that a poor test score doesn't necessarily mean a student won't succeed in college. "Admissions people will tell you at least the honest ones — that admissions is an art and not a science," Rawlings said. "You can't look at a test record and say that this person is going to succeed and that this person is going to fail. No way."

ing to see you through a curriculum,' Rawlings said.

Of the controversy, Rawlings acknowledged it was not an "entirely pleasant for me to stand out there more or less alone a year ago on the need for some serious reform for intercollegiate athletics."

But he also said it was important for him to take that position.

"I thought it was very important to send the message that academics is the main thing. Sports are important, but they are not the primary area of focus," Rawlings said. "Now I think that has happened. On a national level, there is a lot more momentum toward reforming.

More Support

He described himself as a lifelong athlete and sports fan as well as a "real Hawk fan."

"I can tell you that isn't just in the big games either, but the smaller ones as well. I feel now as though it is very, very pleasant indeed now to see people standing along with me on these issues. It is a lot more pleasant than it was a year ago," Rawlings said. Asked if college athletics had gotten too big to handle, Rawlings said it doesn't make much sense worrying about it. "It used to be that in the old days when you went to any city the tallest structure you saw was a church," Rawlings said. "Now it is in general the athletics facility. It is big in society in general and not just at a university. Whether it is too big is almost immaterial because it is there and there isn't a whole lot you can do about it.

Driver scores four victories

in six races

By DAN JOHNSON

Register Staff Writer

Craig Banks said he was ready for a quiet first week at Prairie Meadows, but just as ready for a big night Friday.

Banks, who had one victory in the first five racing days, melted his icy streak Friday. He set a track record by driving four winners, and accomplished the feat in the first six races.

"I thought my horses would be 100 percent better, and they were," said Banks, who trains three of the winners. "A lot of my horses on opening week were making their first start in quite a while."

Last year, five drivers had three winners in one night. Banks was one of them, but that had been the best night of his nine-year driving career, until Friday.

ARLINGTON SIMULCAST. Prairie Meadows, which already offers harness and greyhound wagering, will add a Thoroughbred race to its menu when it simulcasts the Arlington Million on Sept. 2.

The Arlington Million will be the first Thoroughbred race simulcast at Prairie Meadows since the mixed Thoroughbred-quarter horse season ended on July 30. The harness season started Aug. 16, and Prairie Meadows has been taking on Bluffs Run greyhound races each Thursday and Saturday during the season.

He added that while it is a big endeavor now, "it also can be a whale of lot of fun."

"It can be used as a very positive way to help educate student-athletes if the right kind of things are done," Rawlings said.

At the same time, he sounded a warning for those who might think he won't do anything if nothing is accomplished at the NCAA convention to be held in January in Nashville.

"There is momentum to those reforms, but nothing has been passed yet," he said. "We haven't been in this type of position for some time, but if reform is successful I would be well satisfied that we have the right set of conditions so that such a step on my part would not be necessary."

- less than 50% of the estimated replace-ment cost of the entire facility and is less than $100,000.
- The facility is not located in a floodway or coastal high hazard area.
  The facility has not sustained structural damage in a previous Presidentially-de-clared flooding major disaster or emer-
- The facility is not a critical one (i.e., hos-
- ous materials, or emergency operation

FEMA intends to provide assistance for the restoration of the facilities described above to their pre-disaster condition except that certain measures to mitigate the effects of future flooding may be incorporated into the restora tion work. For example, culverts and bridges with insufficient waterway openings may be subject to washing out due to the backed-up water. This backup may also cause damage to other facilities in the area. One mitigatle measure would be to increase the size of th waterway opening; other measures may in-clude providing erosion protection at bridge abutments or on levees and extension of en trance tubes on sewage lift stations. Other facilities or projects which do not fal into one of the four criteria listed above, are re quired to undergo more detailed review, in cluding study of alternative locations. The public is invited to participate in the process of fying alternatives and analyzing the impacts. Details on how to obtain informatio on specific projects and on the submission of comments will be found at the end of this no tice. Further explanation on the final determ nation on the restoration of these facilities will be given in subsequent notices.

Because of urgent need for some facilities of the type described in the previous paragraph, an applicant may have already started resto-ration of a facility when the Federal inspector visited the site. Some of these facilities would normally fall into the category requiring examination of alternative sites. These facilities will be restored in their original location based upon the following rationale. One of the follow- ing situations applies in each case:

  1. The facility is functionally dependent an its floodplain location. Flood control fa-cilities and bridges are examples.
  2. The project facilitates an open space use.
- Facilities which are part of a park of other open spcae use are examples. Th type of use represents sound floodplain management and therefore there is no need to change
- The facilities, such as roads and utilities, are an integral part of a larger network which would be uneconomical to relo-

Additionally the possible effects of not restor ing the facility were examined. In each case there was an overriding public need for the fa cility which clearly outweighed the Order's re quirements to avoid the floodplain and white made non-floodplain sites not practicable. FE MA also consulted with State and local offi cials, and actions which will be carried out do not violate either State or local floodplain pro tection standards. The restoration of these cilities also will incorporate certain measur designed to mitigate the effects of future flood-ing. This will be the only notice to the public concerning these facilities. Hazard mitigation projects may involve construction of a new facility, such as a levee or a debris dam; modification of an existing, udamaged facility, such as improving waterwa openings of bridges or culverts; relocation facilities out of the floodplain; or other types o projects to limit the effects of future floods

Subsequent notices will provide more spec

information as project proposals are deve

BLUFFS RUN RESULTS: Sports Roundup.

Track officials also say they will simulcast the Breeders' Cup on Oct. 27, closing day of the harness season. In addition, Prairie Meadows will seek permission from the Iowa Racing and Gaming Commission to take wagering on other stakes events during the fall, including the Secretariat Stakes and the All-American Futurity for quarter horses, both on Labor Day. Kentucky Derby winner Unbridled is a possibility for the Secretariat.

The Arlington Million is shaping up as one of the strongest North American grass fields ever, headed by 1989 champion turf horse Steinlen, Breeders' Cup Turf winner Prized, and Canadian star With Approval. Should Steinlen, who won last year's Breeders' Cup Mile, and Prized start, it will be the first time two winners of Breeders' Cup grass races have faced each other.

One Thoroughbred race was simulcast during last year's harness season, that being the Belmont Stakes from New York.

Ak-Sar-Ben official disappointed with ruling

OMAHA, NEB. (AP) - Ak-Sar-Ben Executive Director Don Drew said he was disappointed with a ruling by the Nebraska Racing Commission concerning the reversal of a stewards' decision at the Omaha track.

with a lap of 115.604 mph at the .533mile track. Mark Martin took the other front row starting position with a lap of 115.306 mph.

Martin leads Earnhardt by 48 points for the $1 million Winston Cup championship going into the 20th of the season's 29 races.

FIRST POLE-SITTER. Teo Fabi overcame brake problems to take the provisional pole Friday for the inaugural Denver Grand Prix.

The opening of the new 1.9-mile, 16-turn circuit was pushed back 3 hours 45 minutes because of construction delays.

Fabi turned a fast lap of 78.760 mph in the 30-minute qualifying session late in the day, driving the new circuit six-tenths of a second faster than second-place Michael Andretti, whose fast lap was 78.213. Qualifying ends today.

BERGER LEADS QUALIFYING. Austrian Gerhard Berger dominated Friday's qualifying session for the Belgian Grand Prix in taking the provisional pole position. Qualifying ends today.

'I personally wouldn't have overturned it," Drew said Thursday. "It was a judgment call all the way and I was disappointed that the commission saw fit to reverse the stewards."

The disputed race was run Aug. 8. Disbelief, a 2-year-old gelding trained by Linda Davidson, won the 6-furlong feature but was disqualified by the stewards and placed third for alleged interference in the stretch.

That decision was reversed by the commission after a four-hour meeting Wednesday afternoon at Ak-Sar-

Ben. "If it's a rule interpretation, then that's something else," Drew said.

"But this is clearly a judgment call by three men of integrity." The purse money will be redistributed, but the ruling won't affect any payoffs to bettors.
