42 degrees: Cardinals' Smith ruins Cubs' opener, 4-1

Jackson loses in his Chicago debut

CHICAGO, ILL. (AP) — Manager Joe Torre figures his St. Louis Cardinals can compete in the National League East only if they hustle their way into the race and take advantage of what's given to them.

They did that Tuesday, riding a strong opening-day performance from pitcher Bryn Smith to a 4-1 victory against the Chicago Cubs.

"It was a good game considering the conditions, and Bryn Smith was terrific," Torre said.

The game was played in 42-degree weather under cloudy skies after it had rained all night and most of the

For blacks, 'large life' can flatten college life All play, no work, sudden exit

By TOM WITOSKY

Register Staff Writer AMES, IA. - Mark Baugh calls it "living large."

"That's what we call it when you are living the good life," he said. "That's when you don't go to class, when you don't study. You stay up late and then sleep late. Good-looking women always are talking to you and you've got life pretty much the way clear: "I want a degree and I will get you want it."

For Baugh, living large was what it was all about during the 1988-89 Iowa State basketball season. As part of an all-sophomore front line that included Victor Alexander and Sam Mack, Baugh believed life couldn't get any

But five months later, Baugh's large life had shrunk to small - courtesy of a year of grades not even the brash Baugh found acceptable. As a result, Baugh was declared academically ineligible last season.

"My academic failings were totally my fault," Baugh said. "I didn't go to class, I didn't study. I was living large, and that's simply what hap-With only one season of college ath-

Ray Thompson, too, made a big splash early, then screwed it up. Now he's getting a second chance.

The talented young member of the 1989-90 Iowa basketball team was declared academically ineligible twice within nine months. He was arrested on misdemeanor charges for public intoxication and resisting police orders a night before a game. He allegedly told the arresting officer he was a household name. He dropped out of school, becoming a symbol to many of what is wrong with college sports in general.

But now he is attending Oral Roberts University in Tulsa, Okla. If he makes his grades, he'll be eligible to play next season.

Still, for the time being, he seems to put the degree second to his chances of making the pros.

"I know I have the ability and desire to get a degree," he said. "But it is going to take some time because I also believe strongly I can make it in the NBA." Being big, black and a basketball

Notre Dame in Drake field minus Ismail

Sprinter will compete in Penn Relays instead

By BUCK TURNBULL Register Staff Writer

One key name was missing Tuesday when Notre Dame's entry list arrived at the Drake Relays office.

Sprinter Raghib "Rocket" Ismail won't be coming to Des Moines with his teammates for the 82nd-annual meet, April 26-27.

Relays Director Bob Ehrhart had planned to have a 100-meter special event built around RAGHIB "ROCKET" the Rocket on the Friday program.

"Rocket has been on the road so much this spring that he's decided to

M MORE RELAYS NOTES IN SPORTS FOCUS bypass the Drake Relays," Notre Dame Coach Joe Piane said Tuesday. "I wanted him to come, because I'm a big fan of the Drake Relays, and this will probably be his last year running track. He's going to run in the Penn Relays, since that's near his hometown of Wilkes-Barre. "But he feels it would be too much to do both in the same weekend. If he went to Des Moines, he'd have to leave Thursday, and that would mean missing Friday classes."

That week promises to be a big one for Ismail, Notre Dame's all-America football flanker and kick returner. The National Football League draft is April 21, and Ismail could be the No. 1 pick.

Piane said Ismail also turned down an invitation to run at the Mount Sac Relays in California, which is the same weekend as the NFL draft.

Without Ismail, who was second in this year's NCAA indoor 55 meters. Ehrhart said he'll scrap plans for a 100 special. But some of the nation's top sprinters will be in the universitycollege 100, which will include Olapade Adeniken of Texas-El Paso, who finished fourth in the NCAA outdoor 100 last year, and Michael Bates of Arizona, who was seventh.

and double-A. The

LANCE DICKSON left-hander had an 0-3 record in the big leagues. He will try tonight to help the Iowa Cubs win their first season opener since 1987. The Cubs open their home season April 17 against Louisville.

Dickson will be one of few new players for Manager Jim Essian. Familiar players include third baseman Doug Strange, second baseman Jeff Small, utility player Brian Guinn and outfielders Derrick May, Cedric Landrum and Brad Bierley.

Veteran pitchers include Dave Pavlas, Joe Kraemer, Laddie Renfroe and Jose Nunez, who rejoined the Cubs' organization Monday after being unsuccessful as a free agent.

Newcomers tonight are shortstop Rey Sanchez, outfielder Steve Carter and catcher Rick Wilkins.

Sanchez missed last season after elbow surgery. Carter was dealt to the Cubs three weeks ago in a trade that sent Gary Varsho to Pittsburgh. Wilkins was on double-A Charlotte's roster.

The Cubs needed a strong August to finish second in the American Association Western Division last season. They had a 21-11 record during the final month and tied a franchise record with a 12-game winning streak.

"Yes, we are a veteran team, but there are a lot of questions," Essian said. "There are questions whether Strange, Small, Landrum, May and Bierley can hit like they did last year.

... If they can, then we won't have any problems scoring. If they can't, then the pitching's going to have to carry the load."

League rejects contract for 68-year-old Minoso

MIAMI, FLA. (AP) - Minnie Minoso's bid to play professional baseball in a sixth decade was blocked Tuesday when his contract with the Miami Miracle of the Florida State League was rejected by the commissioner's office.

Minoso, 68, last played in 1980 when he appeared in two games with the Chicago White Sox. He had been working out at the White Sox spring training complex in Sarasota, Fla.

Minoso was scheduled to appear as a designated hitter or pinch hitter in Saturday night's game between Miami and Fort Lauderdale. His participation would have marked another Minoso-Veeck event.

Mike Veeck is president of the Miami squad. It was his father, Bill, who brought Minoso back in 1980 as well as in 1976, when the outfielder appeared in three games with the White Sox.

Bill Murray, director of baseball operations in the commissioner's office, rejected Minoso's contract.

"The question is, 'Is he a competitive player for the league or not?" Murray said. "I'd say it was a relatively simple decision."

But Mike Veeck said the idea was a good one.

"They just don't get it," he said. "They'd rather read about umpires on strike or $15 million contracts. These are the same guys who said the midget was an idiotic idea. They leave ably with national figures. A study of more than 1,000 black athletes conducted nationally by the Educational Testing Service found just 31 percent of those who entered school in 1977 received a degree within six years.

Baugh still vows to earn a degree. He says his problems were a matter of concentration, not brain power. He said he had a 3.1 grade-point average after his first semester.

"Though not all the classes were very tough, I also took some of the regular required courses," he said. "I can do the work. I don't doubt that."

Then why did his grade-point drop? "In high school, people would try to get tough with me and tell me that I wasn't going to get away with anything," he said. "Well, I did get away with it, and probably way too much.

"Here, I tried the same thing. I stayed up late, slept late in the morning, skipped classes, didn't do any- ed, and I did." thing at study table. They let me get away with it - but my teachers didn't. In a way, I wish the coaching staff had gotten tougher with me. I needed a lot more structure, and my coaches didn't give it to me.

"Our study table was a joke. We would go to study table and just mess around. I never did much school work there.'

He said younger players need a substantially stronger structure.

"They need a strong routine that permits few interruptions or distractions," he said. "It was very easy during my first two years to get distract-

Household name forgotten

Marc Urguhart, a former basketball player at Iowa State who is a medical student at Johns Hopkins University, agrees with Baugh about distractions.

"I found myself so distracted from my studies at times that I had to go and hide from people so I could study," Urquhart said. "That was true particularly when we won a lot. People always want a piece of you when things go well."

When Thompson was declared ineligible the final time because of poor grades, he and his parents met with Coach Tom Davis and school officials to resolve the problems.

"I tried one last time, but by then I couldn't function," Thompson said. "The big eye was on me. I couldn't go anywhere or do anything without people always watching me and whispering right in front of me."

He dropped out and returned to Chicago.

At home, he got a call from Brian Garner, a teammate who also had left school. Garner was on his way to Oral Roberts and wanted to know if Thompson might be interested.

The coach at Oral Roberts is Ken Trickey, a former Iowa State coach. Trickey said Oral Roberts' small community and its disciplined behavior would be good for Thompson.

"It is a lot easier for us to keep track of the players here with only 4,000 students than it is with 20,000 students," Trickey said. "They can get more attention and discipline here because we always pretty well know where they are."

Another advantage is that black students represent 20 percent of Oral Roberts' student enrollment compared with 3 percent at Iowa. Tulsa also has a substantial black population, thus offering more of social and cultural amenities common in black metropolitan areas.

"We have a genuine yuppie population among our black population both here on campus and in Tulsa," Trickey said. "We try to make sure all our students are exposed to that, because it helps them to see what can happen if they stick to it."

Barone hired as A & M's basketball coach

COLLEGE STATION, TEXAS (AP) - Tony Barone, pledging to guide the team toward national prominence, became Texas A & M's basketball coach Tuesday.

"There are very, very few sleeping giants in this business, and I don't think there's any question . . . that this basketball job is a sleeping giant," said Barone, who led Creighton to three consecutive postseason tournaments and 20-victory seasons.

Barone, 44, said the next level for Texas A&M program was to be among the top 25 teams in the nation.

"I know you're going to jump on that as a statement, but I firmly believe that the potential of this club is in that particular realm," Barone last season. Former coach Shelby Metcalf was fired during the 1989-90 season and replaced by assistant John Davis replaced Thornton but was forced to resign last month after an internal investigation uncovered eight NCAA rules violations.

Barone, who was given a five-year contract, said he would not comment on the program's recent past. "If you would just indulge me, I'd like to look to the future," Barone said. "The past is one of those things I have no opinions about. I have no knowledge of anything that went on here. That's good for me."

Barone was the only one of five candidates interviewed by Athletic Director John David Crow. Barone said he felt no added scrutiprobation over the violations.

"The NCAA rules are set up, and there are no shading of the rules, so I don't see that as any extra scrutiny," he said. "I do a real good job with things I can control. I do a really poor. job with things I can't control. What we need to do is move on."

Barone said he was familiar with some of the coaches in the Southwest Conference, including Texas' Tom Penders, Houston's Pat Foster and Rice's Scott Thompson.

"I've had a relationship with Tom Penders in the past, and I'm sure it will get worse as time goes by," he'
