COLLEGE ATHLETICS: THE NCAA

• WED., JANUARY 9, 1991 Sports agents Bloom, Walters will be re-tried by government

By Mike Fish Staff writer

The government has decided to re-try sports agents Norby alters and Lloyd Bloom, who are accused of using cash and threats of violence to recruit college athletes as clients, a federal prosecutor said.

Federal fraud and racketeerconvictions of Walters and his former partner, Bloom, were overturned last September by the U.S. Court of Appeals in Chicago, which ruled that both men were denied a fair trial. The ruling allowed the government to bring the defendants to trial again in separate proceedings.

In its ruling, the three-judge panel said jurors were not allowed to consider the claim by Walters: His fraud and racketeering convictions have been overturned.

Walters and Bloom that they lacked criminal intent because the jurors relied on the advice of lawyers who said the pair's business plans would violate NCAA rules but not the law. The appeals court said U.S. District Judge George Marovich improperly refused to call the testimony to the jurors' attention during his instructions to the panel.

"I think it's a waste of government resources, but we expect to win," said Steve Molo, one of sloom's attorneys.

Prosecutors have not determined what charges will be brought at the new trials, said Barry Elden, chief of the criminal receiving and appellate division of the U.S. attorney's office in Chicago. Elden said no date had been set for the new trials.

Walters, 58, was a successful booking agent who had represented pop singers before he and Bloom, 30, set up business in 1984 to pitch themselves to college football players. They were convicted last year on charges they compromised the eligibility of college football players by offering them thousands of dollars to sign contracts in violation of NCAA rules and threatened those who attempted to renege on the deals.

NASHVILLE — What little opposition there was to the Presidents Commission's reform package at the NCAA convention Tuesday did not have any illusions about how successful it would be.

"I've never been hit by a train before," said Arizona athletics director Cedric Dempsey, unsuccessfully seeking an exception for baseball to the limits on size of coaching staffs.

"At the risk of becoming additional road kill on the freeway to reform ..." was the way Northern Iowa athletics director Bob Bowlsby began his plea for a similar exception for wrestling. It, too, was denied.

It was a day of spectacular success for the presidents, whose previous efforts at cost-cutting and reform for the most part had failed.

In the most significant votes, delegates voted to:

Reduce the sizes of coaching staffs in football and basketball, and — for the first time place limits on the number of coaches in all other sports.

Eliminate athletic dorms. Reduce training table meals to one per day. Create an annual recruiting certification program for coaches that will require them to pass a test on NCAA recruiting rules before being allowed to recruit off campus. Said Arizona State athletics director Charles Harris, who is attending his 20th convention, "I have never seen anything like

"Not only is this a presidential sweep," said Georgia athletics director Vince Dooley, "it's a presidential blitzkrieg. You can throw reason out. It's apparent you can't even fine-tune these proposals with amendments. That will have to wait until later."

Georgia president Charles Knapp said he favored every reform measure except the one reducing training tables. "The Presidents Commission has won the day on the major issues," Knapp said. "You'd like to finetune some of them, but in a broad environment, you've got to go along with the program."

Some of the measures won't be enacted for some time, meaning there will be time for compromise. For instance, the dormitory phase-out and training table reduction don't take effect until Aug. 1, 1996.

The effective dates for the coaching cuts and limitations is Aug. 1, 1992, meaning delegates will be able to make changes at next year's convention. Tennessee athletics director Doug Dickey, who was involved with several efforts to make exceptions to the cuts, predicted that would happen.

"This won't stand up," he said. "Next year there will be adjustments."

Further reform measures on today's agenda include reducing playing and practice seasons and time demands on athletes.

In Division I-A, football staffs were reduced by one assistant and two "restricted-earnings" (part-time) coaches to a maximum of one head coach, eight assistants and four "restricted earnings" coaches. Basketball staffs had to give up only one restricted earnings coach, being allowed to keep three head or assistant coaches and one restricted earnings coach.

Delegates began the session by doing away with the rule establishing the fourth Saturday of November as the first date when bowl invitations can be tendered.

Georgia's votes lost by glitch

By David Davidson Staff writer

NASHVILLE -NCAA had technical difficulties with its new electronic voting system, and the biggest problem involved the University of Georgia.

None of Georgia's votes in the Division I business sessions Tuesday were counted by the computer.

The margins were so great in favor of reform measures that it didn't matter, with one exception: a: proposal to allow an exception to limitations of coaching staffs for swimming and diving.

The vote ended in a tie, 158-158 (with nine abstentions).

president Georgia Charles Knapp voted for the proposal, which would have assured passage of the lone exception to the reform package. "We're obviously disturbed about this, and wewant a ruling," said Knapp, who appealed to NCAA officials at the conclusion of the afternoon business
